The Leading Edge

Throughout the school year, there was a quality of Spartan excellence that surfaced in all aspects of student life. From leadership in academics to a driving competitive spirit in sports, each student was a contributing factor in making Schurr more than second best.

This Spartan excellence was evident in both individual and team efforts. In individual efforts, each student reflected this quality of excellence by making the best use of his abilities or talents. This effort was shown when seven seniors were named National Merit Scholarship semi-finalists.

In team efforts, students united their individual efforts as a unit. School organizations such as the football team, band or drill team did not always take first place, but they achieved Spartan excellence by always putting forth the best of their abilities in competition.

Altogether, the combined achievements of all Spartans totalled to put Schurr on the Leading Edge. Principal James Douglas commented, "Schurr students always give the very best they are capable of giving and that quality has put us on the 'Leading Edge' of the California high schools."

By Elaine Wong

Blowing their saxophones to the tune of the Schurr Fight Song are Melisande Maytorena and Craig DeMerit. The Mighty Spartan Band played at all of the pep rallies.

Striving to knock the ball out of Burroughs' possession, David Chavez grasps the arm of his opponent. Chavez was a returning Varsity football player.

Sparking excitement from the crowd, Nancy Hagiwara rouses the attention of the gridders. This was Hagiwara's third year in pepsters.

Senior Wayne Evans patiently waits for the starting signal of the root beer drinking contest. Different types of eating contests were held at many pep rallies each month.

As part of the Homecoming activities, a trash can decorating contest was held to see which organization could create the best looking trash can on campus. The winner of this contest was the sophomore class.

Enthusiastic seniors wave and throw confetti in the air on Spirit Day. Seniors arrived as early as 6:00 AM to help decorate A-building for the annual building decoration contest.

GINA,
A REAL COOL CHICK I MET THIS YEAR. I HOPE YOU GET THE BEST OUT OF LIFE.

Behind the Scenes

Finding time to pose for the camera, seniors Paul Tiangco and Yumi Yoshihara proudly flout their graduating year. Both were active members in Band.

Winning a football game, taking first place in a parade or scoring an "A" on a test are all examples of that ultimate goal: success. But what about the steps that precede the climb to Spartan excellence?

When the football team scores a magic touchdown, we do not see the endless hours it spends after school to execute a single play. When the band and drill team march through a parade with perfection, we do not see the hard work and determination that both apply in their daily practices. When a student scores high on a test, we do not see the diligence and concentration he puts into his studying. These are the behind the scenes effort necessary to achieve Spartan excellence.

As we see, the climb to Spartan excellence is not an easy road, but what makes this journey worthwhile to the very end is the self-satisfaction each student will have when he has reached the top. When he has done so, he will have played a part in making Schurr the Leading Edge.

By Elaine Wong

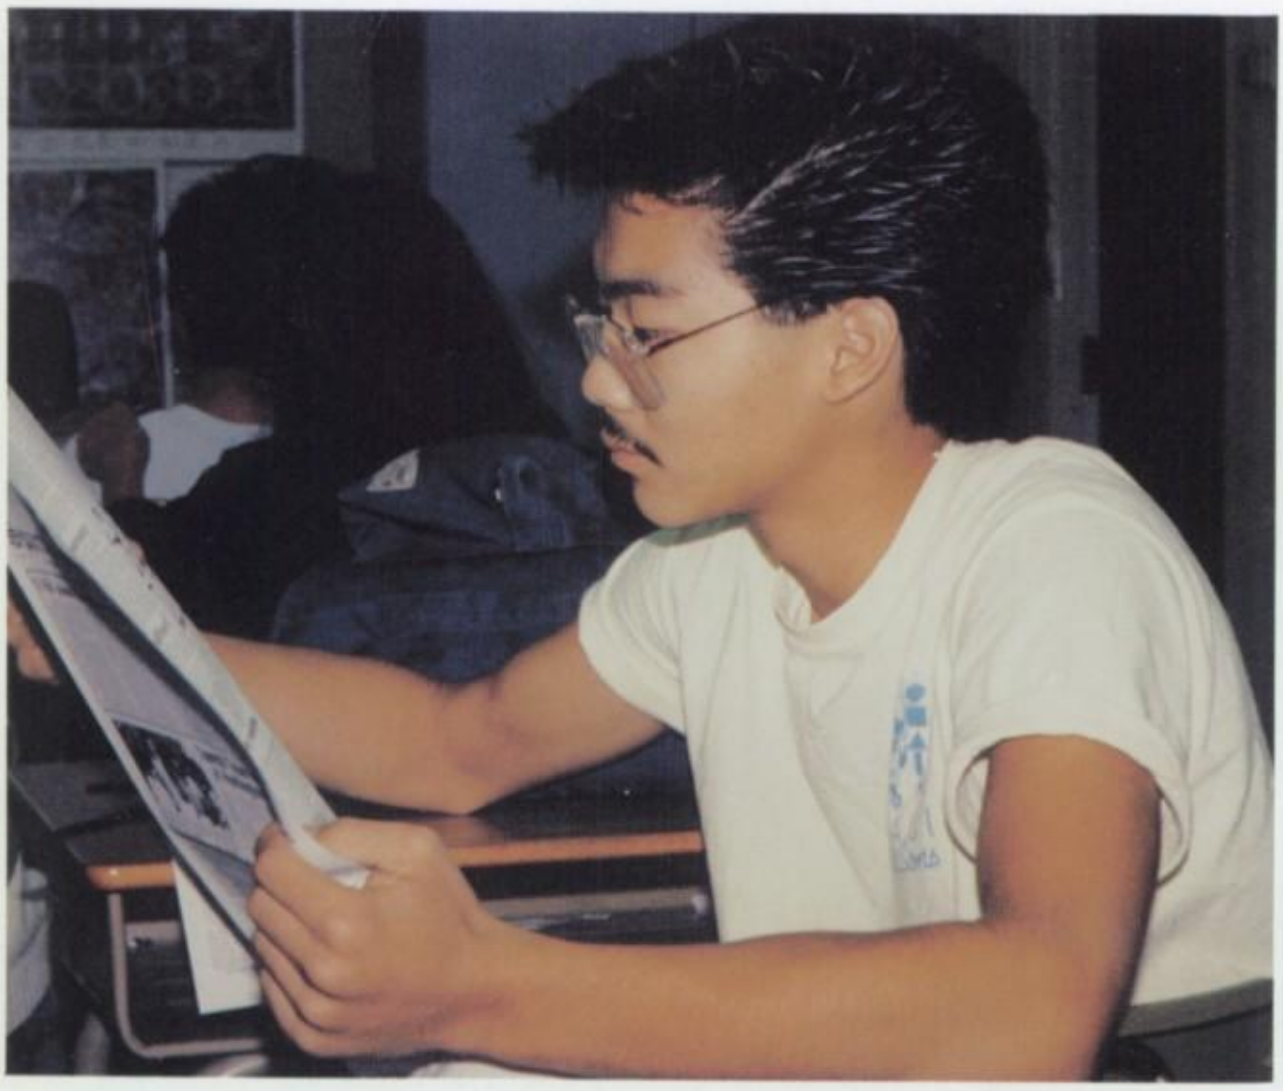
Homecoming King Tom Pieratt literally gets a piece of the action after bobbing for an apple in an apple eating contest. Pieratt served as the senior class president.



Spartan Excellence

In everyday student life, Spartan excellence can be seen all around the campus.

The first place to look are the classrooms. Students can either be found listening to a lecture, explaining math problems on the board, giving an oral report or even dissecting a frog. There is a wide variety of learning that takes place daily at Schurr.

In areas outside the classroom, Spartan excellence is a quality found among the various organizations on campus.

Spartans are actively involved with the organizations to which they belong. This is one reason for the many fundraisers that go on during the year.

As Director of Activities Gail Quan commented, "Schurr has a Leading Edge in everything: academics, sports, and extra-curricular activities. It's obvious in our number of National Merit Scholars, the passing rate of students taking the AP tests and the success of our school organizations."

By Elaine Wong

Finding some time to himself, junior Brent Naritomi studiously reads the Spartan Scroll. Naritomi was a member of the Speech Team and Key Club.

Being escorted by her father to the waiting limousine, Homecoming Queen Irene Valencia beams with happiness.

After turning the last corner, Susan Valenzuela reaches the last leg of her course. The Girl's Varsity Cross-Country team made it to the CIF finals.

Before school begins, juniors Dana Lee, Rick Davis, Heather Sarni and Edward De La O pause to show who's number one. Both Lee and Sarni were U.S.B. officers.

Responding to the drum major's call, the erect percussionists Chris Bouligny, Carylann Miyano, Marcellus Chow, and Paul Tiangco follow directions without haste.
The Mighty Schurr High Band won various awards and trophies for their achievements.

Getting ready to rehearse on the bells is Yumi Yoshihara. In addition to performing at major sporting events, Band competed in various parades throughout the year.

As NHS member Corinne Coleman prepares to pour more punch into cups, Steve Kim serves the drinks to thirsty customers with a smile. National Honor Society sold punch as a method of fundraising during Homecoming.

SENIORS

Senior year. For some, being a senior means having special privileges, including the right to "beat up" freshmen. For others, it is a feeling of bittersweet sadness, for it will mean starting a new life — one filled with uncertainty and apprehension — the secure and carefree days of high school gone.

It is a time to experience new things and for one last time become involved in the various organizations around campus. Highlights of the year include Spirit Week, Homecoming, Senior Ditch Day, the Prom, and of course, Graduation.

With so much to participate in, seniors radiate spirit and class. It is no wonder then, that from athletics to academics to extra-curricular activities, seniors shine through with a winsome quality, proving that they have the Leading Edge.

Going in for the plunge, senior Manny Gutierrez eagerly consumes some ice cream. A member of the Homecoming court and football team, Gutierrez actively participated in the annual festivities.

LEADING Edge

The Class of '87

As the senior year commenced, the Senior Class cabinet was busily planning events for the rest of the school year.

Heading the Class of '87 was President Tom Pieratt, his first year in office. Pieratt commented that "there was a lot of work planning and organizing things," but he said his job was facilitated by the help he received from the more experienced officers. The officers assisting him were Lisa Conetta, vice president; April Ortiz, secretary; and Jennifer Zubiate, treasurer.

Under the guidance of advisers Janet Lessinger, Mando Marentes and Steve Terry, the Class of '87 was able to sponsor the Icebreaker Dance in September, the senior t-shirt sale during Spirit Week and the candy sale in December. They participated in the many different events at Homecoming as well.

Ortiz commented, "It was fun working with the people, but when it came to Homecoming it was a lot of work." The Class of '87 took part in many Homecoming competitions, such as building a float and decorating A building before school.

Then toward the end of the year, they planned for long awaited events like Senior Ditch Day and Grad Nite.

As the year ended, the class had planned a successful year because of the cooperation that existed between the officers. Terry commented, "They (the officers) worked well together because they were willing to compromise for the good of the whole class."

Senior's dream vacation

What would you consider your ideal (dream) vacation? Would it be a trip to London, England, or Paris, France? How about a trip to the exotic Caribbean Islands? I know it all sounds tempting, but some seniors hope these dreams can become reality in the near future.

"My dream vacation would be going with a few of my friends to Australia with a bunch of money, then to Paris to buy myself some clothes, and finish it off in New York."

Roman G. Rendon

"My dream vacation would be to visit Castle Grayskull."

Letty Orozco

"My dream vacation is to lie down on the roof of my house and drink a Bud."

Pete Corral

"My dream vacation would be a two week tour in Jamaica."

David Kuan

"My dream vacation would be to visit Norway and spend two months with my three favorite people in the whole world: A-Ha!!!"

Sandra Hirai

"I would like to travel all over Europe!"

Julie Lui

"My dream vacation? Probably to go to exciting places like Paris and Rome and watch all the bombs go off in airports with all kinds of body parts flying around. Now that's an exciting vacation!"

Seniors aren't bad

Cool? Decent? Wonderful people? These could not possibly be words spoken by underclassmen to describe seniors! But, contrary to the degrading, resentful remarks that are normally expected, underclassmen had some surprisingly good things to say about their "elders."

"They are treating us much nicer than I've expected. 'Cause of that, I have a lot of respect for them."

Francis Yoon

"When I first came up here, I didn't really know what to expect, but now I found that they seem to be pretty decent people, basically."

Byron Lawrence

"The seniors haven't bugged me ... yet!"

Elkie Nagos

"At first, they sort of ignored us and put us down a little, but after they realized that they couldn't get rid of us, they accepted us."

Eileen Chun

"I thought they would look down at us, but they seem much nicer."

Heather Ruiz

"I think the seniors are cool, especially the guys (The V players)!"

Elizabeth Morin

"Seniors?! No comment!"

Vivian Liao

"Seniors are cool, but they'll be cooler in a couple of years!"

David Kunishima

"Seniors are all right now that I've spent three years with them. Over those years, I got to know a lot of them much better and I realized that they are wonderful people."

Derek Kunishima

"They're just like everybody else, except that they are older and wiser(?)"

Pardon me!

Excuses! Excuses! That's all people hear these days. Some are created for avoiding responsibilities or some are created for covering up plain negligence. And, of course, seniors have made up their share of credulous/semi-credulous excuses and they have one for practically every jam they get into!

Common excuses are made for not doing homework. A favorite used by Laura Diaz was, "I gave the homework to you already, teacher. You must have lost it!"

"My best excuse for not doing my homework was telling my teacher my parents are Moslems and we worship Alla Ching 25 times a year, always on a Monday," was Leo Lemus' excuse.

Then there are those excuses for tardiness. "My friend's contact lens fell out and I had to help her find it," said Shelly Sharp. But Ernie Kojo's excuse for tardiness was, "I had to go to the restroom and I didn't make it in time so I had to go home and change."

For getting out of class, Connie Villa said her excuse was, "I have a stomach ache. Can I go to the nurse's office?" Still another popular excuse was the one used by Scott Fort: "I locked my keys in the car."

So whatever kind of situation, seniors will always have an excuse on hand to get out of a dilemma, and hopefully their teachers will believe them.

Senior Anxiety Test

The SAT — this is the dreaded test that many college-bound seniors take in the second week of October. Some students spent their summers diligently preparing for this test, whereas others took this time to enjoy their respite from school work. Regardless of the preparation or non-preparation, that dreaded day has come and gone.

How did some seniors feel about the test after taking it? Many replies were negative. "The SAT was a killer; some parts were easy, but others were impossible," said James Kiyohara. Senior Juan Angulo added, "The test was a _____, but I wasn't as nervous as I thought I would be." National Merit Semi-Finalist John Kawakami replied, "ARRGH!!!!"

A couple of seniors were somewhat optimistic about the test. "Personally, I thought the SAT was not as hard as the tests used in the SAT preparation workshop we had over the summer," said Cynthia Ogawa. Shirley Hom felt that the verbal sections were not as difficult as she had anticipated; "I was grateful that the reading passages were not as hard as the ones at the summer workshop." Added Kaoru Matsuo, "Taking it was not so bad ... it's just getting the scores back that's terrible!"

A number of seniors took the SAT at different high schools. Some felt that the test-taking environment was disturbing. Commented Sal Pastor, "The administrators were terrible, and the one minute breaks between the six sections were too short." Another senior who agreed was Grace Cheng. "The test-taking environment was pretty bad because we didn't get any breaks at all." However, one senior, Karen Tse, did not feel well at all, period. She said, "I was as sick as a dog and everyone must have hated me because I kept coughing and sneezing throughout the test."

At any rate, many seniors will agree that at least they were through with the test. As words of encouragement for the underclass, Martin Kim said, "Kick back! Don't worry too much about the test!" Concluded Nick Lugo, "The SAT is the most nerve-racking, pressure-packed test one will ever take during high school, but one can and will survive!"

Changing crowds

Seniors have it all! They finally gain respect, worry about graduation, get class rings, worry about losing life-long friends, and wonder which job to take or which college to go to. But wait! Adjusting to new surroundings? Seniors new to Schurr have to worry about all the things that normal seniors do, but they must also worry about blending in with all of the new environment posed to them.

Marcel Lee ventured from Boston to Schurr. "I was very excited coming to California and Schurr," said Lee, "People here are much friendlier, and they are very different. However, I was very surprised that basketball practice started so late. I'm looking to make new friends and to graduating and TO WIN!"

Francisco Mancillas argeed with Lee. "Everybody is so friendly, especially the teachers at Schurr, and I concentrate on my studies a lot now. However, I very much miss my friends at my old school and hangin' out with them after school."

Kevin Williams, who came here from Alberta, Canada, said, "It's weird adjusting from a private school of 150 to a public school with over 2000 people. But within a few weeks, you blend in with the crowd and make a lot of friends, and you adjust."

Another private-to-public transferee is Mel Valenzuela. After going through a traditional Catholic education all of his life, he believes that he is quickly adjusting to life at Schurr. But the major difference between his old and his new schools is women. Valenzuela explained, "There are a lot of reasons why I like Schurr. It's closer to home, there's more going on, I have more fun, and the people are much friendlier. But since being in boys' schools all of my life, I love finally being in a classroom with 'WOMEN'!"

Dawn Smith is another new senior from Palm Springs. She says that the weather is much cooler and the classes here are a bit easier. She commented, "Even though I'm graduating from Schurr, Palm Springs High will always be my high school."

These people are just a few of the special class of graduates called the new seniors.

Senioritis: is there a cure?

Playing the role of a judge is John S. Cisneros. In Suzanne Stuart's California law course, students had the opportunity to participate in mock trials.

"Sunshine and clear blue skies predicted again for this beautiful Friday morning with an expected high of 88 degrees," stated the voice of the local weatherman on the radio. Another perfect day to hit the beach and work on getting a tan. So go the fun-filled and relaxing days of summer and before one realizes it — summer's over.

Starting the first day of school does not exactly rate high on a senior's list. Getting up early, being loaded down with homework and cramming for tests, one wistfully yearns for the long gone summer days. So what happens?

Disease: SENIORITIS. CAUSE: There are many, but the main one is that students (not necessarily all seniors) want to continue living "the good and easy life" and so ignore the responsibilities of being a student. SYMPTOMS: Falling grades because of incomplete work or work not done at all. This eventually results in report card grades that are alarmingly low. Cutting and not coming to classes. (Seniors have one senior ditch day, but obviously get into the habit of making it many more than one!) CURE: Studies have been undertaken to try to find one, but it is yet to be discovered.

The early stages of senioritis occur during the first weeks of school but become more evident after the Christmas holidays, when some students have partied too hard bringing in the New Year.

During the next few months, students begin to realize that they have been "fooling around" too much and not concentrating hard enough on their studies.

The last months of school are marked by furious working and accomplishing as much as they can before the final step of high school: GRADUATION.

Some seniors were asked about this problem. Senioritis: What exactly is it? A second question, which all teachers would be grateful to know the answer to, was: What is its cure?

"Senioritis is realizing that school is a jail; a place where you are locked until the day you graduate. Cure: Try getting out fast!"

Monique Diep

"Senioritis is when the student does not do his job properly in school and kicks back. Cure: Go see INXS!"

Tiffany Giang

To cheat or not to cheat

Student: Cheating? No, Mrs. Blank, I wasn't cheating. I don't even know the meaning of the word (besides that it is the easiest way to get an "A" and pass a class). It's okay, Mrs. Blank, I'll forgive you for falsely accusing me.

Ha! Ha! What a pushover! Little does Mrs. Blank know that I am a full-fledged expert at cheating. The "so-called" pros come to me for advice.

Want some helpful hints? If your teacher allows you to eat during a test, write answers on a candy wrapper or, better yet, on a piece of chewing gum! When your teacher accuses you of cheating, you can easily eat the evidence!

So you don't think my advice is good enough? OH, I see, you need advice from other students. Here are statements from seniors who I have actually "trained."

"Fine line pens are better making crib notes."

John Kawakami

"Like a lot of other things, if you have a chance, GO FOR IT!"

Lisa Conetta

"Seniors rule because we get away with cheating!"

Tommy O and Jodi Yamabe

"Don't cheat, because it's not worth being caught."

Jeff Amimoto

"You could cheat, but be sure you don't get caught. Don't make it a habit."

James Kiyohara

"Cheating is always the last resort, but getting caught while applying it hurts a lot."

Charles Sayasith

Mrs. Blank: Ha! I've caught you this time. So you're a full-fledged expert on cheating, huh? Well, if you were to talk to these teachers about cheating, they'd tell you this: "Students shouldn't cheat because their cheating themselves of doing research or thinking through an answer."

Merlene Hill

"If students don't do their homework it's fine, but they shouldn't cheat off somebody else!"

A day in a life of a senior

October 24, 1986

Dear Diary,

This is my senior year and all I do is work! Work! Work! One would think, "My, she must be having a great time!" But am I? Nooooo, not with all these test dates, college applications, and school work. That SAT was a real killer and the Achievement Tests were no piece of cake either.

Now they tell me college applications are due in November. I don't even know what my major is going to be, much less what college I want to go to. So where should I apply? UC San Diego? Cal State Long Beach? Pasadena City College? Oh, I don't know. These problems are driving me up the wall.

Just the other day I met up with Sandra Hirai. I asked her how her senior year has been treating her and she replied, "It puts a lot of pressure on me. That's why my hair is turning grey!" Well, I see I'm not the only one with problems.

Oh, I almost forgot, Homecoming is just around the corner. And you know what that means? — Rotating work shifts at the photo booth for Spanish Club, the pizza booth for yearbook, the teriyaki booth for journalism ... the list seems to go on and on.

The responsibilities seem endless. When I ran into Leonor Aguilera yesterday, I asked her what was up. She answered, "There are so many small responsibilities that they add up to be one BIG responsibility." She then added, "But at the end, fulfilling them is worth it!"

Well, what am I to do? I suppose the only way out is to meet all of these application deadlines, do my work, participate in school activities, get good grades, and maybe ... just maybe ... I might get out of high school alive!

This can't happen to me!

GRADUATING? What do you mean I'm GRADUATING? I'm not ready. I don't want to go out into the "real" world.

Work for a living? It's against my religion to work! I didn't work when I was in school, so why break a good tradition?

It's just not fair! Why should I be forced to graduate when I don't want to? What went wrong?

Well, first I came here, a massive pile of "student-eating bricks." And now, 220 credits later, it's senior year! I wish that I could just start all over again, but instead, it's the end of the line! If I had known, I would have done everything in my power to flunk and repeat my entire freshman year!

Graduation. The word puzzles me. I ran into several friends of mine yesterday and I asked them how they felt about graduation coming up. Here's what each one said:

"Graduating from high school is a big step for me. I am going to miss all of my friends and especially miss playing in the Mighty Schurr High Spartan Band. I will feel like a freshman in the real world."

Marie Munguia

"I never thought it would be possible! I'm going to miss my friends very much. I hope we have a class reunion within the next 5 years."

Laura Kotkoff

"I'm looking forward to graduation and going on to college. Graduating will give me a feeling of being an accomplished individual."

James Kiyohara

"I think that it is a starting point for me to face the real world. I can have the opportunity to step into some higher education, which will help me to achieve my goal."

David Kuan

"I think that graduation will bring to an end all of my 'B's."

Jason Ong

"I am happy because I am FINALLY getting out of high school."

Marlene Escareno

"It's about time; I've been ready since I was a freshman!!"

Christine Oyakawa (1987-?)

Well, these people do seem to be sure of themselves. They really do have a grip on this "graduation business." To think that I won't have to come up with excuses about why I missed class does make graduating easy. I also won't have to read anymore, or write essays, analyze poetry, or even pay attention to teachers! That sounds great! I'm gonna like graduating.

What is this I hear!? I have to wait until June? Oh well, I guess I could wait a few more months. But, what will I do after graduation? Work? No. Go to college!? NO WAY!! Then I'll have to go through the same thing all over. No thanks! No, you can't make me go! On second thought, I'll just stay in high school until I'm ready.

"Run, Mineta, run!"

While some students were sitting down to do homework in the living room, four seniors were sitting down getting ready to help with the registration on the second floor of the Japanese American Cultural and Community Center.

While most students were watching America's funnyman on the "Cosby Show" the same four students were watching a San Jose Congressman mix with potential supporters.

And while many students were listening to the radio, those four were listening to Congressman Norm Mineta share his views on such topics as the Gramm-Rudman Bill, the safety of our skies and the future of the space program.

Seniors Lisa Itamura, Michele Miyakawa, Julie Shiroishi and Wayne Song were the four students who attended the reception for Mineta. The reception was designed to raise funds for Mineta's re-election in the 13th district. There were approximately a hundred supporters present, including "Karate Kid Part II" co-star Nobu McCarthy, MUSD Board Member Willard Yamaguchi, LA Councilman Mike Woo and State Senator Art Torres.

The seniors had initially heard about the reception when David Lebow, their American Government teacher, was asking for willing volunteers to attend the event. Expressing her feelings about participating in the reception, Shiroishi commented, "I think that even though Mineta is not from our district, it is important to support him because he does support the rights of minorities. He is extremely well-informed and I think the experience was definitely an eye-opener."

After the election in November, Mineta won by a 69% to 31% vote against Republican Bob Nash.

Looking back

Senior year is "supposedly" the last year of high school. It is a time to think about and plan for the future, but it is also a time to reminisce about the last four years of high school. It is a time to remember all the embarrassing moments, good and bad times, happy and sad occasions, and everything else that has happened during one's stay at Schurr. Here are some senior reflections of their past four years of school.

"The past years have been lots of work, but at the same time lots of fun. I will miss not coming back next year."

Julie Lui

"They were four great years. I will always remember my time at Schurr!"

Chris A. Gonzales

"Four unforgettable years! Every year held something very special for me."

Margaret Gonzalez

"The four years at Schurr High School are going to be unforgettable to me. I've learned a lot in my years that I will never forget. I will never forget all my friends that I love. They will be missed but not forgotten."

Manny Gutierrez

"It's been quite a revolution. I'm sure that I will cherish these memories always."

Lisa Itamura

"My four years at Schurr were some of the best years of my life, and I'm sure I will always feel that way. Without my friends it would not have been nearly as special."

Butch Le Noue

"Memorable and ¡bueno! High school is something I shall never forget!"

Ruben Avitia

"My freshman year was a .... but the other three years of high school were something to remember."

Alan Somphone

"I'm glad it's almost over!!!"

Leticia Orozco

"I loved it — 'sorda-kinda-in-a-way'!"

Pete Corral

"They were totally awesome, rad, and unforgettable! I am going to miss the fun times."

What makes senior year special?

Whether it means dominance over the "inexperienced" freshmen or the reality that adulthood is near, senior year is special for each senior in his own heartfelt way. The following are responses from seniors expressing the special significance that senior year holds for them.

"Being this is my last year as a senior, it was a special year because I got to share many good times and memories with my friends."

Jennifer Zubiate

"What makes my senior year so special? Extremes of tension and relaxation."

Jung Kim

"What makes my senior year so special is to finally know that the four years that we've been here is almost over and it's now time to get out and 'party.' It will also be special to see the many achievers and athletes excel in their own careers after school is out, and to see the underclassmen move up a year to reach the goal of finally getting to be a senior."

Paul Tokuda

"... it's the first step into the real world."

Bruce Nakashimo

"We're in charge and on top of everything and everyone."

Sandy Velasquez

"The four years I've been here went by really fast. It seemed to get better every year. This year has been definitely the best."

Keenan Eng

"The ability to arouse the underclassmen and being able to annoy those lovable teachers of mine and getting away with it."

Aimee To

"That it's the last step before I go into college and realizing what I am going to do with my life."

Star Spouse

In Contemporary Living, seniors had the opportunity to choose marriage partners and "get married" to get a taste of the real life.

Just being able to "marry" another senior is exciting, but what if one had the chance to marry an actual celebrity? Here are some responses to what celebrity they would choose to marry and why:

"Tom Selleck, because he has a good body."

Tina Montalvo

"Sylvester Stallone, because he played Cobra, Rambo and Rocky. Or Pee Wee Herman because he is very talented in making everyone laugh, and he dresses great."

Isabel Luevano

"Tom Cruise, because he is so full of life, very talented, exceptionally good looking, and has all the qualities of a wonderful human being!"

I remember when ...

In their four years of school, seniors have encountered many different teachers from science to English, but for some reason there are certain educators that they will remember more than others. Who are these teachers? The way to find out is to read on ...

"It's got to be Mr. Stevens, because he was so helpful and understanding in so many respects."

Janina Rauda

"Coach Vlink, because he's so funny and enthusiastic. He cheers you up when you're down and he's always there for you!"

Jose Lemus

"Probably Mr. Olague, because our class was so small and we all got along well together. We were more on a friendly basis than student to teacher."

David Nguyen

"Mr. Goebel, because he was the most fun, even though I had a bad grade in that class ... once, I even tried to bribe him with my M & M's!"

Jason Agena

"Mr. Abbott would be my most memorable teacher, because he always said 'humdinger' and 'give it that old Schurr High try!' ... and someone once told me he looked like Santa Claus, and it's true."

Grace Cheng

"It has to be Mr. Terry, because once my friend and I went to get a soda during class, came back after 30 minutes and he didn't even say anything."

Nancy Nakamura

"Mr. Fong, because he's the only adult I know who still thinks he's Peter Pan."

Julie Shiroishi

"Ms. Okubo, because she made me inflate a plastic shark and beach balls, which made my cheeks hurt!"

Monique Fung

"Mr. Hill, because he was funny and he called everyone 'Rug Rats'."

Alfred Li

Wayne Song

"Mr. Lebow, just because!"

Michele Miyakawa

"Mrs. Wellenstein, because she's always patient and understanding. She always sings and dances and does her old school cheers."

Gail Quan

"Mr. Kim. I always looked forward to his class because he made learning fun by giving life to subjects."

"Hey Mom, I need $!!"

Senior portraits	$150.00
Yearbook	$22.00
SAT	$12.00
Achievement tests	$19.50
College Applications	$150.00
A.P. tests	$100.00
Class ring	$100.00
Bids for formals (Prom & Christmas Ball)	$80.00
Formal attire	$200.00
Pictures	$30.00
U.S.B. card	$10.00
Senior Class t-shirts	$8.00
Cap and gown	$18.00
Homecoming Day	$20.00
Club dues	$5.00
Dances	$10.00
Miscellaneous	$30.00
Grad Nite	$20.00
Total cost	$984.50

Seniors ponder over future

As about-to-be-graduates stand proud and sing their alma mater, an intense feeling of accomplishment overwhelms them. Their hearts begin to race and their palms begin to sweat. When the singing stops and the opening speeches are over, one at a time they will hear their names called, they will walk up and (phew!) they have GRADUATED from high school! But what happens after this?

Many feel confused or unsure about what will happen or change when they are "all grown up" and out of school. When asked how she felt about her independence, Connie Nora Villa replied, "I feel insecure because no one will be telling me what to do and I'll be able to make my own decisions." However, some are quite confident. When asked the same question, Julia Romero answered, "It's challenging, rewarding, and difficult because of all the obstacles we have to overcome."

Some will go on to college, others may choose to work. Some will choose to live on college campuses, others may choose to live in their own apartments, and still others may choose to live at home. Whichever decision they make, it must be well-thought-out and prepared for. Daniel Molina expressed his feelings in saying, "There are a lot of responsibilities because you might be on your own sooner or later." Also, Rosy Flores commented, "It's scary, but it makes you feel good that you will be more responsible and have more freedom."

So, whichever road a graduate takes, he should be confident in his education and be determined to succeed. After all, it's a "jungle" out there!!

Senior advice

Seniors have gone through all of the nail-biting, hair-raising, spine-tingling, "Oh my goodness, I have to finish this!", "Ey, bud, (s)he likes me," experiences in their four years at high school. They have tasted success in both academics and athletics, and they have suffered defeat at other times. Whether embarking on a career or going to college, Spartans are well prepared for whatever tasks lie ahead.

Freshmen, on the other hand, still have three more years, and they must adjust to their new surroundings to be as successful as their elders were. Thus, here is some (un)friendly and helpful advice which seniors give to freshmen:

"Keep on trying! It's four very short years!"
Cecibel Alvarenga

"Have fun and enjoy it!"
Anne Holguin

"Don't think and act big, because you're probably not."
Leanor Aguilera

"Hard work always pays off."
Nick Lugo

"Don't try so hard at not being freshmen."
Christine Oyakawa

"You have three years to grow up!"
Mel Valenzuela

"Don't run to the lunch lines because it gives you away."
David Lim

"Don't put off everything to the last minute because when I did, I ended up staying up late, and I fell asleep the next day in class."
Zoe Cheung

"Don't work so hard, but get good grades."
Karen Tse

"Get into many activities and try your best to work towards your senior year, because it's your best year."

Junior Miss

Two most young teenage girls, receiving the title of Montebello's Junior Miss is merely a dream, but for senior Michelle Duckett, this dream has become a reality.

After being rated on physical fitness, poise and appearance, scholastic achievements, the performing arts and a judge's interview, it was determined that Duckett was the overall best. "It was a pageant to determine how well-rounded each girl was," said Duckett.

Besides the title, Duckett has received a ring that she will wear until the next pageant in January. Along with the ring came $1700 worth of book scholarships that will, according to Duckett, "help out."

Responsibilities also come along with the title. Duckett is expected to attend ribbon-cutting ceremonies, banquets and many other city-related functions. While most would find it a bother to participate in these things, Duckett does not foresee any problems, saying, "It will help to keep me involved and stay active in Montebello." Duckett is also expected to attend the next Junior Miss pageant to hand over the title.

Participating in the pageant has "been a rewarding experience for me in that during the pageant, I was able to meet a lot of new people and I became really close friends with the other girls in the pageant. It was also nice to perform for an audience and be rewarded for it. It makes me feel as if all of my hard work really paid off."

Also participating in the pageant from Schurr were Grace Cheng, who received a $100 savings bond for scholastic achievements; Shirley Chu; Liz Cortez; Laura Diaz, who also received a $100 savings bond for ticket sales; Tanya Gagliano; Charlene Tomoyasu; Jessica Toscano and Irene Valencia, who received a $100 savings bond for the "Spirit of Junior Miss."

Kim's 800 score marks perfection

Taking the PSAT (Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test), ACH (Achievement Test) and SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) may be one of the worst experiences a student faces in his high school career, but senior Jung Kim made taking the tests seem like a piece of cake.

Kim scored 80, a perfect score, on the math section of the PSAT, and a perfect 800 on both the ACH and SAT. Kim is the first student in Schurr history to attain such scores and is one of under one percent of the high school students in the nation to attain such scores.

Kim said he was "shocked" upon receiving a perfect score on the first test, the PSAT. He attributed his score mostly to luck, saying, "Luck is a residue of design."

He also credited Jerry Harvey for much of his success. Harvey taught in the summer Scholastic Aptitude Improvement Program at Schurr, designed to prepare students for the PSAT, ACH, and SAT. Kim said the tips that influenced him most were "to have insight, look for patterns and to estimate." Calculus teacher Harry Manos said of Kim, "Jung is a very bright and dedicated student who does more than what is required." Kim offered various suggestions to others prior to taking the test. Among them were being open-minded and getting plenty of rest the day before the test. "But most important of all," said Kim, "remember to eat cafeteria food!"

Which senior has changed the most?

All seniors have changed drastically from their freshman year, and odds are, they changed for the better. Teachers have also noticed differences in the appearances, attitudes, and talents of the seniors at Schurr High School. When asked which senior had changed the most since their freshman year, the teachers responded with great interest. Here's what they said.

"Brenda Kobayashi, because she's grown an inch and is probably two pounds heavier since her freshman year."

James Douglas

"Jung Kim. He was very soft-spoken, but he has now grown a sense of humor, participates, argues, and has turned into an All-American boy."

Clark Barrett

"Tom Pieratt has definitely changed. I didn't know that he was so popular. Tom was only involved in wrestling and Interact Club up until his junior year, but now he's senior class president, less of a troublemaker, and much more involved in school activities."

Glenn Sewell

"Rafina Petrescu. She has become more aggressive with her instrument and is more outgoing. She was so meek, shy, and timid in her freshman year, but now she has risen above all of that."

Leonard Narumi

"Gabriel Aguilera, because he has grown seven inches and has become more obnoxious!!"

Terrance Devney

"Charise Alvarez has changed beyond believability. She has grown from a demure and immature freshman to a senior who feels very squared away."

Steve Terry

"Joe Quintero. He has really become a student of life. He has been interested in learning for learning's sake, not just for a letter grade, and has expanded his range of interests."

Kris Sullivan

"Manny Gutierrez has definitely formed into a different person, because he has gone from liking himself to loving himself. He has matured a lot and his athletic abilities have improved from year to year."

Buzz Baviello

"Robert Savin. His great sense of humor has not changed, but his maturity level has (hopefully for the better)."

Alicia Lloreda

"When Glenn Sabey first got to Schurr, he was a little wimp, but now he's a stud. He has really transformed into a nice guy."

Armando Marentes

"April Ortiz has changed in that she has matured to be a beautiful young lady and continued to be responsible to herself and to her group. She has involved herself in many activities since her freshman year."

Cynthia Cornejo

"Grace Hwang. She did not know one word of English when she was a freshman, but now she is fluent in the language."

Ella Wing

"Shirley Chu has modernized her appearance from a weakling underclassman to a strong senior."

Andrew Sais

"Shari Tanimoto. She's smarter at the game of basketball, and knows what the coaches are thinking. She has matured a great deal, and her athletic abilities have grown with her."

Stacey Honda

"I hope all of them."

Brain Ball takes first

Brain Ball Contestants: Julie Shiroishi, Lisa Itamura.

Placing first in the fifth semi-annual Brain Ball competition on Nov. 26, 1986, the four member team from Schurr added a fourth win to the school's Brain Ball record.

Team members included Lisa Itamura, Richard Katekawa, Jung S. Kim and Julie Shiroishi.

The competition took place at Montebello High School. A variety of questions were asked by Brain Ball coordinator Pat Bayha. At the end of the competition, Schurr won with a total of 19 points. In second place was Bell Gardens with 12 points, while Montebello finished third with 10 points. The team from La Puente High School also participated in the activities, but not as an official competitor.

"We were reluctant to participate against La Puente," said Itamura, "but judging from the results, La Puente definitely added to the competition and provided more of a challenge."

According to Bayha, the Brain Ball competition is sponsored each fall and spring in order to give "recognition to academically proficient students."

The questions asked were written by teachers in the Montebello Unified School District. The range of topics included American history, American literature, art, auto shop, chemistry, computers, current events, drama, economics and sociology, math, minority cultures, music philosophy, physics, presidents, religion, science and world literature.

"The questions were more diverse than we expected, but so was our team, and we were able to answer within the different topics," said Shiroishi.

Working class seniors

Are teenagers a) responsible b) hard-working c) reliable d) willing to learn e) none of the above? If you've guessed none of the above, you are quite wrong because the choices listed from a-d could describe working seniors at Schurr.

An example of a hard-working senior is Susan Kaibney. Having worked at NEA Fashions for over a year now, Kaibney has learned the responsibilities that come with working at a clothes store. Her multifarious duties ranged from working the cash register to processing the incoming shipments of clothes. At the same time, she learned to budget her time with school. Expressing what she had gained from her work experience, Kaibney commented, "I have learned the means of earning money and how to control use of it."

Charlene Tomoyasu, who also worked and attended school simultaneously, worked at "This End Up," a furniture store in the Montebello Town Center. Despite the store's name and its business motto, "Furniture you can put your feet on," Tomoyasu had a mostly normal job. Her duties included answering the phone, filing papers and helping customers choose the furniture that they wished to purchase.

Another senior who dispelled the image of the irresponsible teenager was "Avon Lady" Naomi Garcia. Like her nickname suggests, Garcia sold Avon products and "climbed the ladder of success" by acting as administrator and standing manager of the Avon office that represents South Gate. Though Garcia does not look like a typical Avon lady, she shouldered heavy responsibility handling inventory and office supplies, and solving problems of sales people. Far from minimum wage, Garcia made $10 per hour and also, like all Avon employees, had the privilege of using a company car.

Putting clothes on the rack is senior Candy Itow. In addition to her duties as business manager of Spectrum, Itow worked at Wet Seal at the Montebello Town Center.

Julie Lui stacks sweats and other apparel onto the shelves. Lui worked at Sweats 'n Surf for over a year.

Teenagers can also be innovative and self-reliant. Fitting into this description was future entrepreneur David Villamil. Villamil did not work for anybody else, but for himself. As a partner with his cousin, Villamil played DJ for others through his enterprise "Mobile Disc Jockey." As he put it, "I'm my own boss!" Villamil continued, "The best thing about my job is that I get to socialize and meet other people from different places."

However, most seniors who made the decision were not driven by the need for responsibility, but by a need for money and experience. Nora Villa, who worked as a hostess and cashier at a restaurant, commented, "I took the job because I needed spending money for my senior year." Working in her uncle's catering business, Antonia Galluzo wanted a job for "experience" and enjoyed the experiences in her job such as attending parties and weddings without an invitation.

Senior Sandra Velasquez wanted to work because she wanted both the money and the experience. Velasquez, who worked as a meter mechanic at the Southern California Gas Company, saved the money she earned for a car and for college. In her job, Velasquez learned to work with a lot of different people and learned responsibility.

Concurring with Velasquez, Kaoru Matsuo wanted to work because she wanted money and experience as well. Working as an "all-around" office worker in a dental office, Matsuo saved her money for college in the fall and hoped her experience from this job would help her land other jobs in the future. Commented Matsuo, "I think everyone should try working at least once during his high school years," and added, "It's challenging to work while going to school!!"

STUDENT LIFE

As the student attendance at Schurr increases yearly, so do its organizations around campus. According to Director of Student Activities, Glenn Sewell, "The expansion of clubs and organizations shows that many students are becoming involved."

Many Spartans were also active participants in the other organizations on campus. The California Scholarship Federation and the National Honor Society were two clubs for the academically minded. For artists, athletes, singers, speakers and writers, there were Art Ink, Varsity Club, Choir, Speech Team, and Journalism. To gain more knowledge of one's (or another's) culture, Schurr offered Asia Club, French Club, Korean Club and Spanish Club. As USB President, Michele Miyakawa explained, "We have a lot of clubs that offer a variety of interests to all the students."

Disaster area

Glaring at the camera, Dennis Dagdag objects to having his picture taken while indulging in his chili fries. In addition to being a photographer, Dagdag worked on completing layouts for the sports section.

Each year's Spectrum staff has a unique personality, and this year's staff is no exception. From radio wars to Dennis Dagdag's "Uncle Robby's food runs," the staffers, with their own idiosyncrasies, created an "entity" — one with no bounds.

At first, one would think room C-214 was a mental asylum when one set eyes upon Business Manager Candy Itow. Her hysterical laughs due to Photo Editor Shane Wolf's pestering, could convince anyone that she had "lost all her marbles." But on a more serious note, Itow, a veteran staffer, commented, "Being the business manager has given me a new way to get involved with the yearbook." As Business Manager, Itow handled all the financial affairs of Spectrum.

Copy editor Elaine Wong could always be found scribbling away at an article. "Meeting those deadlines was perhaps the worst aspect of yearbook, but what made it all worthwhile in the end was the finished product," commented Wong. She was responsible for editing all copy that went into the book.

The pressure, indeed, was immense. Those dreaded deadlines meant countless hours of overtime and plenty of headaches. Editor-in-chief Alice Chan put in double-overtime to tackle the staff's biggest obstacle — inexperience. A weary Chan, commenting on her position, said, "This has been a very difficult job on me since the majority of our staff lacked experience. However, we were able to come through." Occasionally, to release some tension, Chan, with a smirk, added, "I'd grab the nearest underclassman and strangle him to death — well, maybe not to death, but until he turned blue."

Amidst the hysteria, Adviser Linda Harris still managed to keep a positive outlook. "I think this is the strongest staff I have worked with," she remarked. From cropping pictures to writing captions to finishing layouts, the staff prevailed once again in producing yet another yearbook.

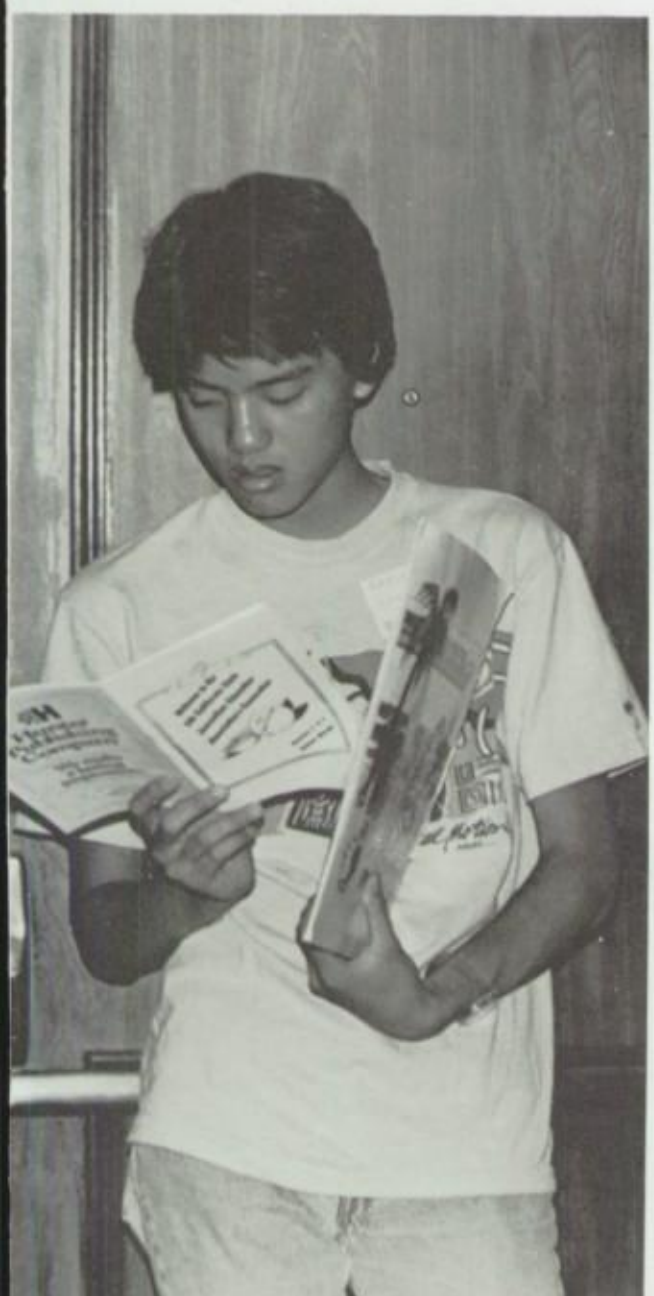
Spartan Scroll

Power of the press

Feature Editor David Lim scans the program at the Southern California Journalism Education Association conference. This conference was held at the Anaheim Marriot Hotel in November.



Every other Friday, as the bell rang signaling the end of second period, students rushed to one of the newspaper stands around campus and grabbed copies of the Spartan Scroll.

Guided by adviser Lorrie Wellenstein, the Spartan Scroll staff provided the students with quality newspapers. Remarked Wellenstein, "I am impressed with the commitment to excellence of the staff. Each issue of the paper has shown improvement in layout, design, writing, and editing. These students are striving to provide something for everyone in the Schurr community, and I believe they are succeeding."

One of the students working the long hours after school was Copy Editor Christine Oyakawa. The job of copy editor was to rewrite awkward sentences and correct improper grammar in the articles before publication. When asked how she liked her job, Oyakawa said, "It's been a lot of fun — I get to correct people without getting in trouble!" She then added, "Hopefully, I'll be able to get away with it even after I graduate!" Co-editorial Editor Angela Tsiang jokingly commented about her position by saying, "It was a dirty job, but somebody had to do it!"

The main events highlighting the year included a state convention held at Anaheim in November and in April, a national convention in Portland, Oregon. At each convention, journalists were able to exchange and gain new ideas from students of other schools and also improve their writing skills.

Journalists sold their traditional Helen Grace chocolates at Christmas, Culpepper's popcorn in the spring, and teriyaki sticks during Homecoming. The teriyaki sticks and Helen Grace candy alone netted $1450., which was used toward photo supplies and for convention fees.

Overall, the year was filled with accomplishments and memories, as News Editor Carol Sakai reminisced, "It was challenging trying to meet the deadlines. Hectic, but fun."

Journalism 1-2 students did not have the opportunity to write for the school newspaper, but still some had positive feelings about participating in it. Rasha Ayad commented, "I felt journalism would enhance my writing abilities." Vivien Tse agreed, adding, "I hope that I will be able to write for the Spartan Scroll next year."

Editor-in-chief Gail Quan summed up the year in saying, "The staff was inexperienced in that there were all new page editors, but the staff worked real hard and they did a great job during the year."

A tale of two cultures

Open to members of all ethnic groups, Spanish Club provided its members with the opportunity to explore the Spanish culture in many different ways.

Members were able to taste Mexican foods such as bunuelos, guacamole and canela. They also had the chance to see authentic types of clothing from various regions of Mexico. Commented President Jesse Campos, "I'm happy to have been able to participate in a club that shows my heritage."

During the year, the club strove not to only show finer aspects of the Spanish culture to members, but also to the rest of the school. In March the club presented "Las Tunas," a musical group from Spain, to the student body.

In addition, the club sponsored a picture booth at Homecoming, held a Christmas party with the French Club and held its annual banquet.

Other officers of the club were Anita Magallanes, vice-president; Irma Tirado, secretary; John Gallardos, treasurer; and Brenda Tsiang, publicity chairman. When asked about the club as a whole, member Emily Flores responded, "It was fun, interesting and a good way to meet new people."

Over the years, the French Club has earned the reputation of being a "caring" club by donating funds to those who are in need of money. This past year, the club had a soda sale and donated the proceeds to a California High football player who was tragically paralyzed from a football injury. The club also donated to the El Salvador earthquake victims. President Edcon Chang commented, "French Club is a nice club because what we do not only contributes to the school, but also to other people in the world."

Other fundraisers that the club sponsored included 'M&M's, stuffed animal, and gram sales. At the end of the year, book scholarships were given to senior members and a banquet was held at the end of the year.

What a Week!

With the bell ringing at 7:38 A.M. and students hurriedly rushing to their first period classes, the first of the week seemed to start off like any other one. But there was something different about the last Monday of October 1986. It could be seen by what the Spartans wore, the pep rally at lunch, the multimedia slide presentation during second period — virtually all around campus. The day marked the inception of an activity-filled and fun week — Spirit Week.

Commencing on Monday, October 27 with Toga Day, some students could be seen adorned in white, fluttering sheets, while others wore colored sheets. At both lunches, the classes competed against each other in the rigorous tug-of-war contests.

Backwards Day encouraged brave students to dress up as members of the opposite sex. Girls dressed as little boys while boys dressed as women wearing ghostly white make up, dresses, and pumps. The car stuffing contests were also held, where students squeezed into a Toyota station wagon.

An extended and combined lunch was held on Wednesday, which was Tourist/ Nerd Day. Full of creativity, students dressed up either as nerds wearing polyester sport coats and mismatched socks; or as tourists carrying cameras and sunglasses.

Thursday was Costume Day, as the school celebrated an early Halloween. Spartans were seen in unique costumes from Porky Pig to Elvira. Commented Amy Lung, "I liked the costumes. I thought they were quite original."

After long hours of planning and work, Friday finally arrived. The day for high-spirited Spartans started early as students came to school at 6:00 A.M. to decorate the buildings of their classes. Remarked Janis Tom, "The sophomore building wasn't as great as I had expected it to be, but I look forward to next year's Homecoming." "It was cool! With a little bit more participation from the students though, and it would be great!" commented Leo Rodriguez.

Ending a week of unceasing energy and enthusiasm, students prepared to yell and cheer for the final climax of that night — the Homecoming Game of 1986.

By Kathy Uyehara

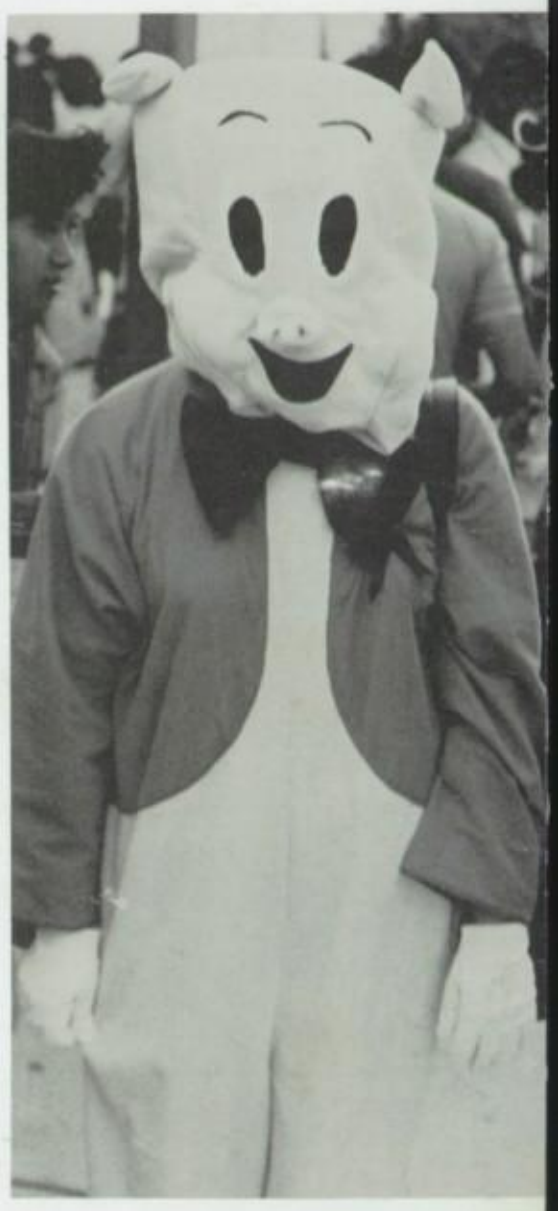
At a pep rally, the sophomore class has a chance to show their strength and unity. Unfortunately, they lost the tug-of-war contest.

As they watch the classes compete during lunch, Glenn Sabey and Rick Davis speculate which class will win the contest. Students gathered in the amphitheater to witness major events.



Dressing up as cartoon character Porky Pig is freshman Erika Martinez. Costume day was held one day prior to Halloween.

Spirit Week

Trying to endure the "pain" of popping a balloon with Butch Le Noue, Irene Valencia closes her eyes tightly while Olive Eliazo looks on. Balloon popping was a new contest held at the Homecoming pep rally.

Dressing up as a female aerobics teacher on Costume Day is photography instructor Marvin Inouye. Many students commented to him that his costume was "gross" and "disgusting."

D GINA,
WHAT'S UP? THE SKY!!
WELL, IT WAS COOL
TO KNOW YOU. TAKE
FRIENDS,
MIKE

Watching a classmate compete in a marshmallow contest, Michael Diaz eagerly attends the pep rally. Coloring one's hair green and yellow was something new this year on Spirit Day.

Fiercely attacking the ice cream to win, Homecoming Prince Manuel Gutierrez voraciously eats the "dessert" in front of him. Gutierrez was also a member of the varsity football team and Key Club.

Juniors Julie Chan, Jenny Marmelejo, and Malina Mirzaians demonstrate their class loyalty by cheering on their classmates. The juniors won the float competition this year.

Where's the Spirit?

Spirit ... where can you find it?

At a pep rally? At a Spartan football game? In the rooter bus? It's everywhere! And Spirit Week showcased this Spartan spirit.

"I like Spirit Week because I got to see a lot of people dressed up in some real funny costumes," said Joy Takahashi. On Costume Day, Spartans saw a wide variety of costumes ranging from Porky Pig to Jason of "Friday the 13th" to Misty the Mermaid. Danny Delgado commented, "I really liked the costumes, especially on Nerd Day, because it brought the spirit in us out."

The contests also showed a great deal of spirit. Isabella Casillas commented, "I felt Spirit Week was fun because I liked watching the ridiculous expressions of the people participating in the different contests during lunch." When the juniors won the tug-of-war, Gloria Reyes said, "It was really crazy!" After the seniors won the car stuff by squeezing 24 people into a Toyota, Candy Itow said, "The win was exhilarating. It showed senior superiority!"

While some people enjoyed all of the festivities, others expressed different opinions. Varsity harrier Nick Lugo said, "I thought Homecoming was great, but it was sad for me because it reminded me that I'm graduating." B.J. Huot commented, "I thought it was great, but Spirit Week only occurs once a year." Seiichi Ishikawa, surprised when asked, said, "Spirit Week has already passed this year? I have Mr. Lebow's U.S. History class, so I have little time to think of other things!"

So, Spirit Week turned out to be a great success. Spartans have shown the leading edge once again in spirit. Rah!

As Darlene Garza pins a flower on, Tom Pieratt beams with happiness. Pieratt was the third Homecoming King in the school's history.

Junior Sabrina Guerrero looks out across the school with balloons in hand from the Junior class building. Building decorations were torn down so quickly that none of the buildings were judged for the competition.

Spirit Week

Principal James Douglas looks on as freshmen participants stumble over each other after winning a tug-of-war. A competition between classes was held at lunch every day during Spirit Week.

Drill Team member Jennifer Roselund poses in her toga on the first day of Spirit Week.

Sophomore Jimmy Le Noue prepares to dive into the licorice eating contest. Two people from each class volunteered to eat licorice, starting from opposite ends, eating as quickly as possible.

Juniors Brent Naritomi and Jesse Frescas squeeze in as far as possible, trying to win the car stuffing competition. Frescas served as Junior class president and Naritomi was a member of the Speech Team.

Homecoming

Varsity cheerleaders avidly support and bolster the school's unlimited spirit as they display their familiar routines. The seniors let everyone know who was "number one" during the early morning Homecoming building decoration.

Beating the Bulldogs

"Homecoming is a time where we put an extra effort on having a good attitude about school and it's to generally have fun," said Principal James Douglas.

With this in mind, many Spartans enjoy themselves and participated in the different activities during Spirit Week. Senior Monique Fung enthusiastically stated, "This year's Homecoming was really good. I had fun watching the students compete against each other, but the best part was the football game."

Student Director of Activities Gail Quan felt that there was a lot of student participation. "The students got involved in many of the activities and we, the USB, did not encounter too many difficulties." Added USB advisor Glenn Sewell, "The interest and involvement, on the students' part, were pointed in a more positive direction compared to the past, where we've had egging and snatching of signs and statues from corporations."

To initiate the day's activities, students arrived at school at 6:00 in the morning to take part in the building decoration contest. Balloons were a common decorative element for the buildings, for they were used by both the junior and senior classes. Unfortunately, the contest was cancelled because the decorations were taken down before the actual judging could take place. Said senior Leonor Aguilera, "It wasn't fair the buildings couldn't be judged."

Students were dismissed from classes at 12:00 P.M., after which many students flocked to the amphitheater to see the crowning of the Homecoming King and class competitions. Some of the competition included an apple-bobbing contest, and a competition where students from each class tried to fill up as many people possible on a large sheet of paper. The majority of the contests, however, were eating contests: root beer drinking, marshmallow stuffing and yogurt eating. Another event held was the mummy wrap contest which the ten Homecoming finalists took part in.

Near the end of the pep rally, the crowning of the Homecoming King took place. Tom Pieratt, senior class president, was announced Homecoming King. His court consisted of Danny Cavazos, first runner-up; Manny Gutierrez, second runner-up; Joe Cypert, third runner-up; and Butch Le Noue, fourth runner-up.

At the senior park area, various organizations set up food booths serving different kinds of foods, ranging from teriyaki to pizza. A dance sponsored by the U.S.B. in the kiosk area was held at the same time.

The high point of the evening was the football game against the Burbank Bulldogs. The Varsity football gridders defeated Burbank, 18-14, ending Homecoming day with a victory.

During the half-time ceremonies, Spartans were able to see the results of the float competition. The junior class took first with their float of a hammer which conveyed the message, "Pound the Bulldogs." Junior Dana Lee, who worked on the float, commented, "The float was a way to get our class together." Also placing were the sophomores who took second place, and the seniors who took third. Another competition, the trash can decorating contest, was held during the day. The sophomore class took first, winning $25. The Mighty Spartan Band took second and Art Ink, third.

Homecoming Queen Irene Valencia was crowned at the ceremony as well. Her court was made up of Margaret Gonzales, first runner-up; Lisa Conetta, second runner-up; Darlene Garza, third runner-up; and Esther Escobar, fourth runner-up. After the game, Homecoming 1986 finally drew to a close.

Sophomores Cameron Inouye and Lynette Telles diligently work on the decorations of their building. The sophomores swept the award for the trash can decorating contest.

Forming a human pyramid, the sophomore pepsters perfect a new routine. It took long hours of practice to perform and memorize different routines.

During a pep rally, Pep Commissioner Olive Eliazo announces the scores from the last football game. As pep commissioner, Eliazo coordinated the pep rallies and made most of the announcements.

As they make fun of the rival team for the evening football game, Laura Rivas, Laura Diaz, and Michelle Duckett participate in a skit. In addition to acting out skits, pepsters promoted school spirit.

Pep Rallies
Spartan spirit

As half-asleep Spartans stumble out of first period, they are jarred awake to reality by the upbeat and lively music of the Mighty Spartan Band. Enthusiastic cheers and whistles echo throughout the amphitheater as the pepsters perform their sensational routines. This is the scene of another spirit-rousing pep rally.

The pep squads performed animated skits to entertain the crowd. "I like the skits. They could move a little faster. I like the getting together of students before the game. It gets them involved," observed Assistant Principal, Terrence Devney. Michelle Ortiz remarked, "The skits are pretty funny."

Cheerleaders presented Pep Commissioner Olive Eliazo with new and different ideas. Eliazo said that she always welcomed students' comments and thoughts. Spartans also had the opportunity to participate in the pep rallies by request.

During Spirit Week, pep rallies were expanded to include class competitions in order to liven up the enthusiasm of home team supporters and encourage a friendly rivalry between the classes. Competitions included car stuffing, licorice eating, mummy wrap, tug-of-war, costumes, and yogurt and marshmallow eating contests.

With the band providing the music and the pep squad entertaining with routines, pep rallies were a fitting atmosphere for students to show their unbounded Spartan spirit.

Practice makes perfect

"Ten-hut! ... parade rest!" Tension mounts as forty or so young girls stand ready to step off into parade competition. "Ten-hut!" The girls stand tall and proud as the parade emcee announces "The Mighty Spartan Band and Drill Team!"

The Spartanette Drill Team performed in numerous parades and in all Varsity Football games. During the summer, the team spent long hours learning and polishing routines. Spartanette Gloria Reyes commented, "Drill Team takes a lot of effort; it's a lot of fun."

Throughout the school, the girls were at school by 6:45 A.M. and practiced through first period. Commenting about early morning practice, member Jessica Alvarez said, "The hard work of zero period paid off when we got first place at the Glendale Parade."

Among the parade competitions, the Drill Team garnered first-place awards at the Days of the Verdugo Parade in Glendale, second-place at the Azusa Golden Days Parade and third-place at the Rancho Cucamonga Parade. They also performed in the Disneyland Band Festival and in the MUSD Marching Band Spectacular.

First-year advisor Sheri Allred commented about the team's performance, "I think we had a continuous level of improvement throughout the season and I'm very happy with this year's success!"

The leaders this year included Jennifer Wackeen, captain; Judy Martinez, co-captain; and Stephanie Lopez, sergeant-at-arms. When asked about the task of being captain, Wackeen answered, "It was a big responsibility and a lot of hard work. Especially since it was all new to me and we had a new adviser, but after a few practices, everything smoothed out."

Key Club continues community service

As one of the most exclusive clubs on campus, Key Club upholds its tradition by selecting its fifty members each year through an elaborate application process.

One unique characteristic of Key Club is that it is a part of the Montebello Kiwanis Club. Every Tuesday, two members of Key Club have lunch with Kiwanis members. By attending this, members had the opportunity to listen to what upcoming activities the Kiwanis had planned.

In conjunction with Kiwanis, Key Club participated in many community activities. One such activity was serving a free traditional Thanksgiving dinner to needy people at the Montebello Senior Citizens' Center. Commented member Shane Wolf, "It was a good experience, because not only were we able to serve meals to the needy people, but we were able to do something worthwhile for our community." Also for Thanksgiving, they sponsored a canned food drive.

Aside from the community involvement, Key Club held some recreational activities. On Halloween, members went to Knott's Scary Farm. In December, they decorated a Christmas tree in Montebello and a float for the Rose parade, and later in the year organized frequent social gatherings at different members' houses.

Comparing Key Club this year to when it first started three years ago, president Butch Le Noue watched Key Club grow from a "whachamacallit" to one of the more popular clubs. Vice President Butch Le Noue watched Key Club grow from a "whachamacallit" to one of the more popular clubs. Vice President Wayne Song concurred with LeNoue, saying, "Key Club is one of the most popular clubs on campus because it is dedicated to getting members who are willing to work and get involved."

Our turf

Gangs look tough because they want to get things done!

With 2800 students in the Spartan gang, Schurr is able to function quite peacefully, and the students are able to become involved in all of the "chainbusting" activities which take place. The warlords, the teachers, "whip" the students into tip-top shape in order that they can be ready for the never-ending rumble with life. In each gang are the leaders, who guide the members through the year. In student government at Schurr, the gang leaders are members of the United Student Body.

This year's leaders are Michele Miyakawa, president; Paul Chavez, vice-president; Christine Oyakawa, secretary; Heather Sarni, treasurer; Gail Quan, student director of activities; Olive Eliazo, pep commissioner; and Dana Lee, historian.

Gang leader Miyakawa said, "We accomplished many things this year. Principal James Douglas commented that this was the best Homecoming that he had ever seen." Oyakawa agreed, "Homecoming was the best organized and the most successful in all of the years at Schurr."

Besides Homecoming, the USB did many other things to promote school spirit and to better help the community.

Inter-club meetings were more frequent in order to create a settling atmosphere, and Miyakawa proposed a bill to make suicide counseling a mandate in the district. Also, the USB changed the constitution in order to better the atmosphere for future gang leaders.

Quan said, "The USB planned many activities to promote school spirit throughout the year. Although some activities didn't work out, the majority were very successful. The whole student body was very spirited and receptive, not just during Homecoming but year round. That spirit helped us a great deal."

Fashion

On the first day of the year, Spartans asked themselves that one never-ending question, "What shall I wear today?" For most Spartans, it's whatever is washed. However, others faced that terrible dilemma when they hit the closet. "Well, I think I'll wear that denim jacket, or the real sexy boots that I just bought. But that won't go well with my purple nail polish!"

But as the school year progressed, mothers began to wash their kid's clothes, and late one night an accident happened ... "The bleach jumped in the washer!" Mom said to her distraught kids. And the rest is jeanial history. Faded jeans were the latest trend making a comeback. To complement the jeans were denim jackets, which gave the dresser a sense of normalcy.

Boys Don't Cry started a trend with their song "I Wanna Be a Cowboy." Spartans showed their "Yahoo!" spirit by dressing up in their western outfits with chambray shirts and skirts. Westerners also can't be without their bolo ties and their leather and suede boots. Girls' boots also came back into fashion. They came in many styles and colors, with buckles, fringe, and cut-outs being the "in" trimmings.

Sweaters were another fashion. Some people wore printed sweaters to make their statement, while others discreetly stayed "hip" with their uni-colored sweaters. The most popular sweaters had wild designs and off-tinted stripe colors. They were economical, too, as they were made from material that could last a lifetime.

One lasting fashion trend was company-name-printed shirts. Popular names included T & C Designs, Esprit, Maui and Sons, and Guess. The names signified togetherness with others, and a feeling of being "inside the fashion world."

Some fashions are passing fancies, while others last for a long time. Now Spartans have an easier time, and when asking themselves "What shall I wear today?" they answer, "The Spartan look!"

Varsity Pepsters

High energy

It is a scene from a Varsity football game. They chant, "Raise your hand" as they shakily gesticulate their arms into the air. "Stomp your feet. Mighty Spartans can't be beat," and the Schurr High crowd is again inspired by the Varsity pepsters to an uplifting mood.

Being a pepster was definitely not all fun and games. In addition to their sixth period practice time, they had to stay long hours after school in order to perfect their routines and chants. Remarked songleader Debbie Kishimoto, "Becoming a pepster was fun because of all the new experiences and friends I make, but at the same time it was a lot of hard work."

The pepsters also had to meet during the summer to practice their routines. These summer practices lasted from six to eight in the evening, held at least once a week. "We worked hard but it was also a lot of fun. We have fun together," commented varsity pepster Debbie Jatib.

Last summer, from July 22-25, the pepsters attended the U.S.A. (United Spirit Association) camp in Santa Barbara. The cheerleaders learned new routines and cheers. Contests were held pitting the schools against one another for trophies and ribbons. The Schurr Spartan pep squad won individual superior and excellent achievement awards, along with the spirit stick, which is the highest symbol of a squad's unity and spirit. The varsity cheer and songleaders received trophies, and the mascots earned medallions.

Besides performing at football games and pep rallies, the pep squads also performed at the Montebello Town Center in October and competed against top high schools in the Magic Mountain high school competition in March.

At a pep rally before the Duarte game, cheerleaders Norma Torres, Sandra Conejo, and Esther Escobar electrify the crowd. The cheerleaders worked hard on their routines and performed a variety of presentations and skits to entertain the students.

As she raises her arms, Esther Escobar gives a cheer. On game days, pepsters often dressed in football uniforms.

A new experience

The beginnings of a new experience for the girls of the underclass pep squads started with each girl making new friends and taking on new responsibilities. Throughout the year, the girls encountered victories and defeats, yet that was what brought them closer. Said Lupe Rios, "I was very happy and proud of myself when I learned I had made the squad. In addition, I looked forward to all the school and cheerleading activities."

Their spirit and energy were evident at all football, basketball, and wrestling matches. The pepsters showed their support by rallying for the Spartans and giving words of encouragement to the athletes. Along with choreographing new moves, the underclass pepsters participated in routines with the Varsity pepsters.

A tradition that was passed down each year by the pepsters were secret pals. Each girl randomly picked a name and exchanged gifts with her pal on birthdays, game days, and special events. In April, the secret pals were revealed to everyone. "Having a secret pal has been fun. I believe that having a secret pal brings all of us closer to one another," commented Diane Casillas.

Fundraisers were held to help pay for uniforms and to help with some other expenses. Breakfast and raffle tickets, buttons and pom poms were also sold. Early in the year, the girls had a car wash and bake sale. Another activity the pepsters participated in was a Mother's Day fashion show. Here, the pepsters modeled in trendy clothing for the mothers to see. Other members sold tickets for the show.

All in all, the underclass pepsters had a year of active participation by promoting school spirit and encouraging the student body.

By April Takemoto

Giving it her all to promote spirit within the crowd, Sylvia Saenz provokes excitement and a sense of pride for Schurr High School. Freshmen pepsters were guided by veteran members of pep squads.

Freshman pepster Roseann Cordero performs a fervent routine to psyche up the crowd. Cordero was one of the many talented pepsters who was dedicated enough to stay on the squad.

Band continues success

"This is one of the best groups I have ever seen in the history of this school," commented Band Director Leonard Narumi about the success of the Mighty Spartan Band in parade competition. The marching band garnered first place at the Days of Verdugo Parade in Glendale, first at the Azusa Golden Parade and Sweepstakes at the Rancho Cucamonga Parade.

The band's outstanding showmanship was achieved by struggling through a laborious pre-season, practice before school four days a week and a weekly Monday night rehearsal. "Band helps to discipline ourselves, but most of all — it's fun! Even though it takes up much of my time, it is well worth it," commented junior Darin Eng.

The band was made up of an auxiliary unit and seven sections: baritones, clarinets, flutes, percussion, trombones, trumpets and tubas. "No matter how good or how bad the band and auxiliary unit look, they are still number one in my book," commented auxiliary unit captain Laura Gonzales.

The band was led by a cabinet which included six officers: Christine Oyakawa, chairperson; Michelle Duckett, vice-chairperson; Ruben Avitia, public relations manager; Julie Lui, business manager; Terri Kim, uniform manager; and Maralee Ransom, secretary-treasurer. Additional cabinet positions were assigned to Drum Majors Avitia, Fred Calzada, and David Wong.

Two representatives were also delegated from the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes. They were Emilio Lazarin and Lisa Oshiro, freshmen; Carrie Cunningham and Eric Gomez, sophomores; and Laura Gonzales and Michelle Mendez, juniors.

"Serving as Senior Drum Major and Public Relations manager was hard work and very rewarding. I take pride in the band because when we get on that street, I have this sudden feeling of confidence which makes me feel glad to be a part of it!" said Avitia. "From the Christmas Ball to Hawaii we've done it all. I'm really glad that I've been able to take part in it," added Oyakawa.

Another division of band was the Pep Band. It was made up of selected members because of the limited space. The Pep Band's function was to entertain crowds at pep rallies and to play at basketball games.

Standing erect upon hearing the whistle, Spartan band members Ramon Meneses and Jack Wang await their orders. The Mighty Spartan Band participated in many community parades, including the Montebello Royal Parade.

Third-year band member Andy Gold confidently poses for the camera. Besides playing the tuba, Gold had also been a guitarist for Stage Band.

Giving their all at their last Homecoming, senior band members Rafina Petrescu, Corinne Coleman, Troy Tamanaha, Marie Munguia, Ruben Avitia and Melisande Maytorena take great pride in supporting their class. All were involved in the decorating and sponsoring of this year's Christmas Ball.

Pep Band members Eric Krondak, Ramon Meneses, and Melisande Maytorena patiently await their cue. The saxophone section had been one of the largest and most vigorous sections of the band.

New tunes

For some time, the issue of adding an orchestra to the school curriculum had been discussed. As of this year, it has been done.

Led by director Becky Jackman, the new orchestra currently consists only of girls. Each member plays either the violin or viola with the exception of Erika Martinez, who plays the cello.

Commented Jackman, "It was hard to get started. There was no music and school instruments were too small for them to use. Mr. Narumi has been very helpful, though, in providing rehearsal space and the use of Schurr instruments."

Senior orchestra member Grace Cheng said, "I'm really glad I joined it. Those of us who play a string instrument are really happy that an orchestra has been formed." Junior Judith Martinez remarked, "The class is really a lot of fun. We all work well together and Miss Jackman really puts a lot of her time and effort into helping us."

The new orchestra performed at two convalescent homes and attended the Southern California Band and Orchestra Association's Music Festival in the spring.

A perfect year

A singer will have sung a perfect song by having hit all the right notes the first time around. Following this analogy, the A Cappella and Beginning Choirs hit all the right notes by performing at many memorable music events for the school and others in the community.

Throughout the year, the Beginning Choir and the A Cappella Choir, which was for more advanced singers, kept busy with activities such as the Christmas Holiday Program in December, a choir retreat at Arrow Bear in February and various festivals held in the spring. Other activities the choir sponsored were a Broadway Musical Review, the auditions for which were open to the whole school, and the Spring "Pops" Concert.

Commented new choir instructor Linda Hammontree, "I've been thrilled and excited with the students here since the first day of school. I found them motivated, cooperative, pleasant to work with, besides being talented."

When asked what they liked about choir, members had positive comments. "It's great. When you start singing and you know you're doing good, it gives you a great feeling," said A Cappella member Leo Rodriguez. Julie Pang expressed her feelings about Hammontree. "She's a great teacher because she listens and she knows what she's doing. I look forward to her class a lot . . . "

The Vocal Ensemble, a small choral group, was comprised of select singers from the two other choirs. They participated in the Christmas Holiday Program, performed for the Monterey Park Women's Club, and combined with the Bell Gardens choir to sing for a festival in Santa Barbara.

Four Vocal Ensemble members had the honor of being in the All Southern California High School Honor Choir, which is made up of the most exceptional singers in the Southland. The members were Michelle Duckett, Leo Lemus, Richard Oda and Hannah Yu.

While Marie Mungia serves another customer, Connie Luna gives Monique Bermudez a hand with the brownies. Selling home baked goodies was a popular fundraiser.

Friends Forever

Sharing was an important part of Campus Life. Students had discussions of problems they had, and worked together through prayer and advice to help solve these problems. Senior Irene Valencia commented, "I like being in Campus Life because everyone cares about each other, and they get together to pray about each other's problems."

With the guidance of adviser Joe Walker, students met weekly. These meetings involved fellowships and Bible studies. One major goal of Campus Life was to build unity among its members and interested visitors. At every meeting, discussions dealt with a particular topic, and often games were played, encouraging involvement from the members.

Throughout the year, Campus Life held several fundraisers which included bake sales. These sales helped pay for a yearly Christmas party. In addition, funds were spent to purchase booklets on suicide, which were used in a suicide seminar held in February.

The purpose of Friends of the Library was to promote the library by sponsoring club activities.

As their most profitable and popular fundraiser, the club sold pepperbellies twice a month at lunches. The year was also filled with various activities and events, including a Christmas party in December and an essay contest in February.

Plans and decisions were made by the officers. Treasurer Roland Kawakami said, "This being my first year as an officer made me realize how demanding the job can be." Added President Hoang Ea, "Of all the clubs I've been involved in, the members of this club are the most dedicated, able, and willing to participate in club activities."

An 'ultimate' event

As couples arrived hand in hand and dressed in formal attire, Spartans got ready to attend the big winter event — the Christmas Ball. Candlelight, gift boxes, and Christmas trees transformed the empty aura of Byer's gymnasium to one full of Christmas Spirit.

The ball, which traditionally had been sponsored by Girls' League, was sponsored by the Mighty Spartan Band for the first time. Early last year, U.S.B. enacted a new rule which limited the number of dances sponsored by any organization to one. Thus, the Girls' League tradition was broken.

To make sure things ran smoothly, a Ball Committee was formed by band members. Commenting on the winter formal, committee member Gail Quan said, "Everyone at the ball looked very nice. It was difficult setting a mood and having everyone forget that they were in the gym all dressed up."

As the Spartans rocked the evening away to the musical entertainment of Ultimate Expressions, tension mounted as the couples waited for the high point of the night — the coronation. Crowned as queen was Christine Oyakawa. Her court consisted of senior princess April Ortiz; junior princess Dee Dee Gareza; sophomore princess Cathy McKinney; and freshman princess Wendy Chan. Winning the titles of Mr. and Mrs. Claus were senior John Chee and freshman Suzanne Wong.

Chaperone Alicia Lloreda enjoyed the ball thoroughly. She commented, "It was a very pleasant way to begin the Christmas season. Seeing everyone smiling, dancing, and having a good time was a happy occasion."

Scholars in service

As one of the largest academic clubs on campus, the California Scholastic Federation, had an activity-filled year under its motto "Scholarship for Service."

The club was most noted for offering voluntary services to students who needed help in academic areas. CSF members tutored in subjects ranging from Math 1-2 to AP Physics. "Our tutoring program this year has been more efficient. We have been able to provide everyone that wants a tutor with a tutor thanks to CSF members and non-members," said CSF Vice President Jason Ong.

CSF officers this year included Gail Quan, president; Ong, vice president; Shirley Hom, secretary; Hoang Ea, treasurer; and Kaoru Matsuo, historian. In their respective order, the senior, junior, sophomore representatives were Sal Pastor, Carol Sakai and Susan Wong. Advisers were Ella Wing and Robert Vrablik.

During the year, the club had a pepperbellies sale at Homecoming, a carnation sale at Christmas, and a Hershey's chocolate sale in March. Money earned went toward expenses for the Magic Mountain trip on CSF Recognition Day and for senior scholarships.

In order to become eligible for the club, students had to join at the beginning of each semester on the basis of the previous semester grades. The grades had to add up to 10 points, excluding PE (A=3 points, B=1 point and C=0 point. Students enrolled in Honor/AP classes earned 2 points for a B).

For CSF Life Members, seniors earned membership in CSF for at least four semesters. As a CSF Life Bearer, seniors were recognized for this by being allowed to wear a yellow cord at graduation.

Getting involved

Back for their third year, the National Honor Society (NHS) again displayed a commitment to community service. The club, made up of honor students, fulfilled its role as a service organization by visiting a senior citizens' home and entertaining the elderly for a day in November.

The organization also held fundraisers throughout the year. Among those were a Homecoming punch booth, a bake sale, and a successful pizza sale.

Admittance into the club required a grade point average of at least 3.5 and evidence of leadership and involvement on campus and in the community. Then applicants were voted in by a panel of faculty members. Commented member Angela Tsiang, "It was a great honor being in NHS."

Officers were David Lim, president; Kaoru Matsuo, vice-president; Angela Tsiang, secretary; Sal Pastor, treasurer; and Melissa Chung, historian.

Said Lim, "I think we did well this year in terms of community activity because we are trying to focus more on service projects because that is what the club is for."

Continuing to provide community assistance was a job fulfilled by Interact Club. The club sponsored two blood drives and a canned food drive for needy people in the community. Members also visited with the Hill Haven Convalescent Home senior citizens to develop friendships. Commented secretary Carylanne Miyano, "Being in Interact has enabled me to serve the community, and by being an officer I have found it enjoyable."

Interact consisted of thirty-one members and is affiliated with the Rotary International Club. Through the leadership of Wayne Evans, president; Carrie Lew, vice-president; Carylanne Miyano, secretary; and Eric Venegas, treasurer, Interact carried things out smoothly, concluded adviser Mike Lopez. "Although Interact was more involved with the community this year, the group itself was less enthusiastic."

True excitement

Speech team, with its 25 members, garnered 60 trophies in its first 10 tournaments, placed first out of 23 schools at the Crenshaw Invitational, ninth out of 51 schools at the U.C.L.A. National Invitational, second out of 16 schools at the Gahr High School Fall Varsity, and second out of 30 schools at the CSU Fullerton Invitational. It was accomplishments like this that made speech exciting!

Members devoted the summer to speech and debate camps so that they could polish their speaking abilities for the season. They had to spend months researching, writing, memorizing, and practicing "in front of walls," while keeping their G.P.A.'s above 3.0 in their classes to maintain team membership.

With such dedication and success, the team deserved greater school support, according to adviser Peter Fong, president Julie Shiroishi, vice president Naomi Chan, secretary Anna Chan, and treasurer Lisa Itamura. Itamura lamented that the cost of registration for a typical invitational tournament was about $200, not including travel fees to tournament locations like San Diego and Fullerton. Itamura explained, "It is very trying financially for most of the competitors. Because of the cost, we cannot compete at some of the better tournaments.

Shiroishi deplored that there were only two freshman team members. "We need people from the underclass," she announced. "You sacrifice your weekends and you get up early, but after the day is over you feel like you've done something important, not because you are required to, but because you wanted to." "I joined not because of the credit, but because I wanted to be able to speak well," Itamura explained. Naomi Chan admitted that speech made life more pleasurable and "it keeps my sanity." Commenting on the potential rewards of speech, Chan said, "If you want to build your character, if you talk and no one will listen, if you think you have what it takes — join the speech team!"

New clubs on campus

Joining the many clubs on campus was the Chinese Club. This group had some special goals they set out to accomplish during the year.

While they held fundraisers, went on field trips, and had parties like other clubs, the Chinese Club was the only one which gave a party on January 29, Chinese New Year. According to their president, Alexandria Yiu, "It is one of our goals to preserve our Asian culture and customs."

Another newly-formed club was International Club.

"I asked Mr. Witt to help me start the club because I wanted to share my experience concerning communism in my country, Cambodia, with others," said Hoang Ea, club founder.

The officers of this first year club included Erica Tam, president; Judy Low, vice president; and Charles Tam, secretary. Mr. Walter Witt served as the adviser.

As the purpose of the International Club is to encourage students to share their past experiences concerning their different cultural backgrounds, the group held various fundraisers to go to such places as Olvera Street and Little Tokyo. There, students were able to appreciate their own culture, as well as a taste of someone else's.

Talent Showmanship

As the year began, nobody could anticipate the success Art Ink would eventually accomplish.

The club was led by Lesli Agcaoili, president; Jason Agena, vice-president; co-secretaries Pat Pluegboonyachai and Alene Sen; Eileen Hahn, treasurer; David Chow, historian; and Judith Jurasek, adviser.

Members worked tirelessly the whole year to raise money for their club. Pizza, won tons, button and bake sales were just some of the fundraisers held, and the money made went to charity as well. Art Ink donated $300 to a Cal High football player, Richard Ruiz, who was injured during a game and became paralyzed from the neck down.

Art Ink was open to all students, as Sen emphasized, "New members are always welcome, whether they are artistic or not."

When asked to comment on Art Ink, Chow exclaimed, "Being in the club was a lot of fun!" This was a feeling shared by every member throughout the club.

TAKE ONE, SCENE ONE! Act One readjourned for its second year as Schurr High's drama club. Officer Anna Chan remarked that the club's main objective "is to help students with the desire to act and build their potential to its apex."

Act One was formed and run only by students, without any adult supervision. Officer Mark Padilla remarked, "I feel, as an officer, that I discipline and try to keep each individual motivated."

The group is not strictly a play-production club. According to Chan and Padilla, the goal of Act One is not to create plays but to produce fine actors and actresses.

"Act One is more like a class than a club. All of us are really dedicated and disciplined. We have all learned a great deal," commented club member Alain Valencia.

To learn by action

The Vocational Industrial Club of America (V.I.C.A.) is a national organization for high schools to share and further their interests in industrial arts.

Members travelled to Sacramento for the annual V.I.C.A. Skills Olympics. There, members competed in many fields including architecture, industrial drafting, electronics, automotive repair, and metal.

To pay the expenses of the trip, the club sold candy apples and also used the profits gained from the soda machines in the shop area.

Said electronics instructor Carroll Green, "V.I.C.A. is the main organization that rewards the excellence of students in industrial education."

Once again Computer Club encouraged students to become computer-literate. Although formed four years ago, the club has still strived to educate, facilitate, and promote the use and enjoyment of computers.

The club held demonstrations of the newest (and not so new) hardware and software. They invited guest speakers to talk about computers and also went on field trips. One of their field trips included going to "Photon," a futuristic game where players purposely shot each other with laser effect guns. In addition, fundraisers such as a Homecoming button sale helped defray costs to attend trips, and to buy new computer equipment.

President Robert Savin remarked about computers in general, "Computers are so easy to program, I don't understand why more peope don't use them." Yet adviser Bobby Smith summed up the true use of computers, "It is a tool; an extension. It's all in how you use it."

Female members only

With an exclusively female membership, Girls' League is one of the largest clubs on campus because every girl on campus is a member. Since only a limited number of members can participate, each class votes to determine representatives to carry out club activities.

Members were active in sponsoring various activities. "The activities we did were fun and gave us girls a sense of unity," commented secretary Sun Ng.

At Homecoming, the club had bake sales, sold mums and served root beer floats. They sold Val-o-grams in February and sponsored the Sadie Hawkins Dance in March. Some of the money earned was used to grant scholarships to seniors based on their need and participation in the club.

The club also provided opportunities for each member and her mother and father to get together at a fun activity. In the fall, they held a Father-Daughter Laker Night. The annual Mother-Daughter Brunch was held in May. "We are one of the most active clubs on campus," proudly remarked adviser Mary Ann Kaestner.

"I enjoyed being a part of Girls' League. It gave me a chance to meet and work with many new friends," remarked Pamela Yee.

From debates to state conventions

"JSA is an interesting club. I do not think there is another one like it on campus," said secretary Angela Tsiang.

Junior Statesmen is a national organization of high school students who are concerned with the world and the future. The Schurr Chapter of Junior State was led by president Lisa Itamura, vice president Karen Tse, secretary Angela Tsiang, treasurer Alice Chan, debate director Julie Shiroishi, Angeles region representatives Paul Nimitsilpa and Alfred Li.

For their third straight year, JSA has held a mini-conference in conjunction with Whitney High School. At this mini-conference, students from all over Southern California attended to discuss the Junior State elections and to participate in debates, simulations, thought talks and other convention activities. Other chapter activities included a bowl-a-thon, bake sales, and chapter debates. Commenting on the mini-conference, President Itamura stated, "Our conference was a lot easier to plan as compared to the last two years because we had a lot of experience and new ideas."

On the regional level, the chapter attended regional functions such as the regional conferences. The regional representatives attended the legislature meetings at which bills regarding Junior State were voted upon. At regional functions, statesmen met with other students from all over the Los Angeles area.

On the state level, the chapter participated in the Fall Overnight — a two-day, one-night stay in a luxurious hotel to discuss current Junior State concerns and ideas. At the state conferences, students learned about Junior State, the organization, and the political opportunities it has to offer. At Spring State, an extended version of the Fall Overnight, members participated in convention activities and elected their leaders for next year.

Reflecting upon the year's activities, Itamura concluded, "This year was different because we had a lot of new people and I think that this helped make our JSA chapter more diverse." She added, "I hope that next year, there will be enough interested students to keep the chapter going."

A magical moment

The moment has arrived. She slowly glides down the aisle with her satin robe flowing behind as if a dream has come true. But this is not a dream, it is reality. Senior Irene Garcia was crowned AAMAS (American Association for the Advancement of Mexican-American Students) Queen representing Schurr at the AAMAS Queen Coronation Dance held at Montebello High School on January 10.

Also representing Schurr were the six AAMAS Princesses, Michelle Jones, Connie Villa, Jeanette Odom, Susan Tejeda, Lisa Gutierrez, and Linda Lopez.

Selection of the Queen and the court was based on the number of raffle tickets sold by each contestant. Garcia also received a scholarship, while senior contestants were able to apply for AAMAS scholarships.

Other candidates who participated included Leah Perez, Miranda Calvin, Naomi Garcia, Cecilia Rabazo, Teresa Gaspar, Elizabeth Ramos, Lizabeth Renova, Patricia Mollinedo, Leticia Corral, and Lupe Rios.

When asked how she felt about being AAMAS Queen, Garcia replied, "I was excited, surprised and nervous about being crowned Queen."

Asian culture

Although Korean Club was organized last year, this year's inexperienced officers and members had a busy year to plan for. Under leadership of President Jung Kim, Vice-President James Kim and Treasurer Lynda Kim, the Korean Club managed to sponsor numerous activities and fundraisers throughout the year. The fundraisers included donut sales, Halloween Grams, candy sales, and pizza sales.

The club officially began the year with a summer beach party, which was held at Huntington Beach, followed by the Disneyland trip, held during Christmas vacation. Then Korean Club donated money to the needy after finals in January and in June. The club also sponsored a semi-annual Miniature Golf Tournament and awarded the winners with trophies at a pizza luncheon.

Aside from the activities above, the Korean Club had an ice-skating day and participated in additional activities sponsored by the Korean Youth Center (KYC) of Los Angeles.

President Kim commented, "The club became more independent this year. We had many activities with the help of KYC."

As one of the largest organizations with approximately 100 members, Asia Club kept busy with various fundraisers, field trips and Homecoming activities.

The purpose of the club was to bring people of all races together to learn more about the Asian culture through club sponsored activities.

This year's officers included: Jodi Yamabe, president; Tiffany Kobayashi, vice-president; Brent Natritomi, secretary; and Keith Suzuki, treasurer.

When asked what he liked about being in the club, Steve Hong commented, "It is very entertaining and helps you get acquainted with social activities."

Friendship and togetherness also played a big part in the club, as Kim Hirano remarked, "I like the end of the year activities — where everyone gets together and goes somewhere." Yamabe concluded, "I enjoy meeting new friends and getting to know old ones better."

Working together

Exploring the Mojave Desert and Death Valley, the Photography Club continued to discover the fundamentals of photography throughout the world. As a follow up to last year's European expedition, the club spent a day in Ransburg and a weekend in Death Valley taking pictures.

However, to be a member of the Photo Club, one must be enrolled in a photography class offered on campus. "Photo Club is put together by students who are interested in learning more about photography," remarked club president, Suzy Valles. Other club officers include Kelly Shin, vice-president; Patty Perez, secretary; Vivian Garcia, treasurer and Marvin Inouye, adviser.

NEWS FLASH:

There has just been a high speed collision on the Pomona Freeway. Two are reported dead and one is in critical condition. The three teens were under the influence of alcohol.

This report was only a dramatization. One of SADD's goals was to prevent accidents like this.

Although Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) was only established on campus last year, the organization has had a tremendous impact in influencing students not to drink.

SADD is an ongoing program designed to better educate students about drinking and driving. SADD is not only a club, but also a part of the Driver's/Career Education and Health and Safety classes. Students in these classes receive a Contract for Life, which is a contract to be signed by the teenager to call for advice and transportation after he has been drinking, and the parents agree to go get him with no argument at that time.

The activities organized by SADD are beneficial to the whole school. Keychains with their slogan, "Friends don't let friends drive drunk," are sent out to students on their 16th birthday.

Adviser Varian Griggs stressed, "Don't drink and drive. Don't drink, period!"

Spartan athletes who have earned a varsity letter formed the Varsity Club for its twelfth year.

"The purpose of the club is to familiarize varsity lettermen with other lettermen from other sports," remarked varsity basketball player Butch LeNoue.

Under the direction of Jennifer Zubiate, president; Charise Alvarez, vice-president; Kim Brodie, secretary; LeNoue, treasurer; and Ron Pruitt, adviser, the Varsity Club sponsored several fundraisers, including a dunking booth and a sno-cone sale.

As traditionally sponsored by the Varsity Club, the annual Donkey Basketball event had to be cancelled due to the liquidation of the company supplying the donkeys. "Donkey basketball was the best part of Varsity Club, but all in all it was still a fun year for us," commented third year member James Rodriguez.

Zubiate also added, "With the dues collected, the profits from the dunking booth and the sno-cone sale, Varsity Club members received Magic Mountain tickets in honor of the club's prosperous year."

Enter into another world where imagination is reality and the impossible is possible ... We have briefly wandered into the minds of Gaming Masters members.

During the year, members met every week to play role-playing games like Dungeons & Dragons and Talisman. To play these games, members incorporated imagination and creativity to assume the roles of fictional characters which have special powers and abilities. When the club played D & D, the club was separated into two groups, each led by Brent Lindrum and Larry Yao.

One of the major activities for the members was attending the Orion Convention, where members competed against players from other places. To offset club expenses, members participated in many fundraisers. The club set up a booth displaying different games during football Homecoming and had a very successful enchilada sale during Basketball Homecoming.

President Lindrum stressed, "The main goal of our club is to have fun with the games we like to play."

Leashing the bulldogs

And then there were three ... (sung to the tune of Ten Little Indians) Five little, five little, five little Doggies; four little, four little, four little Dog-gies; three little, three little, three little Doggies were be-ea-eaten by Schurr.

Basketball Homecoming was filled with tempting root beer floats, hard-to-beat pizza, and the famous game against Burbank. Burbank was leading 10 points after the first quarter, and it seemed that Spartan Basketball Homecoming was "begging" for some spirit. But as the game progressed, the Bulldogs started to play dead. Five of the eight Burbank players fouled out by the end of the game. Cager John Hotta clinched the victory by making eleven free throws in the final quarter. The final score was 77-66.

But there were other things besides the game. An extended lunch held in the afternoon brought students together to see the elegant and glamorous "Lost and Found" fashion show. Various clubs also set up booths where they sold various food items and goods to the students.

Following the victorious game, tension mounted as the Homecoming court was announced. Representing the freshmen were Susie Kim and P.K. Taing; the sophomores, Colette Kovacs and Maurice Gutierrez; the juniors, Dana Lee and Jesse Frescas; and the seniors, Jodi Yamabe and Mike Tamashiro. For another consecutive year, the seniors were chosen as Homecoming king and queen. Yamabe and Tamashiro were crowned by last year's king and queen, Dean Inouye and Linda Yamashita.

Commenting on Homecoming, USB Student Director of Activities Gail Quan said, "There was just as much participation for the activities as there was at football Homecoming, and the basketball players got the respect that they deserved for their determination."

Ending the evening was a dance held in the small gym.

Success, yes. Just like the dittie, "Five Little Doggies."

After their crowning, Mike Tamashiro and Jodi Yamabe beam with happiness. Seniors were crowned as homecoming king and queen for the last three years.

Finding time to live it up at the Homecoming dance is Roselia Garcia. Freshman Garcia was a pepster this year.

Basketball Homecoming

Beating his Burbank opponent, Paul Chavez puts his two points in the basket. Burbank tied Schurr for the Foothill League Championship.

Before the match against Burbank, Butch Le Noue runs out to the court. Le Noue was the treasurer of the Varsity Club.

At the suicide prevention seminar, Thomas A. Wolf talks to parents and students about suicide. The seminar was held in response to the tragedy of a Schurr student's death.

Weary workmen take a rest after long hours. Building extra classrooms will cost the Board of Education of Montebello Unified School District $18,000 per year for the next six years.

Cautiously guiding the craneworker is another workman. The bungalows were in use from Feb. 1.

New Bungalows/Suicide Seminar

Principal James Douglas introduced the speakers of the suicide prevention meeting. Speakers discussed signs to look for in a suicidal person.

Workmen carefully move a bungalow between the guidance center and B building. By adding more classrooms, some of the teachers did not have to travel from class to class during the day.

Two "milestones"

The statistics are staggering, the community is scared, yet people still commit suicide. With over two-hundred people in attendance, the second suicide prevention seminar was held on February 2, 1987, in the Schurr High School Auditorium. The seminar, SUICIDE: You Can Be A Lifesaver, was in response to the tragedy of a Schurr student's death. The seminar was sponsored by the Center for Community Counseling (CCC), the Montebello Police Dept., Schurr High School, Montebello High School, and Bell Gardens High School.

The seminar, led by Thomas A. Wolf, Director of CCC, had special speakers Carol Davis, and Holly Byrd, counsellors at CCC. One Schurr student said, "It was informative, and helped me to understand where people are coming from when they think about commiting suicide." The seminar showed signs to look for in a suicidal person, as well as offered ways to help these people.

An important part of the evening was when students, parents, and administrators were divided into peer groups and allowed to ask questions, and some even offered advice. Said a Schurr student, "When it seems like everything's going wrong, if you look, you'll see there's a friend waiting to talk to you. You're never alone." Another student said, "It was encouraging to me to see so many concerned people show up, not just students, but teachers, parents, and administrators."

The problem of overcrowding was also apparent. On the first day of school, many of the students complained, "There's no place to sit!" There was definitely a problem on our campus.

In order to alleviate this, three new bungalows were brought onto campus. "To meet the increasing number of students and to facilitate them appropriately, these classrooms were added," said Principal James Douglas, "This was the alternative to year-round school or the five period-a-day schedule, where students would have only five classes a day."

Located in the park area between the Guidance Center and B-Building, the bungalows were occupied by the coordinator of MUSD career education, William Whitmore, and the math classes of Mike Hurtado and Julian Olague.

These rooms did have some advantages over the regular classrooms in that they are soundproof and air conditioned. They are also safer because of being earthquake proof.

Concluded Douglas, "I believe that these bungalows were a tremendous help for the teachers and the students."

By Shane Wolf, Roland Kawakami, and Lynda Kim

Margaret Veszpeller converses with a visitor about the seminar. Veszpeller was one of the counselors at CCC.

As they wave their "official flag," sophomore gridders show their spirit on Homecoming Day. During the week, many rallies took place to show who was number one.

Showing how "touristy" they can be are Eileen Chun and Danté Nuño. Tourist and Nerd Day was just one of the spirit days that took place during Homecoming week.

UNDERCLASS

Meeting new obstacles and experiences each school year, the underclassmen have shown fortitude in climbing the ladder to senior year.

For juniors, most found this a difficult year academically. Commented junior Eric Bhakla, "This year was really hard. It took a lot of effort to get through it."

Sophomores also had many new opportunities. This was the year tenth graders took driver's education and the Hart test. Stephanie

Freshmen had the task of adjusting to high school. Shoji Nakatani felt "the work at high school was harder than junior high work."

As the year progressed, underclassmen learned to adjust to the challenges of their school year and to overcome them. This ability to override new quests and challenges gave the underclassmen of 1987 the Leading Edge.

By Roland Kawakami

On the bus ride to the L.A. Theater Center, Veronica De Alba can't believe the great song she is hearing on her walkman. Mr. Barrett's World Literature class took many field trips during the year to see plays.

LEADING Edge

The class of '88

"The reason why we are the best is because everyone works as a team," commented class of '88 Vice President Rick Davis. He added, "Our advisers, Mr. Larson and Mr. Rios . . . they're simply the best! They were supportive of all our activities."

Throughout the year, the Junior Class was busy in school activities. During Homecoming, the class decorated B-building and placed first in the float competition. The float featured a big hammer that smashed a bulldog, which was the mascot of the opposing team.

The Junior Class sponsored fundraisers such as pizza sales and sno-cone sales and sponsored a Valentine's Day Dance. The funds were used for the Junior-Senior Prom held at the Irvine Marriot Hotel. Commented President Jesse Frescas, "Our main goal was to give the seniors an unforgettable prom."

Cabinet member Stephanie Tanaka, chairperson of the Prom Committee, felt that "this year, we've done a lot more than in the past." An example of this was how the Junior Class helped raise money for Richard Ruiz, a student from California High, who was paralyzed from the neck down by a football injury.

Class Secretary David Liu remarked, "At first, it was hard to be accepted as the new officers, but eventually, we did reach our goals."

One more year

For three years, the class of '88 has been looked down upon by upperclassmen. But no more! Juniors will bring a sense of self-confidence to Schurr next year, but with it will come a lot of pressure. Real life is almost at hand with SAT tests, college applications and job hunting starting to take place. As juniors got ready for their "glory-filled" year, some expressed their views on what their senior year will be like.

"Most of us 'juniors' would expect to feel the pressure of finding the right college, but some of us will expect our senior year to be one long party."

Barbara Llamas

"I expect the senior year to be pretty hard because during this year you have to make up all those credits you don't have. But if all your credits add up right, then your senior year can be lots of fun."

Jesse Campos

"I expect the Girls' Varsity Basketball team to finish first in League!"

Juniors Rasha Ayad and Hoang Ea pose for a picture out of their busy schedule. Both planned to graduate after three years of high school.

For most juniors, high school means one more year of school left, but four eleventh graders set their sights on an early graduation.

Junior Rasha Ayad felt it to her advantage to graduate a year early. She commented she would be "ahead 365 days" of her peers. When asked what motivated her to her decision, Ayad responded, "I wanted to do it by impulse," but revealed her mother had some influence in the matter. In the fall, Ayad intends to major in business at UC Riverside.

Explaining her reasons for graduating early, Junior Hoang Ea said, "During the senior year, there's not that many classes to take and I could take those senior classes in college."

Ea had made the decision to graduate a little late and was forced in the second semester to take three evening classes required for graduation. This was in addition to the five solids Ea was taking during the day at Schurr. In the fall, Ea hopes to attend UCLA and major in aerospace engineering.

Two other ambitious juniors were Rina Yong and Monique Diep. Yong's reasons for wanting to graduate early concurred with Ea's. She felt senior year did not have much to offer her in terms of classes. Yong hopes to attend Cal State L.A. for two years and then Cal State Northridge to receive a BA in English.

Diep wanted to graduate early because she was one year older than her peers. She hopes to major in business management at Cal State L.A.

Trekking to senior year

Schurr . . . The Final Frontier.

This is the voyage of the class of '88.

It's one year mission, and the toughest yet . . . to get through the junior year!

Yes, Spartties! We have completed this mission with flying colors, but we have faced the toughest planetoid classes and fighter pilot homework yet. Commander Kirk has awarded us a promotion: senior status. We have one more mission ahead of us: to complete the senior year and be awarded the paper of completion, a diploma.

Captain's Log, Star Date June 1987. What do the survivors of this "trek" into the unknown have to report? Was it really the toughest year ever?

"Yes, because you have to take all your requirements this year so that you can kick back in your senior year."

Raul Chagoyan

"No, because I have easy classes."

Rick Davis

"Yes. The reasons are Barrett, Kaestner, and Lebow. The only thing that helps me survive is art, my creative outlet."

Nguyet Tran

"Yes. No Comment."

Seiichi Ishikawa

"No. Because I think senior year is tougher. There is no tough year; if you can handle it then it is not tough. It depends on what you take."

Amy Chow

"Yes. So many things to study!"

Edcon Chang

"Yes. It is the first time I took honors."

Eddie De La O

"I haven't had my senior year. I wouldn't know. Does that make sense?"

He wondered what all the other people who have no homework do. Maybe some juniors can give Sammy an idea.

Working together

"During the past year, we have worked really hard to make us not only the most spirited class on campus, but also the richest," commented cabinet member David Phillips.

The main goal of this year's sophomore class was to raise a great deal of money in preparation of sponsoring the Junior/Senior Prom next year. Although the sophomores were busy fundraising, they did not neglect their duty of promoting the class spirit of '89. "Our Homecoming worked out great this year. A lot of non-cabinet members pitched in, but, best of all, everyone had a fun time," said sophomore class president Colette Kovacs.

Advisers agree that teamwork is the key to a successful year. "The fundraisers during the semester were slow, however we went great guns in spring. The cooperation of the officers, cabinet, and advisers made this a successful year," remarked sophomore class adviser Tim O'Brien.

Added treasurer Wendy Jones, "Our cabinet members have been very cooperative and helpful in participating in all the activities this year. This shows because we took first in the trash can decorating contest. The Class of 1989 definitely is unified."

Where is Dot City?

Everybody who has taken Driver's Ed has gotten a taste of Illinois. You are probably saying no, but haven't we all taken the long road to Dot City and Griggsville for one semester? But how did Schurr get this Illini influence?

Vice-Principal Terrence Devney invented the idea when he first taught Spanish at Schurr. Devney said, "I would make a seating chart with everybody's name on it, and if they started fooling around, they would get a dot. If they get four or five dots, they would get extra assignments or write sentences."

Driver's Ed teacher Varian Griggs said that rules have changed in his class. If one gets a number of dots, their grade drops one letter. But Griggs also gives pluses for reading aloud, and each plus takes away a dot. If one has no dots, each plus is worth extra points. Got it straight?

Every teacher who uses the system thinks it is great. Devney said, "Most kids like it, but they outwardly complain." Griggs said, "It's a fun way of telling students to quiet down and get to the business of the day." Teacher Mando Marentes said, "It's the greatest invention since sliced bread."

Griggs admits that he is a descendant of Griggsville and Dot City. Griggs said, "The two cities are very close together, and myself, Lincoln and Reagan are its most famous descendants."

Griggs is especially proud of the dot-buster sign in his room. It reads: "Back off, man, I'm a Dot-Buster. The Dot-Busters have come to Griggsville."

So, as you "drive" your way to Illinois, watch out for those oncoming dots!

"Handicapped" sophomores

Ever been faced with the burden of wearing a cast on your broken leg and hopping to class on crutches? Unfortunately, two sophomores this year faced this sort of dilemma and experienced some ups and downs of being injured.

Sophomore Nguyen Ha Thuc, who had fractured his leg from a forward flip in gymnastics at PE, spent three weeks with a cast and walked to classes with crutches.

Ha Thuc felt the most difficult obstacle of walking on crutches was managing to walk up the stairs. "The stairs make everything hard." Another difficulty he had walking was when his shoulder backpack would frequently slip off.

He noted that generally people were helpful and understanding to him. When he had to go up the stairs, his friends would help him carry his books. And since the crutches forced him to be tardy, his teachers would excuse him from being late.

Despite the disadvantages of being injured, Ha Thuc was happy that he got out of PE for six weeks. At home, he said his brothers would help him get things. "All I do is sit and my brothers get everything for me!"

One of the unhappy experiences he had with his injury was when he walked up the stairs at school and fell. Another was in his math class when his crutches stuck to the floor.

When asked if he learned anything from this experience, his response was, "You can't go backwards on crutches."

Another victim of sports injury was sophomore Noelle Perez, who injured her right ankle when she slid into second base at a softball game. She spent five weeks in a cast and walked on crutches.

Perez, like Ha Thuc, had her share of like-to-forget experiences. She had fallen off a C-building step and made a hard hit onto the ground. Another bad experience she had was when it was raining and the suction at the bottom of her crutches stuck to the floor. When her ankle itched, she had to get a wire to scratch herself.

Perez disclosed some of her fears she had when walking up and down the stairs. If she walked up the stairs, she was afraid she would fall backwards. But if she walked down the stairs, she thought she would fall forwards.

With some subtle humor, Perez concluded, "I want to thank all of my friends and teachers who helped me overcome this tragedy."

Funny people

While wearing a white suit and an arrow that looked like it pierced through his head, comedian Steve Martin used to say to live audiences, "I'm a wild and crazy guy!"

What about us? There's an inherent, driving force that sometimes makes us do the most hilarious and zany things. What is this force? It's hard to say, but sophomores have had their share of funny experiences.

"The funniest thing I ever did was when I forgot to wear my underpants for my drill team uniform all day, but I had yellow underwear on."

Lorelee DyReyes

"In the morning, I was making coffee. Usually I pour milk into it, but by accident, I poured in orange juice instead."

Angelo Angeles

"The funniest thing that ever happened to me was when I bought some ice cream. When I came outside, I tripped, and it fell all over my shirt."

Alex Maldonado

"During a performance of a school musical, my contact lenses nearly fell out."

Darren Higa

"When I was about four years old, I was taking a bath and my mom left to answer the phone. My small sister had some gum, so she gave me some of it and we blew big bubbles. They popped and went all over my hair and her face."

Rebecca Muñoz

"During a cross country practice, I tripped in front of a lot of people at a bus stop, and they all started laughing."

Fred Melendrez

"I had to try on a tuxedo, and it was really big. It looked funny."

Victor Dominguez

"I was in the band room, and my pants got stuck to some wood. I fell, and it tore my pants off, and cut my butt."

The Hart test

In October, sophomores faced the challenge of the Hart Proficiency test. It was a test they had to take to show they had the necessary skills for graduation.

Hart Conferencing Teacher Gary Anderson said, "It's a guarantee that students can read, write or do math."

According to Anderson, students are required by California law to pass all three Hart tests and, if they do not, they cannot graduate. However, students did have a second chance to retake the tests they did not pass, after required attendance in a remedial class.

Sophomores had mixed feelings about taking the Hart test. Lorelee DyReyes felt, "The Hart test was easier than I thought it would be." With a difference of opinion, sophomore Victor Monroy said, "The Hart test? I didn't have any favorite parts; it was hard and boring."

Learn by doing

Starting off their first year in high school as the leaders of their class, the freshman cabinet found that they were faced with numerous responsibilities. Yet, by organizing and gaining experience, the class of 1990 found that they were able to tackle any obstacles in their path. Through hard work and planning, the cabinet followed the motto of "learn by doing."

President Tita Nguyen commented, "Our cabinet had a lot of responsibilities to carry on our shoulders. This involved fundraising and working together as a group. In the end, things worked out quite well, where we had class participation and organization." Added cabinet member Kelly Yoon, "Gaining experience for our future years was one of the key things this year."

Fundraising, indeed, was a main source of unity for the class. The freshmen sold taquitos during Homecoming and candy apples in December. The class continued to sell other types of candy throughout the year, raising more money. Said secretary Wendy Chan, "Our goal behind the fundraising is to save up enough money for future events, such as the Prom and Grad Nite. To accomplish this means we'll just have to continue to raise more money for our freshman account."

The motto of "learning by doing" was something followed by each member. Cabinet member Elizabeth Huot commented, "Just about all of us lacked experience, but as we planned and organized things, we started to turn away from the confusion and unorganization we had in the first place." Huot concluded, "Our cabinet is dedicated. Our experience, from this past year, definitely has been a learning one."

The first day is always the hardest

It is the first day of school and a freshman excitedly looks up at the school building and sees the sign, "SCHURR HIGH SCHOOL." He says to himself, "Gee, how exciting! How cool! Now I'm finally a high school student. Long gone the days with Mrs. Grouch, my junior high math teacher . . . YAHOO!"

A little exaggerated, but what exactly was the first day of school like for freshmen this year? Was it a plain nerve-racking trauma, or was it an absolutely boring experience? Straight from the horse's mouth, freshmen give their thoughts of their first day of school.

"At first I was scared of entering high school, but I got used to high school life. The classes weren't as hard as I expected. Also my friends Laura and Monica helped me to make the transition to high school easier."

Alberta Fimbres

"Confusing."

Edward Tiet

John Canawati

"My first day of school was like any other school day."

Amy Acosta

"I was embarrassed to come to school because I transferred from Alhambra High."

Alexandra Vargas

"My first day of school was terrible because they sent me back home."

Lilliann Gilbert

"My first day of school was pretty cool. I was feeling a little nervous, but I was trying to act cool so that I wouldn't make a fool out of myself."

Beatris Leos

"I was real nervous because I didn't know what to expect from seniors. Then I met a few seniors and found out they're all pretty cool."

Chris Cuellar

"On the first day of school, I was scared to death! I thought that everyone would be picking on us and teasing us, but it wasn't that bad."

A new generation

With movies like "2010," "Star Wars," and "Star Trek," the future is much nearer than we think as freshmen take on the responsibility of being the first class of the 1990's. When the freshmen have their tenth reunion, it will be the year 2000.

Presently, freshmen express their feelings about being the Class of 1990.

"I feel honored. I am proud to be a part of the mighty Class of '90."

Older siblings give a hand

"What do I do with this form?"

"You use it to pick the classes you're going to take."

"How do I know which teachers to take?"

"That should be no problem since I know . . . "

Does this scenario sound familiar? For a number of freshmen, it does. Upon entering their first year of high school, freshmen have had to make the transition to high school. Yet in the process, some have sought advice from their older siblings. With consultation from their siblings throughout the year, have freshmen found their first year in high school easier? Most replies were positive, yet a few were negative.

Anji Kobayashi, who has two older sisters, a junior and a senior, said, "I think it's easier because my sisters would tell me where things were and I didn't look like a lost freshman." Her friend Suzanne Wong concurred by saying, "Since I have a brother that's a junior, he warns me to do the right things and take the right teachers."

One freshman, Carolin Langkammerer, felt that she did not need as much guidance as she thought she needed from her sister. She said, "I think attending summer school before my freshman year was helpful. Although my sister helped me some, I was mostly on my own. My sister acquainted me with her friends, but I eventually met other people." Being in preseason band seemed to prove just as helpful as summer school. Langkammerer remembered the "transition being easier." She concluded, "My sister tried to turn me away from the mistakes she made as a freshman. She helped me a lot in guiding me and giving advice."

Freshman Suzanne Hom found having an older sister was helpful overall, period. She commented, "If I need help on homework, she's there to help me!" She added, "My sister has helped me a lot, in terms of making a transition, and I wouldn't be where I am today. It's nice to have someone to hang on to instead of being confused." Hom also pointed out that her sister could give her "future insight on the SAT."

One negative reply came from Susana Tse, who is the youngest in a family where all of her siblings have attended, or are attending Schurr. She stated, "I don't think it's easier having older brothers or sisters ahead of me because every teacher expects me to be as smart as my sisters and," she added half-jokingly, "as dumb as my brother."

Bob Sabey, on the other hand, commented, "I feel that you find more friends and you know the teachers that are nice." Added Angelique Bermudez, "I think it's been easier having an older sibling because she has aided me a lot and solved a lot of problems I've encountered so far this year. She also has introduced me to her friends and philosophical geniuses!"

Matt Wolf felt adjusting to high school has been much easier. He said, "My brother shows me around the campus and introduces me to his friends. I have more friends because they know my brothers, Chris and Shane. I get to hang around with older people and it doesn't make me feel like a 'regular freshman.' "

Two freshmen, Tita Nguyen and George Yu, both have relatives at Schurr. Said Nguyen, "I think it's easier to adjust because my cousins introduced me to people I wouldn't have met in the first place. They've also helped me at times when I needed information about the school." Yu, evading the question, replied jokingly, "I don't talk to my brother or my relatives, so I wouldn't know if it would be easier adjusting!"

"Only fools need to get loaded to have fun," commented Principal James Douglas, who participated in the Red Ribbon week on October 28 by wearing the anti-drug red ribbon. A drug-free concert was held in the amphitheater on the following day.

FACULTY/ACADEMICS

Are we the comprehensive public high school that the school district classifies us as? We offer preparation to both the college and career-bound. ROP offers hands-on job experience. "If a girl is interested in being a nurse, ROP will place her in a hospital; there she'll be trained," explained ROP Coordinator, Darlene Louden. As for college-bound students, many agree with math teacher Julia Morita that the honors program is well-coordinated and promotes serious academic endeavor at our school.

College Adviser Richard Holz summarized, "We have, first, students interested in achieving; secondly, a dedicated staff; and thirdly, universities demanding better prepared students."

By Monique Bermudez

A tall, dark, handsome stranger turns out to be none other than biology teacher Toby Manzanares in disguise. "I was getting the students' attention in the beginning of class," he explained.

LEADING Edge

Over-workers

The four guidance counselors were faced with a problem. Six years ago, each counselor had 563 students to counsel. This year, the number was 700.

Janet Lessinger explained, "I think each student gets certainly less time to spend with his counselor than he should get."

The Board of Education has recognized this problem. Six years ago, the same problem occurred, and a college and career counselor were added.

Lessinger said, "I think teens today face many challenges, and helping them to learn to do this effectively requires the support of the family, school and community. It needs to be a joint effort."

The counselors themselves have provided solutions to the problem. Peter Fong said, "I wish that I had some computer assistance to help me with the programming and paperwork. This would afford me more quality time with my students." Ella Wing said, "I wish that every student could have a study period every day so that we could counsel the student at that time instead of taking them out of class."

Wing added, however, "When that letter of acceptance to college or a job offer for one of the students comes in, it makes my year and job worthwile."

"I am always eager to help . . . " commented career counselor secretary Alice Jimenez. Ella Wing and other counselors agreed that secretaries assisted them with their heavy workload.

"We really don't have time to work with each student socially and emotionally," explained counselor Ella Wing. Most counselors felt that paperwork was getting in the way of real counseling.

Six weeks per turtle? Chemistry teacher Mary Ann Kaestner has to deal with this and other mysteries of the universe each summer as she moonlights as another summer teacher.

Winter is the season, but P.E. teacher Stacy Honda beams in summer clothes on Tourist Day. Summer is no vacation for Honda, because she moonlights as a summer school teacher.

Moon lights up the smirking face of life science teacher Chris Lord as he moonlights as the time keeper at a football game. He also planned to work the most popular faculty moonlighting job — summer school.

Moonlighting!

Imagine yourself arriving at Anytown, U.S.A. On one side of the street, pre-algebra teacher Raymond Cole falls off a ladder while painting a house. And God forbid! English teacher Timothy O'Brien tries to sell you a pack of cigarettes by doing a Las Vegas routine. Just when you feel as if you have had enough of a nightmare, English teacher Alicia Lloreda announces, "You're deported!"

No, it has nothing to do with the full moon on Friday the thirteenth, but your guess is not too far from the truth; many teachers moonlight in jobs outside of teaching.

Photography teacher Marvin Inouye moonlights as a wedding photographer for both fun and profit. Besides helping him amass "mad" money, his job is a means to nourish his love for photography. He explained his passion: "Photographs are a means of communication when words fail." Inouye proved how much fun his avocation can be by describing what his client did two years ago during a wedding: "When the groom took off his bride's garter, he 'accidentally' pulled out a piece of red underwear."

Photographs do come in handy when you are choosing an exciting summer resort, but history teacher David Lebow can also be helpful. Working as a consultant for a travel agency, he explained the demands of his job. According to him, tourist targets change drastically over the years. To be a successful consultant, he found himself traveling to China, South America, Seattle, and Europe in just one year. He also takes his students every other summer on a European trip to collect tourist information. Ten years ago, a student on one of these trips was robbed of her purse in Amsterdam, Holland; in her purse were her passport and train ticket. Lebow braved the ghettoes and negotiated in vain with the gang leader for the return of the purse, but could not get it back. As a desperate last resort, he had to smuggle the student onto the train.

Fortunately, English teacher Alicia Lloreda was not present, because her moonlighting career would not permit such smuggling. She has worked as an interpreter at deportation hearings for the Justice Department for twenty years. It is an extremely intense job because cases would have to be dismissed as false evidence if she does not say exactly what the defense says during the hearing. But the job does have its rewards, besides being "lucrative." She once had a student who had given her a lot of problems in class. Two years after his graduation, he was deported in one of her hearings. She exclaimed joyously as she raised her hands, "I felt that there was really somebody up there!"

Back in Anytown, it seems like you are about to join Lloreda's ex-student. Just as you are heading south, you hear math teacher Harvey Brown scream, "Cut!" Brown, a former technician for KCOP, explains that you are walking onto the set for a deportation documentary on Channel 13. So, you are not deported after all. You look up with relief and see social studies teacher Paul Baviello working on a construction site, and a brick is falling toward you from the second floor ...

Teaching is learning

It's another school day. In English classes, students learn to analyze a Shakespearean play and discuss the reasons the protagonist was destined to tragedy. Then in science classes, students may learn about the scientist Isaac Newton, who discovered gravity when an apple fell on his head.

In each of these scenes, students are the subjects and learn under the guidance of an instructor. However, the instructor can also learn from his own students. This year, two student-teachers at Schurr were in this role-reversal position.

Riley Mason, who is working toward his English teaching credential, taught in two of Alicia Lloreda's English classes to gain teaching experience. While Mason taught, Lloreda observed his methods and offered suggestions on how he could do better. A supervisor from his university also came to observe his teaching skills.

Another student-teacher who taught at Schurr this year was Bruce Schuman. Like Mason, Schuman was working toward his English credential and taught in two English classes under the guidance of Teresa Macy.

Both Mason and Schuman agreed that there was a great difference between reading about teaching in a classroom and actually instructing a class. Commented Schuman, "The only way to learn is to be an active participant."

Mason really enjoyed working with students and said, "I hope teaching will continue to be a learning experience for me."

When asked what he had learned from teaching in the classroom, Mason believed he had to be more disciplined and organized to expect the same qualities from his students and learn "to adapt alternate methods of teaching one concept."

Neither expressed any regrets about entering the teaching field. As Schuman explained, "I'm the kind, if I don't like something, I don't do it," while Mason concluded, "I feel in the long run, teaching is really something I want to do and I have no regrets about making the decision to become a high school teacher."

While the class listens intently, Riley Mason reads an excerpt from The Great Gatsby. Mason had student taught before at Schurr in the spring of 1986.

Earlier this year, the Schurr faculty was surveyed to find out where they attended college for their bachelor's degree. The results indicated that a majority of the faculty members polled attended a public university in California.

Fitting in this majority was English teacher Lorrie Wellenstein. Wellenstein attended Cal State Long Beach because it was a college her mother attended and was in the community she grew up in. However, Jennie Kao decided to attend Immaculate Heart College, which had the all-girl school environment she desired.

"And they're off! The massive wave of hungry students has just been released from the starting gate. Here comes Waldo Winabagle running up the railing. Trailing right behind him is Alfalfa Sprouts. They're neck and neck now! This is so exciting! Who will win the first lunch plate of the day!?

This is an example of a typical work day of the dedicated cafeteria workers who make sure food is hot and ready to be served to students and faculty everyday.

The workday begins at 5:30 AM, when Cafeteria Manager Anne Martinez opens up the kitchen. At 6:30 AM the cooks and bakers arrive and start their cooking and baking, while other workers prepare salads, deserts, and other foodstuffs. When lunch time comes around the cafeteria ladies go to their normal stations and serve the students and teachers. However, the day does not end after serving lunch, for cleaning up and washing dishes starts at 1:00 PM, after the workers have their own lunch.

There is much to accomplish on a regular workday, but how is it done? The workers have different shifts. Some have early morning shifts, and others have afternoon shifts, but most of them are present for both lunches. All of the workers except for Martinez are part-time.

Organization and planning is an important part of completing the job. One such chore is making up the monthly menus, by Martinez. She will submit her calendar to accord with that of the Montebello Unified School District. In drawing up the menu, she said, "I see what the kids like the best and that is what I order. I like to see them appreciate what they get, a balanced meal."

Throughout the day, the cafeteria staff is in direct contact with students and many of the workers feel as Linda Lopez does. She commented, "It is a pleasure to serve the majority of the kids. They are very nice and polite." A temporary help, Rosalie Reyes, noted that the "students will talk to the ladies they know."

"Working in the cafeteria is a job where you concentrate and do the best you can," concluded Lopez.

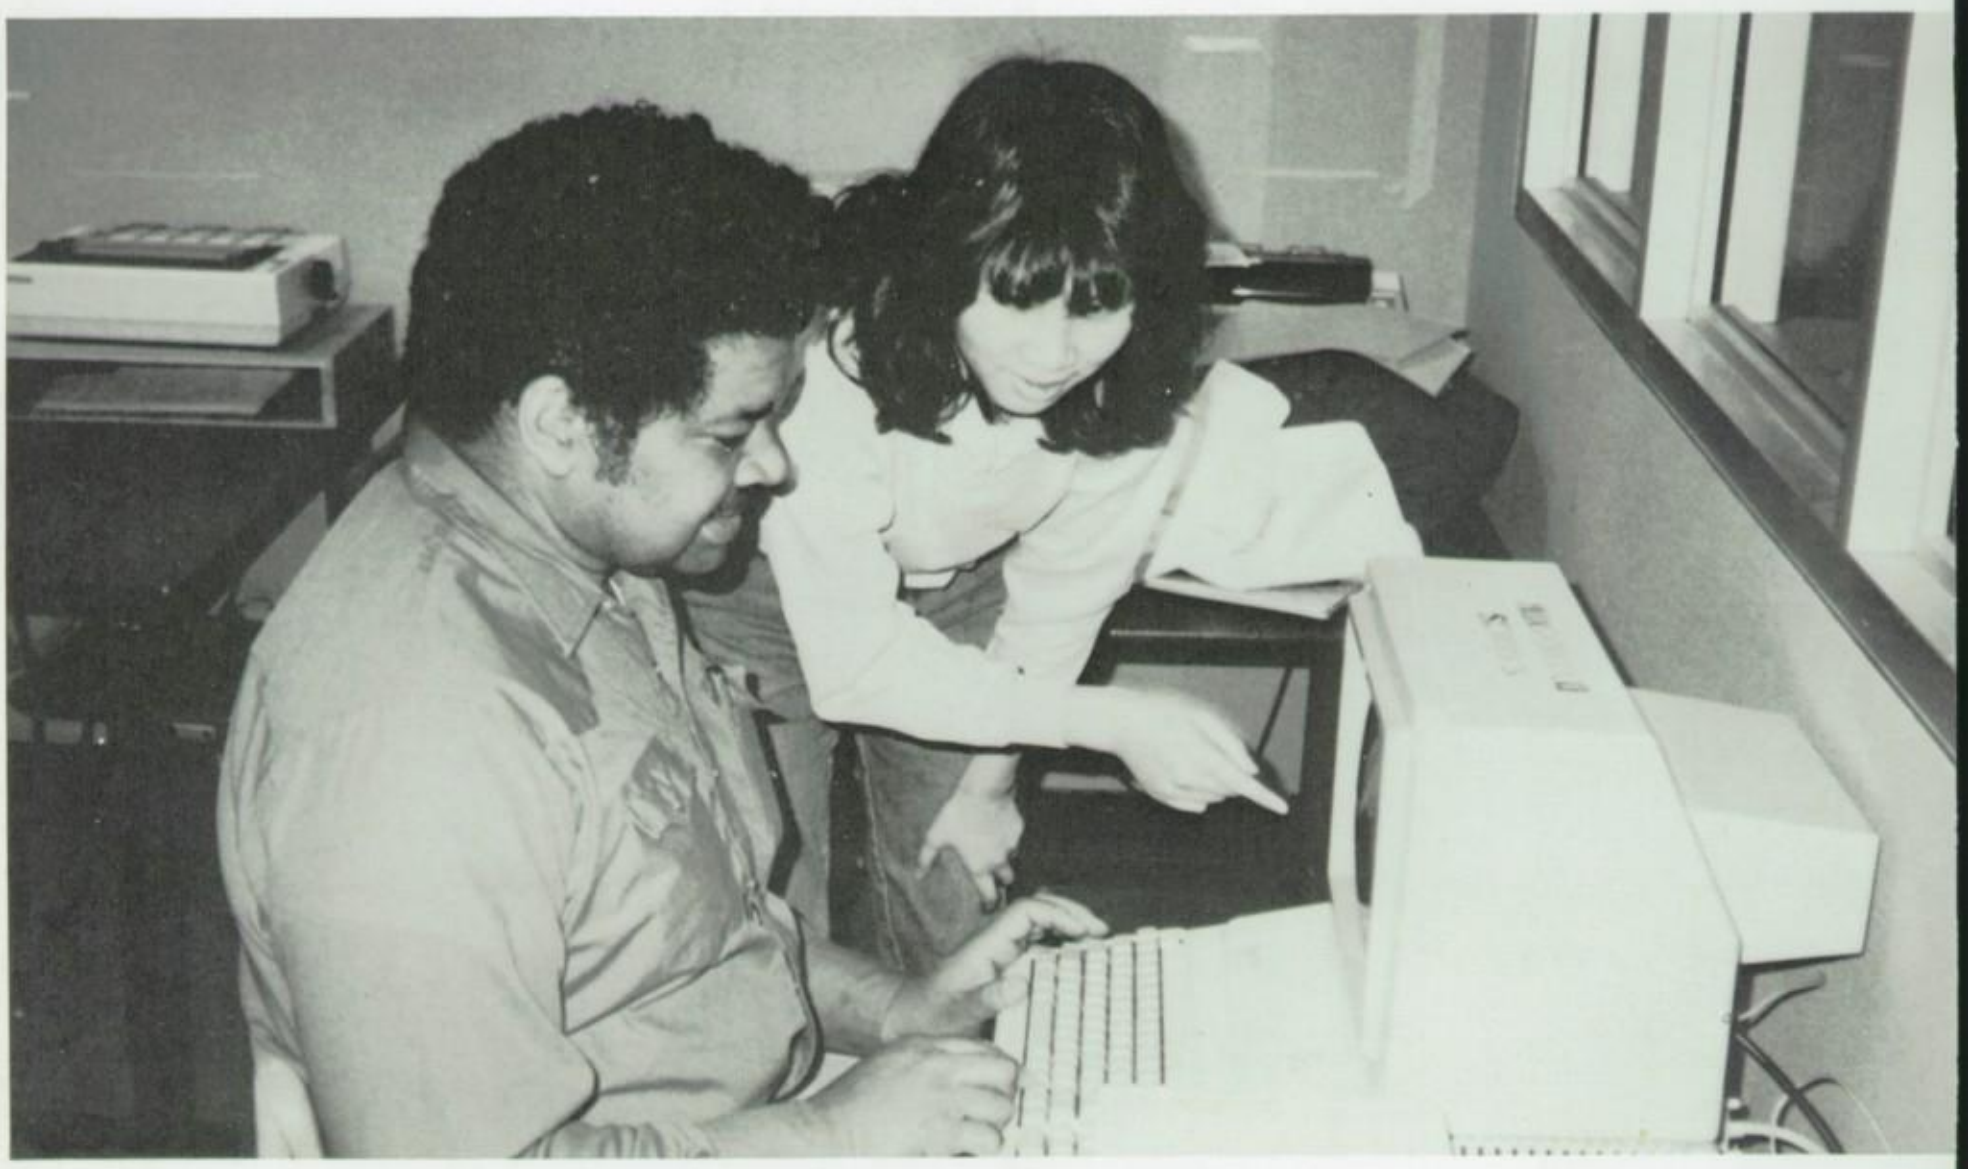
Discussing the program on the new Apple IIe are computer instructor Bobby Smith and Shirley Hom. The CTIIP grants provided the school with two new computers.



"We're in the money"

"The lottery and CTIIP give us spending power above and beyond what the regular school budget allows for," commented Principal James Douglas in reference to the state funds granted to the Montebello Unified School district (MUSD).

From the California Lottery funds, the MUSD was allotted four million dollars, of which Schurr received $30,000. The MUSD was also allotted $30,000 from the California Teacher Instructional Improvement Program. Schurr received $8000 in CTIIP grants.

The lottery money was allocated to areas of need at Schurr. $10,000 was used to increase department budgets; $5000 helped pay expenses for class field trips; $8000 bought four VCR's and two computers; $3000 was used to buy miscellaneous items including filing cabinets and $4000 was put in reserve.

The items of purchase were initially determined by a questionaire sent to all of the staff members. From their suggestions, a list was compiled of possible items to be purchased and faculty members voted for the items they wanted. Commented Douglas, "This provides for a consensus of everyone in the school that these were the items needed."

Four years ago, the state of California started the CTIIP grants. This year, Schurr received a total of $8000 in CTIIP grants, in which each grant was $2000. Three grants were given to the special education classes of Lisa Specht, Wayne Boehm and Lou Lawrence. These classes received a computer. The Spectrum staff also received a grant for a computer.

In order to receive a CTIIP grant, a teacher must apply by filling out an application and then submit it to the MUSD. Then the applications are looked over by a committee of nine members, who grade the applications by giving an overall score. "We were lucky to have Pete Navarette because he did a lot of leg work for helping us receive the grant," said Lawrence.

To Gina,
I hope you have fun this summer. Stay pretty and sweet. Don't ever change. I hope you stay with Nick forever because you really make a wonderful couple. Good luck in the future. Have fun in the sun and don't party too hard. Friends Forever,
Yvette De La Cruz

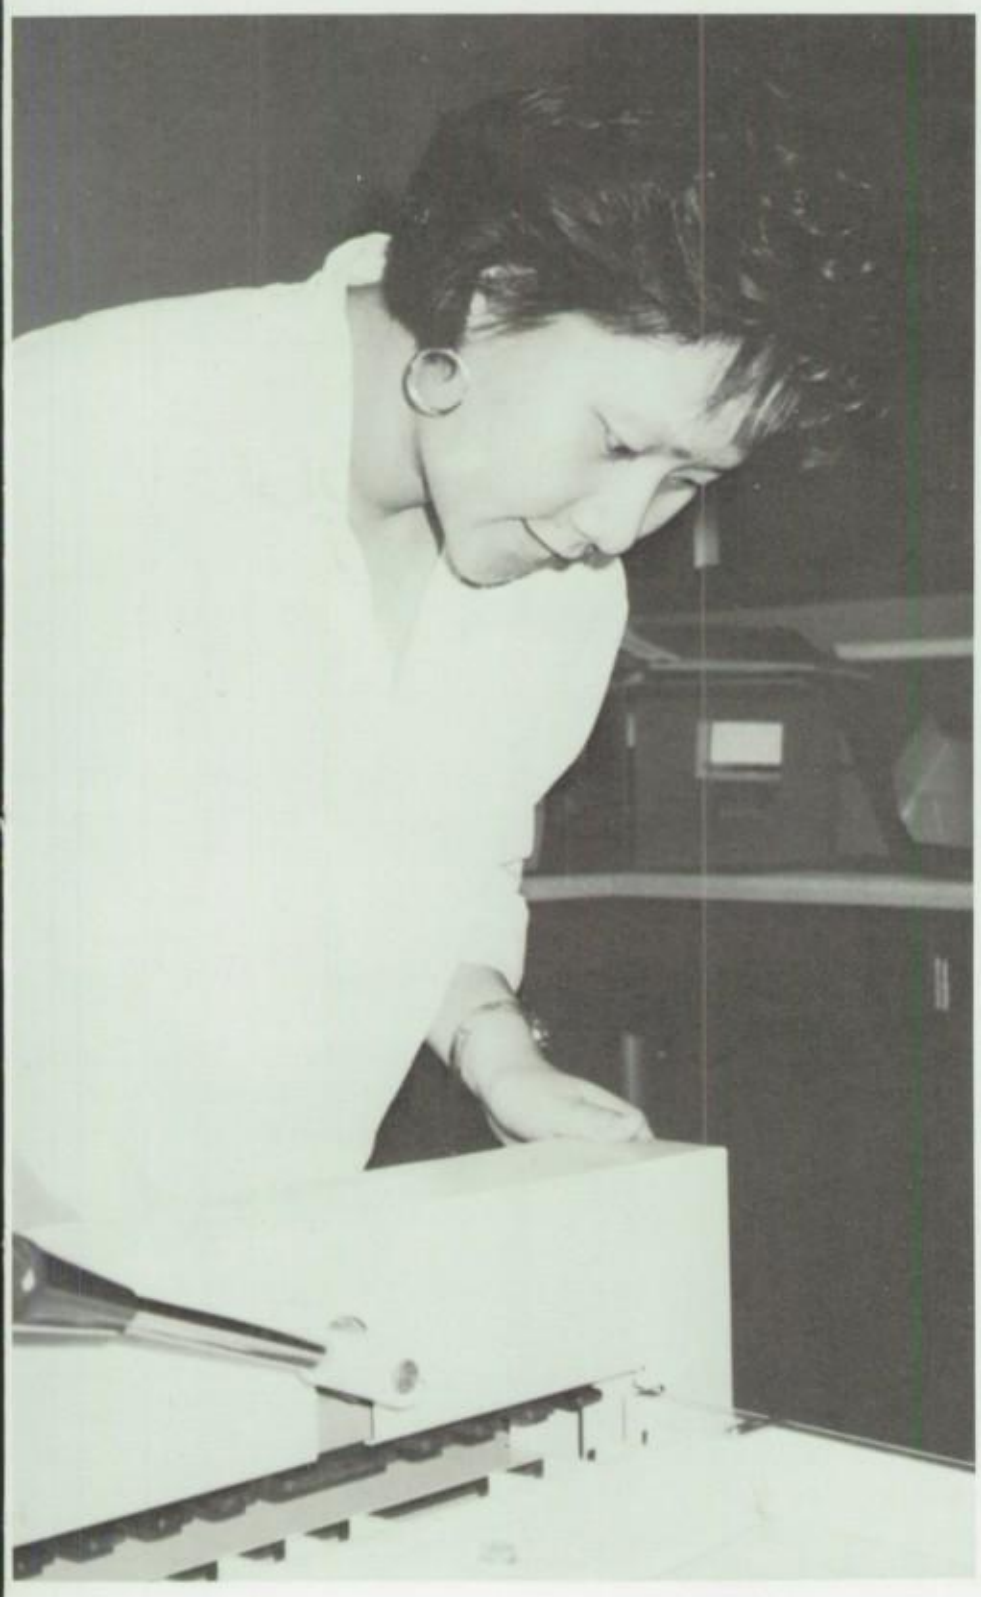
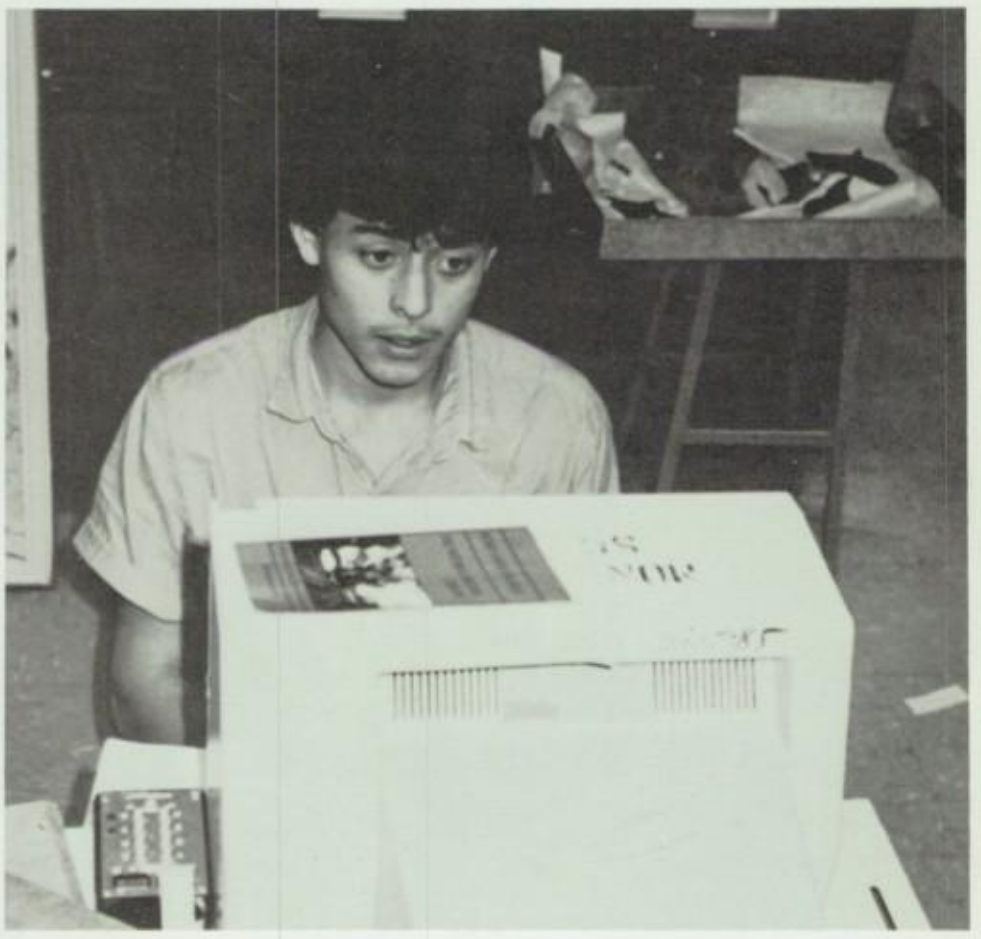
Handling the new computer rack is Spectrum member Kathy Uyehara. The new computer came in too late to be used for the '87 yearbook, but will be helpful for next year's annual.





Victor Ascensio works on a computer similar to the one received in the special education classes. This year, Schurr received $8000 in grants.

Shelly Fong uses the new papercutter purchased with the money from the lottery. The papercutter was used to cut large amounts of paper with accuracy.

Linda Ortiz and Janet Delgado work together to plan activities for the Yosemite trip. Several committees were formed to keep the expedition organized.

The learning expedition members huddle in a circle to discuss plans before moving on. The group held meetings frequently to inform the people of future activities.

Sharing her sandwich, Sandy Gallo gives a piece of bread to a hungry little squirrel. Expedition members often saw and acquainted themselves with animals at the Yosemite site.

After making a stop, Susan Petrescu, Jason Ramerez, and Jose Castillo find time to explore Mirror Lake. During the trip, expedition members did extensive hiking and exploring.

Senior Rafina Petrescu prepares to list daily activities on the master calendar. Petrescu was an active participant in the yearly camping expeditions.

Yosemite or bust!

"WANTED: Responsible, hard-working students with extensive personal initiative and capacity for handling high expectations and intense team work. Students willing to exceed self-imposed personal limitations are encouraged to apply."

This was the notice placed in the student bulletin in early January to invite interested Schurr students to participate in the Yosemite Learning Expedition in May. And who wouldn't accept? Lush, green forests, clean fresh air, breathtaking waterfalls ... this described only part of the beauty of Yosemite.

For three months, students prepared for the five day expedition. They organized committees to plan the necessary things that would be needed, such as food and equipment. They also wrote articles about the biology, geology, and history of Yosemite. The articles were then compiled into a field guide that would be used extensively on the expedition. Why did these students work so hard? Most wanted to go on the expedition for the experience. When asked why she was going, Julia Romero answered, "I'm going because I want to experience the outdoors and get away from city life."

Under the guidance of Toby Manzanares, the group explored the park which burst with unique opportunities to explore nature and its wonder. When asked how the trip will affect the students, Mike Rios replied, "I think the students learn a lot about responsibility and teamwork, as well as science and nature." He added, "I think everyone comes back with some good and bad experiences, but overall, they learn about themselves, their friends, and their teachers."

By Anita Magallanes

Rompiendo las parreras de las lenguas

A melting pot — what better words to describe the ethnic groups at Schurr? Without a doubt, this melting pot has grown over the past few years and made its mark on the student body.

Apparently, many students at Schurr are proficient in speaking foreign languages such as Spanish, Chinese or Japanese. And some students even speak German!

When asked what other languages they knew, Carolyn Kamoshita and Terumi Nishi both said they speak Japanese. Kamoshita said, "I think that it'll help me get a better job in the future." Nishi concurred by saying, "Knowing two languages helps because most jobs will ask if you're bilingual and, besides, for school I received 40 credits for taking the Japanese Language Test!"

The Spanish language is also widely represented on campus. "For me it's an understanding of two cultures and it's a gift to be bilingual. I believe communication in the world is very important and that's what it's opening up to," said Lorena Hernandez. Commented Michelle Ortiz, "Speaking Spanish has been helpful since I have been able to communicate with people who don't speak English." However, Leonor Aguilera said, "It's a privilege to speak Spanish because you could watch Mexican movies and you don't have to read the subtitles."

Another language spoken on campus is Chinese. Perkins Woo quipped, "I know Cantonese; all you have to do is yell and wave your arms around!" Of course, some students did not find speaking Chinese helpful. Meeting this description is Huy Tang, who said, "The kind of Chinese that I speak (Chui Chau) is not really popular at all."

There are, however, some students who can speak three languages. "Speaking three languages is great because I can talk to a lot more people," expressed David Chow. Chow knows Spanish and Chinese as does David Kuan. Kuan said, "Knowing other languages helps me to communicate with other people. I know when they say bad words. It's a gift to be able to speak more than one language."

Even the Filipino language is represented on campus. Remarked Jean Villagonzalo, "Tagalog is not really helpful. I did not even get foreign language credits for it."

WASC reviews campus

With the expiration of the school's six-year accreditation in June, an eight-member evaluation team reviewed the campus from April 21-23.

Accreditation by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC) is a guarantee to colleges that the graduates of Schurr have passed adequate courses and have an accredited diploma. If a school fails to gain accreditation, some colleges may refuse to accept its graduates into their schools.

During the accreditation process the school conducted a self-study. Each department of the school answered questions about its goals, objectives, organization, personnel and methods of instruction. Commented science department chairperson Harry Manos, "My involvement with the accreditation was to pull together information for all the science department and to ensure questions get answered for all areas of science."

A Scantron survey was also given to approximately 500 randomly chosen students. This form included questions varying from the availability of a counselor to meet with students to drug and alcohol use.

Lesli Agcaoili, Paul Chavez, Debbie Jatib, David Lim, Michele Miyakawa, Tita Nguyen, Christine Oyakawa and Tom Pieratt formed the Student Committee which reviewed the results of the survey and commented on their findings. They met with the Accreditation Team during its visit.

Results from these studies and others conducted by various committees were compiled into a book which was sent to the team.

Composing the Accreditation Team were representatives from all over California. The team included high school and college principals and teachers and representatives specializing in certain aspects of the school.

After studying the report, the committee visited the campus to verify the information in the report. Each member evaluated a particular part of the school. They met with teachers and students, visited classes and then reported their findings.

From their visit and their readings, the committee made a list of recommendations for what the school could do to improve itself and a list of commendations for its major strengths.

On the basis of all these studies, the committee recommended that the school be accredited for another six years. This recommendation would guarantee that graduates are receiving legitimate diplomas.

"We have a good school and are in the process of applying for being an exemplary school," said Principal James Douglas. "It would be a surprise if someone said that the school had some major problem."

Q & A

Q: What was the worst/strangest assignment you have ever been given?

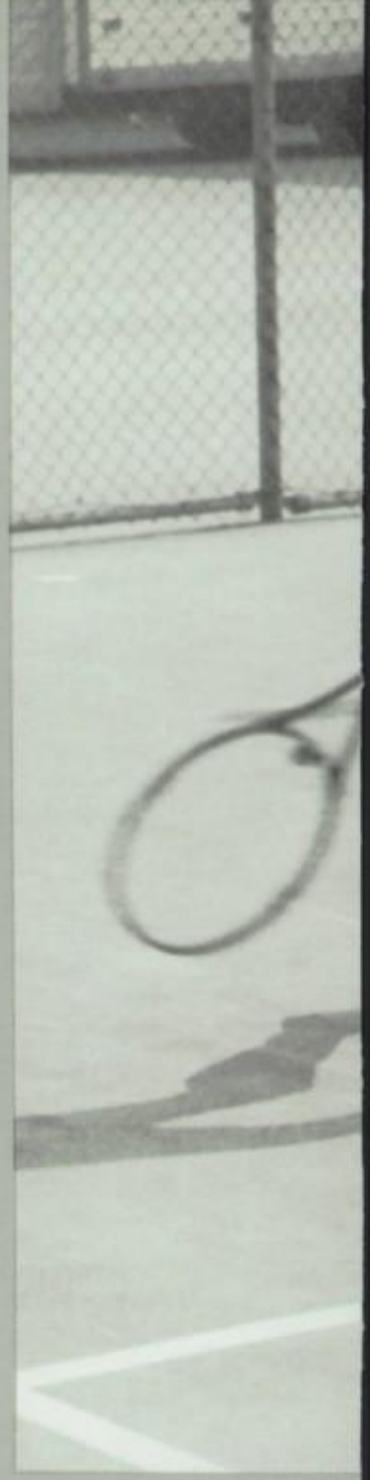
Gridder Freddy Burgueno tries to break free from the tribe of Burroughs Indians. The Spartans placed third in the Foothill League and advanced to the second round of the CIF Playoffs.



SPORTS

What is the most popular extracurricular activity on campus? Sports, of course! With support from the athletic department, student athletes have the needed motivation and enthusiasm to compete in any sport of their choice. Commented Football Coach Ken Davis, "Coaches are the organizers. They're there to motivate the athletes to strive for the best."

Another reason for the success of the sports program at Schurr is attributed to the team efforts of the athletes. Whatever sport they prepare for, athletes put in long hours of practice and determination to achieve their goals. Along with this, coaches help them to develop a sense of sportsmanship. Athletic Director Don Hill remarked, "We feel we contribute to sportsmanship by teaching it in athletics."

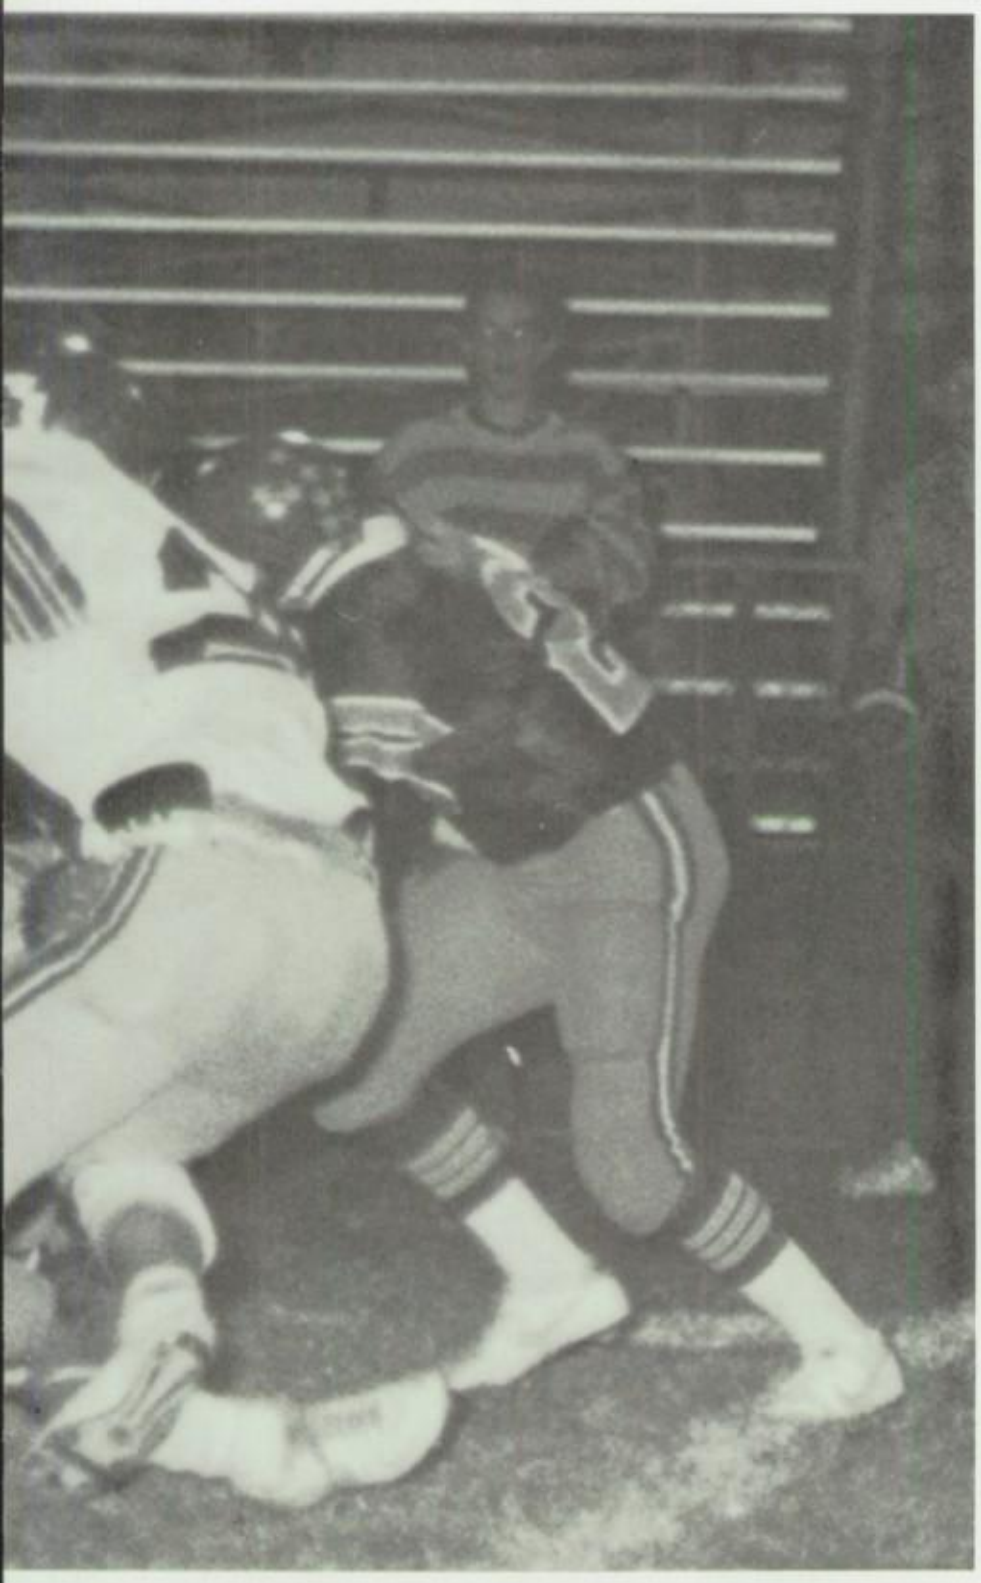
Gridders face a tough season



After capturing second place in league last year, the Varsity Football Team had a reputation to live up to. Question: Were they as successful as the 85'-86' Spartans? The answer is no. The gridders placed third in league, ending their season with a record of 6-4. During their league matches, the team lost to two opponents, Burroughs and Hart, which was ranked first in league and ninth in the state.

According to Head Coach Ken Davis, he attributed some of the team's losses to inexperience. "We had a young team this year that had to play a very difficult schedule. We improved a lot during the season, but didn't reach the goals we set for ourselves." Added Davis, "Not only that, three of the teams we lost to went to the CIF finals."

One player who concurred with Davis was kicker Ruben Castañeda, who said, "There was a lack of experience among our players, so that may have accounted for our losses."

In the CIF playoffs, the gridders defeated the Serra Cavaliers 31-28. Their hopes of going further in the playoffs were lost when they suffered a major defeat to the Temple City Rams, 7-45.

Reflecting upon the season, quarterback Joe Cypert commented, "It was fun this year. We had a couple of losses, but they were to some pretty good teams. We had a lot of players who started for their very first time, but overall our season was okay."

Concluded Kenny Seto, "There was a lot of talent, but we were not able to synthesize it all together. We had a lot of ups and downs during our season, but it was definitely worth our time." Davis again added, "This experience should be helpful for next year."

Quarterback Joe Cypert rushes through the pack trying to avoid the oncoming Burbank Dogs, while Ben Salazar blocks an oncoming rusher. The gridders win over Burbank gave Schurr a Homecoming victory.

While Kenny Seto blocks a Temple City Ram, Freddy Burgueno makes a run after the kick-off. The Spartans lost to the Rams in their second round of CIF playoffs.

After the kickoff, Ray Galarze prepares to run as he watches his opponents. Galarze was a second year varsity gridder.

Before a game against the San Gabriel Matadors, Spartans Paul Gallegos, Ron Verhoon, and Dave Chavez fire themselves up. The Spartans shut out the Matadors, 13-0.

Soph/Frosh take second place

Usually, it's the cowboys who beat the Indians, but for the Sophomore Football Team this was not the case. Losing to the undefeated Hart Indians, 20-45, the team settled for second place in league and ended the season with an overall record of 7-2. The team marked much improvement in comparison to last year's freshman team. This improvement was evident in preseason when the gridders beat Keppel, 34-0. Referring to the team's performance, Ruben Ortega remarked, "I feel our defense is a lot stronger this year."

Capturing second place in league, the Freshman Football Team was one game away from taking the championship, but their hopes of taking first was lost when Hart beat them, 14-21. Commented Ron Pruitt, "I thought we had the better team but we made too many mental errors."

When asked about Hart, gridder Edward Tiet said, "If we tried a little harder, we would have beat Hart."

Despite the team's loss, Pruitt was still pleased with the team's overall performance. The team compiled a league record of 4-1 and 7-2 overall. Key players during the season were Tiet, Frank Martinez and Bernard Velgalcic.

Pruitt added, "This was the best freshman team I have coached in the last four years. There's a lot of talent even though they lost two games."

Flashing finalists

"I'm gonna harden my heart; I'm gonna swallow my tears; I'm gonna turn and leave you here ..." — Quarterflash

Hardening their hearts and swallowing their tears was what the Girls' Varsity Cross Country Team did en route to their first showing in the CIF finals since 1980. The team, consisting of Suzette Baltazar, Lori Carreon, Alysha Fernandez, Jessica Guevara, Chela Orozco, Petie Padilla, Lisa Roybal and Susan Valenzuela, placed twelfth overall in CIF and second place in the Foothill League.

Roybal earned many awards this season. She captured ninth out of over 80 girls at the CIF finals with a time of 19:40. At the CIF prelims, Roybal finished third in Schurr's heat, and she gained All-League Honors by winning the Foothill League Finals with a time of 19:09. Coach Mando Marentes said, "Once Lisa is on the lead, nobody can catch her!" Roybal said, "The Varsity girls didn't quite make league this year, and if the team tries harder next year, we'll be league champs." She also broke the junior records on the Schurr course and overall with the times of 19:29 and 19:09, respectively. She missed the all-time record on the Schurr course by a Spartan girl by just two seconds.

Padilla also hardened her heart as she ran her final season as a Lady Spartan. Padilla gained All-League Honors with a fourth place finish in the Foothill League Finals. Padilla said, "Even though we came in second in league, we were honored of making it to CIF finals, which had not been done in five years. Though I'm leaving, I'm happy of how I did because I had set out with a goal which was accomplished at league finals."

Orozco moved from the JV ranks and turned to leave opponents in the dust with an eleventh place finish in league finals. Orozco commented, "We'll be hyped up to work a lot harder to gain the title."

The girls' varsity hardened their hearts and swallowed their tears and made CIF finals. One can't call them a "quarterflash" but a total flash!

Chela Orozco cools down as she comes in from a long run. Orozco stepped up from the JV team to be a first year varsity member.

JV team member Leticia Orozco looks on as Varsity member Isabel Padilla pushes forward. Padilla placed fourth in the Foothill League Finals.

Junior Lisa Roybal sprints to the finish line. Roybal was a member of the Varsity team in her freshman year.

Susan Valenzuela, Suzette Baltazar and Lori Carreon stay with their pace as they go for another lap. The team qualified for CIF preliminaries and finals.

Striving to stay ahead of her competitor, Lori Carreon keeps up her momentum. The Varsity team captured twelfth place overall in the CIF finals.

Building it up

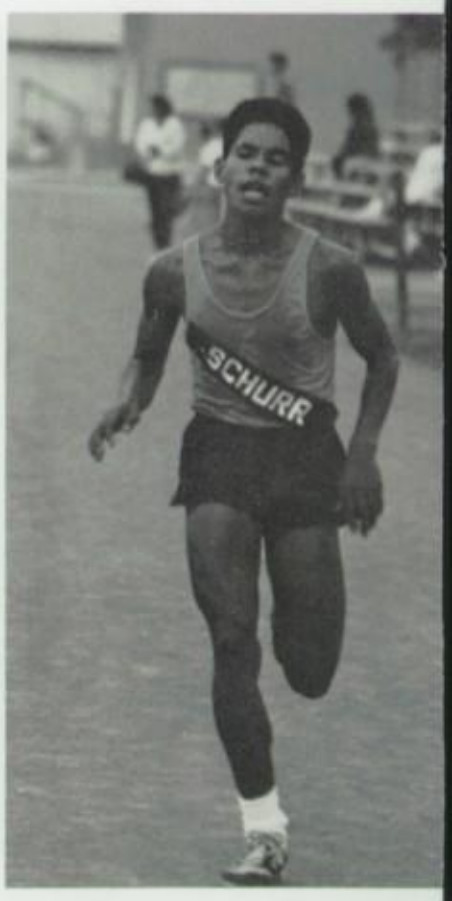
Running the three mile course, sophomore Jesus Torres puts his stamina to the test. The boys on the team qualified for the CIF prelims.



Egyptian builders took years to erect a pyramid suited for their "glorious" Pharoah. So also was the boys' varsity team built, as they moved one step up from last year and earned a spot in CIF Prelims. This year's varsity, who consisted of Nacho Herrera, Jose Lemus, Nick Lugo, Fred Melendrez, Art Romero, Glenn Sabey and Jesse Torres, took second in the Foothill League Finals.

But like the workers, who encountered earthquakes, rain and other problems during the building of the pyramid, so did the harriers on the way to their second place showing in the final. One problem was Hart, which took second in the CIF 3-A Finals. Another was the tough heats in which the boys were placed. Coach Mando Marentes said, "The boys encountered the number-one ranked school and the number-one ranked runner in the state in the race. However, I'm really proud of the guys because they were posed with a job, and they went out and did it."

Lugo set the course record for seniors at 15:47. Coach Chris Lord commented, " . . . When he broke the record, Nick felt that he couldn't beat his record, but he did." The strength of his running was also seen at the Prelims. Although the team did not qualify for CIF Finals, Lugo placed in the top ten in this heat. His victory led the team to a 3-2 record in league.

Torres, who is a second year varsity harrier, broke both the course and overall record for sophomores. Torres commented, "It's great! I've been trying for this record all year. My future goals are to beat Nick's records."

Herrera, looking forward to being a reckoning force next year, said, "I thought our team was excellent, but without the coaches, we could not have an excellent team. I thank them for their support this year."

Running over their opponents

Who challenged two ferocious Indian tribes, brave Matadors, and sly Wildcats in pouring rain and scorching heat this year? No! It's not the Lone Ranger and Tonto! It's the Spartan JV and frosh-soph teams. The girls' JV team not only challenged these teams, they "ran over" all of them, capturing their first Foothill league title in the history of Schurr.

Norma Gonzalez said, "The JV girls had a terrific season. I hope we can do it again next year." Angie Orozco commented, "We will do even better next year since most of us are coming back."

At the Foothill League Finals, they captured six out of the first ten placings in the race. Suzette Baltazar won the race with a time of 21:02. She was followed by Duvi Gonzalez, third place; Maria Carranza, fifth; Vicki Lopez, sixth; Rosario Amunatigui, ninth; and Claudine Djockic, tenth. These six girls received All-League Honors. Coach Chris Lord commented, "All of the girls pulled through when they really had to."

Baltazar seemed to like running in the rain. She said, "It was definitely more fun and more of a challenge, and when you heard the thunder and saw the lightning, it made you run a lot faster."

The boys' JV is looking forward to next year with the departure of over half of this year's varsity. Harrier Ed Wu said, "I felt determined to do the best that I could. Besides, it looks good on college transcripts. I'm really looking forward to next year."

The boys' JV garnered a second place finish in the Foothill League Finals. Wu received All-League Honors with an eighth place finish.

The boys' frosh-soph team also ran to a second place finish in League Finals. Alphie Holguin finished in tenth and received All-League Honors. Frosh-sopher Andrew Quintana said, "I'm looking forward to next year and improving my time as much as possible." Jim Lynch said, "I just want to do better."

Marentes said, "The success of the team would not have been possible without the help of Coaches Lord and Sigala, who did a fantastic job." Lord said, "I just hope this carries over to track."

A Rebuilding Season

After losing eight senior members, the girls' tennis team was left with bigger shoes than they could fill. Suffering one loss after another throughout the season, the girls placed fourth in league. They compiled a league record of 2-8 and 6-14 overall. Commented netter Kivomi Sayano, "I thought we could have had a better season; however, the talent, effort, and desire to win were there and that's where it counts."

Although the team was ineligible for CIF team playoffs, the girls were able to compete at League finals at East Los Angeles College. Monique Fung, the top seeded player and only returning varsity member, placed fourth in the singles competition after three rounds of play. Unfortunately for the rest of the team, the girls were defeated in the first round.

Reflecting on the season, second year Varsity Coach Jay Thomson commented, "This year was definitely a rebuilding season for us with only one returning letter winner from the previous season. We struggled throughout most of the season; similar to a roller coaster — up . . . down . . . up . . . down."

The junior varsity tennis team started off their year with no returning members and a new coach, Bruce Vlink. However, through determination and practice, the girls came up with a 3-7 league record. Said freshman member Eileen Chun, "Although we didn't win much, I enjoyed the season. There was a lot of hard work involved and I bet a lot of people thought we'd lose!"

Coaching tennis for his first time, Coach Vlink said, "I thoroughly enjoyed coaching with the kids. Every aspect of the practice and the matches was a lot of fun." When asked about the girls' season, Vlink said, "It was a frustrating season because the line-up kept changing and our regular players were on and off J.V."

For both tennis teams, this year was a rebuilding season with new members on each team. Concluded Jan Nguyen, "At least our varsity team didn't come in last!"

Every once in a while, Schurr's athletic teams go through a "rebuilding" season when the less experienced players are placed onto the higher teams, and the coaches realize exactly how much talent they have on their teams. While coaches reorganized and the players "brushed-up" on their rusty moves, a season rolled in, and the girls became ready to perform both individually and as a team. But unfortunately, this was one of those seasons that did not prove to be so promising for the girls' volleyball teams.

With only two returnees, it is no wonder that the girls' Varsity Volleyball team's league record was 2-8, leaving them in fourth place, unable to enter the CIF Playoffs. Despite this fact, Coach Stacy Honda refered to the team as a great one that worked hard and had a sense of unity. "I'm getting a lot of leadership from my seniors, Charise Alvarez and Kim Brodie, and the underclassmen are improving with every game," she commented.

The league record for the JV volleyball team was also 2-8, and overall it was 7-10. Coach Chris Haggerty said that she would have liked the team to become more consistent with their serving and more successful with their passing. "It is a good team. Stephanie Black, Sandra Lopez, and Raquel Orozco showed exceptional play. I felt it was a great season, and all in all, it was truly enjoyable."

Although this was the first year Schurr had a Frosh-Soph Volleyball team, Coach Cindy Cornejo proudly congratulated her team's season record of 4-6. "We have a young squad of freshmen and sophomores. We started out building the basic fundamentals, and it finally paid off. By this year's experience, they gained much more confidence," she says.

Cornejo said that the best all-around players were Diane Abarra and Loo Huh; Sherry Porter, server; and Kimi Umemoto, setter.

Honda summed up the season not only for her varsity team, but for the other teams as well, saying, "We'll be back next year — definitely."

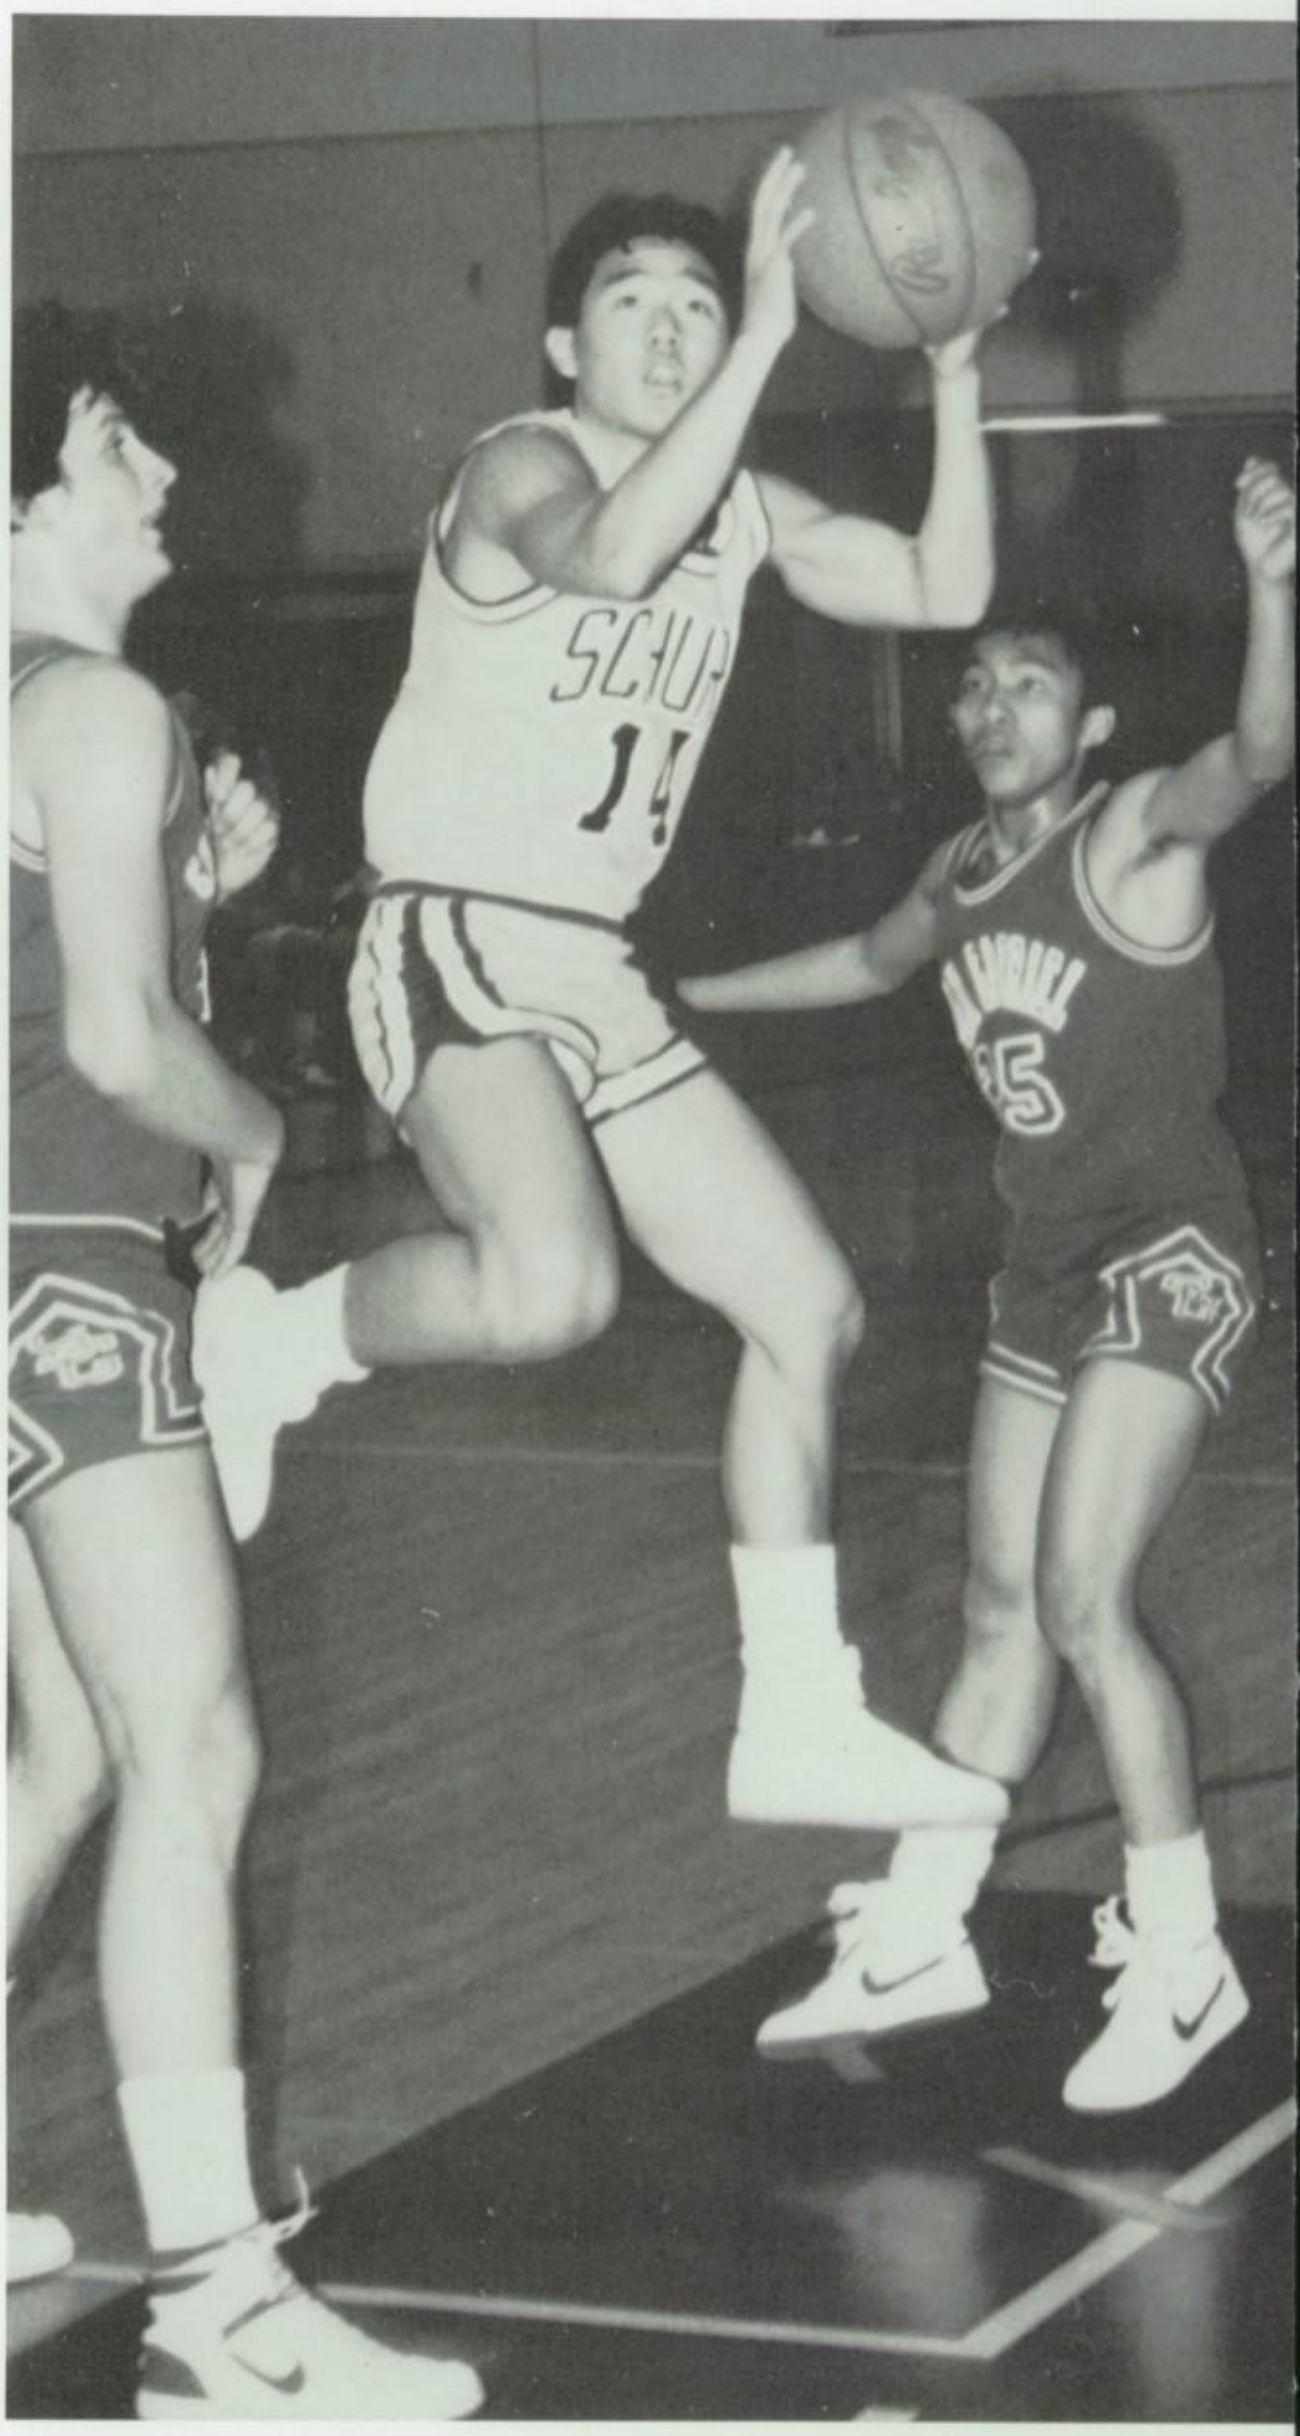
Third year varsity member Thai Ngo passes the ball into the waiting hands of a teammate. Team members practiced daily for at least an hour to perfect their plays.

Point guard John Hotta goes up for a jump shot against the San Gabriel Matadors. Hotta was a first year varsity player.



Giving last minute strategy before the start of a league game is coach Dave Hokyo. In addition to coaching, Hokyo taught math.

Cager Paul Chavez attempts for two as he makes a reverse lay-up against San Gabriel. Chavez was also USB vice-president.

When the Beastie Boys sang, "We gotta fight for our right to PARRRRRRRRRTY!" the Boys' Varsity Basketball team went right on singing with them as they staged parties on the court which made them co-Foothill League Champions. This year's team, made up of Gabe Aguilera, Paul Chavez, Joe Cypert, John Hotta, Marcellus Lee, Butch Le Noue, Thai Ngo, Manny Rios, Adrian Rodriguez, Kenny Seto, and Eugene Wang, compiled a 7-3 record in league.

LeNoue and Chavez led the Spartan scoring party, each with an average of over 16 points a game. Coach Tommy Thompson said, "Butch and Paul have been the steadiest players this season. Each had a lethal shot that left the opponents eating the cookie crumbs." LeNoue said about his 17-foot jumper, "I've played the same position for three years, and I'm accustomed to taking that shot." Chavez said, "I was feeling more confident of my shot as the season progressed."

Rios led the Spartan "Block" party. Averaging a little over two blocks a game, Rios had dramatically improved his blocking as well as scoring and rebounding averages since entering league. Rios commented, "Sometimes the points are there when I have the ball, but other times, I have to pass the ball to my teammates so that they could score."

At first, the party crashers seemed to be free throws. Thompson said, "At the beginning of the season, they did not have the confidence and consistency at the free throw line, but they played very well as the season progressed." Coach Dave Hokyo said, "Early in the year, they saw their mistakes and cut them down as the season progressed." In the pre-season, the team's free throw average was under 70 percent, but in league, the free throw average was over 75 percent.

The Spartans threw several surprise parties during the year. They won several games in the last seconds. Ngo hit a free throw with 18 seconds left to beat Hart. Hotta hit 11 free throws and Chavez hit a jumper with just two seconds left to win in consecutive games against Burbank.

In a game against San Gabriel, Kevin Akiyama defends against his opponent. This was Akiyama's first year on the JV team.

As they double team, Brice Goodlow and Steve Hong overwhelm their San Gabriel opponent. The Matadors lost, 69-59.

"It was an exceptionally good season," commented sophomore point guard Brent Mitsuuchi. "Even though our record doesn't show our actual potential," added junior Robert Sanchez. The JV cagers were again guided by Schurr alumnus Rick Ronquillo, who was assisted by another Schurr alumnus, Fred Cumberland, who "adds color and life to the team." The team captured second place in league by compiling a league record of 6-4 in Ronquillo's second year as head coach.

The team "had versatility," commented returnee Sanchez. Sanchez led the team in scoring with an average of about 13 points, while sophomore Brice Goodlow pulled down the majority of the Spartan's boards. "Aaron Kovacs, David Delgadillo, Steve Hong, Brice Goodlow and John Granado were the players that shined out above all the others towards the end of the season, especially Aaron," commented Ronquillo. The team consisted of two returning players, five players from the sophomore level, two from the freshman level and two new players.

The Spartans had a slow start in league by losing to Burroughs and Alhambra, but then they won their next two and their last three games. They ended with an overall record of 14-8. They also won the second place trophy in the San Gabriel Tourney. "Our tournament playing was the best of the season," commented Mitsuuchi. Mitsuuchi and Sanchez were named to the All-Tourney team.

"We win the game when we think and execute correctly," commented sophomore Aris Enriquez on their secret to winning. Ronquillo believed, "We were very successful if we played Schurr basketball." Sanchez believed that their losses happened because when it came down to game time they didn't contribute as much as they should have.

With the varsity team making CIF again, the JV team is confident that "the JV returners should take it next year," commented Sanchez.

Under the coaching of first-time sophomore coach Jay Thomson, the sophomores won four games straight, putting them in the position of winning second place in league, but they lost their next game to the team they were tied with and ended with a fourth place title. The team compiled a league record of 6-4 and an overall record of 14-9. Two of their pre-league losses were to JV teams. The team also won the first place trophy in the San Gabriel tourney and third place title in the Glendora tourney. The sophomores were the only basketball team to win a first place trophy in a tourney this year.

David Kunishima commented on their wins saying, "All I know is that we win, because of, because of ... I don't know." Ren Dabuet believed that, "The key to our success was hard work, pride, team work and an outstanding coaching job by Mr. Thomson."

Chad Sasaki led the team in scoring with an average of about 10 points a game, while Kunishima dominated the Spartan's boards, pulling down an average of over seven points a game. Kunishima attributed his shooting success to the way the defense was set up. On the defensive effort, Eric Morofuji led the team with an average of about three steals a game. "Freethrow shooting was our down fall; most of the games we lost we could have won if we shot 60 percent from the freethrow line," commented Thomson. The team averaged over 27 freethrow attempts a game, but made only an average of about 13 a game.

Because "we couldn't get five players to play as a team," the freshmen cagers suffered their numerous defeats. The freshmen compiled a disappointing league record of 4-6 and an overall record of 6-12. "The last two games we played as a team were very successful," commented Head Coach Robert Rivera. "I hope that it (working as a team) carries over to next year," commented Rivera.

The freshmen were led in scoring by Davis Hong, who averaged over 14 points a game. In their last two games alone Hong scored a total of 51 points. "David (Hernandez) was my best rebounder," said Rivera. "There were good efforts from Ricky (Sahara)." Sahara was the freshmen's point guard and play maker.

After receiving a pass from a teammate, Ricky Sahara decides on the next play. By playing on the Frosh/Soph teams, underclassmen gained experience for higher divisions of basketball.

Jumping to block his opponent from making two points is cager Mickey Viramontes. This was Viramontes' first year on a basketball team.

Going against philosophy

Blocked by defenders from all directions, Kim Ikeda tries to get away for a fastbreak. Ikeda was the only freshman player on this year's Girls' Varsity Basketball team.

While teammate Kim Brodie looks on, Shari Tanimoto grabs for possession of the ball. Tanimoto has played Varsity basketball for three years.

A philosophy of basketball: A sport for tall players only. The Girls' Varsity team went against this philosophy and many other basketball philosophies. As tradition goes, this team was again plagued with the problem of lack of height, but once again, somehow or another, they came out with a successfull season ... once again.

The team finished in third place with a league record of 6-4 and qualified into CIF. In pre-season, the team posted a record of 8-5, making their overall record 14-9.

"I don't know why, but the opponents take us for granted because we are so short. As the game goes on though they should figure out that we are not going to give up a fight easily," said Coach Steve Terry.

Many times, this team was taken for granted and the taller team lost. But sometimes this team's height disadvantage was too big of a disadvantage for it to overcome. An example of this was when Schurr confronted San Gabriel's 6'4" center Rachel Norris. In both San Gabriel games, the team was short not only in height, but also short in points. It lost the first game by only one point and the second game by only three points.

In pre-season, the team placed third in the Wilson Tournament, barely losing to Diamond Bar, 55-54. If each girl was to match up with an opponent in each of the four games, the opponents would have been at least 4 to 5 inches taller. They also placed fourth in the Costa Mesa Tournament. They took a loss against Palos Verdes who had twins that were 6'3". This height disadvantage caused trouble for players like 5'3" Tracy Kovacs and 5'7" Kristina Ballesteros. Ballesteros and Shari Tanimoto led the team to big wins and were both named All-Tournament.

Ballesteros led the team in scoring with a scoring average of 14 points and a scoring high of 25 points in one game. Tanimoto played point guard and ran the offense with much poise. She averaged five assists per game.

"The five starters are not the whole team; the entire team always contributes. Each player gives 110% in each game. The team plays good defense and that helps the team to win most games that we might not have won," said Coach Stacy Honda.

king a jumpshot while her Burbank oppot tries to block her shot is Cathy Sun. Sun, in addition to playing basketball, was an active member of the Speech Team.

Taking second place in the Foothill League, the Girls' JV Basketball team had an overall record of 16-4 and a league record of 7-3. The team was basically young, in that it consisted of four freshmen, three sophomores and four juniors. The team went into the Costa Mesa Tournament to conquer teams like Canyon, Chaffey, and North Torrance, but unfortunately took a loss to Woodbridge, leaving the team in fifth place. Freshman Suzanne Wong captured All-Tournament.

"The girls have improved every game as the season progressed," Coach Julian Olague commented, "and they gained the experience and the (basketball) smarts needed to make a good team."

The team managed to gain their wins mainly through their quickness, agility and ability to handle pressure. Colette Kovacs, Diane Wackeen and Wong contributed offensively, while Vicki Teranishi, Debbie Wackeen, and (once again) Wong were the team's defense.

Unfortunately, during one of the league games, Kovacs was injured while coming down from the rebound, which left her out for several remaining games of the season. Summing up the season, Olague just had too many thoughts to express how the season and team went, but managed to say, "We played the second round better than the first, and all in all we've had an enjoyable season and had lots of fun."

Following last year team's footsteps, this years girls' Frosh-Soph team took second place in league. Their overall record was 11-4, and their league record was 8-2.

"This is a good and fun bunch of ladies anyone can ever ask for," smiled Coach Bruce Vlink. "They always worked real hard on both their offensive and defensive skills."

Contributing greatly offensively and defensively were Tanya Horie, Cindy Kuranishi, Aileen Nakano and Cathy Sun.

The team was involved with Vlink's "Player Protection Program," where everyone would rotate in each other's places "so the other players won't get tired out."

Ending the season, Vlink said, "We started without much experience, but ended up playing as well as any other frosh-soph team around."

He later added, "I'll always remember them, like any other coach would, because they were my first team."

On the floor, Luis Nebel locks up with his opponent before setting up for what is known as a "chicken wing." Nebel won the 122 lb. division at League finals.

Spartan Varsity grapplers have seen this kind of season often enough. For three consecutive years, the Varsity Wrestling team has taken second place in league.

This year seemed like the year that the varsity grapplers would become league champions. Here was the situation. Alhambra defeated the defending league champions, Temple City, by one point. Then Temple City visited the Spartans, who put them down and out ... down on their backs and out of the match. The Spartans defeated Temple City by not one or two points, but by 17 points!

How did Alhambra beat the "Mighty" Spartans for the league title? Grappler Tom Pieratt offered an explanation: "Against Temple City everyone wrestled, but against Alhambra a lot of the starters couldn't wrestle. So therefore the same wrestlers who beat TC didn't wrestle against Alhambra, which was real unfortunate." Added Alejandro Tirado, "If everyone started earlier with their desire and drive, we could have beaten Alhambra."

Nevertheless, the Spartans have always been consistent in placing in league finals. Sixteen grapplers placed between first and fourth place. Placing first were Won Huh (wt. 101), Sheldon Kim (wt. 108), Luis Nebel (wt. 122), and Tirado (wt. 157), while Pieratt (wt. 167) placed second.

Third place finishers were Henry Priest (wt. 101), Thomas Lopez (wt. 115), Bruce Nakashimo (wt. 135), Darren Manibog (wt. 148), Jose Lara (wt. 178), and Scott Fort (wt. 194). Finishing in fourth place were David Miyashiro (wt. 108), David Yu (wt. 129), Ernie Torres (wt. 141), Robin Park (wt. 191), and Frank Zaragosa (wt. HWT). The first and second place finishers qualified for CIF, while the third place finishers were alternates. Nebel was awarded Most Valuable in the lower weight division during the league finals.

"This will be the year we have a state finalist," said Kim, "and I hope I'm one of them!" All the Spartan finalists were enthusiastic and confident this year, but then again, that has always been a Spartan trademark!

Keeping the string going

How good were the JV wrestlers? How does having five consecutive league titles sound? And the Frosh-Soph team did not have the phrase "Give up" in their vocabulary.

"We are blessed with a lot of experienced kids. They are hard workers, yet gentlemen," said Coach Lou Lawrence. "Gentlemen" is right, as they 'gently' pinned their opponents match by match.

If the JV wrestlers were seeking a record for consecutive wins in league, they had definitely gone in the right direction. With 30 consecutive league wins and 5 straight titles, the future for Varsity Wrestling seems impressive.

In the Rio Hondo League Finals or "CIF Qualifiers," five wrestlers placed out of the sixteen who competed. David Miyashiro (wt. 108), David Yu (wt. 129), and Robin Park (wt. 191) placed, while Thomas Lopez (wt. 115) and Darren Manibog (wt. 148) qualified as CIF alternates.

Ming Lee and Frank Sanchez were the team captains. "Their leadership and willingness to practice hard have set a great example for the rest of the team to follow," commented Lawrence about Lee and Sanchez.

The team to follow is the Frosh-Soph Wrestling team. Said Lawrence of the team's performance at the first tournament, "I would have traded the whole bus load for an ice cream sandwich." Yet as the season progressed, Lawrence later contradicted, "It was the worst group I had ever coached, but they worked harder than any other group I ever had."

The Frosh-Soph team certainly did improve as it finished second place on the February 7 tournament. Wrestlers competed against wrestlers from Arroyo, Long Beach Poly, Montebello, Palmdale, South Hills, Torrance and South Torrance.

Lawrence also attributed the team's success to the support of the parents, "To run each tournament, a minimum of 15 parents were needed to assume duties ranging from scoring and keeping time to janitorial duties."

Concluded Lawrence; "I'm really looking forward to next year, the Frosh-Soph team will fit right in, keeping the string (league titles) going."

Warming up for a match, sophomore Phach Ngo hits one down the line. This is the second year Ngo has played on JV.

ter serving the ball, Ken Loh watches for the turn. Loh played varsity tennis since his freshon year.

In a match against Montebello, Keenan Eng rallies the ball back to his opponent. The netters opened their preseason against Montebello.

Although the Varsity Tennis team has not experienced the competition of Wimbledon, the team faced some challenges that helped make the team stronger.

Since most players were new to the varsity scene, one of the problems this year was the lack of experience on the team. However, with long and frequent practices and every member working hard to improve his skills, the team was able to achieve a 9-1 record in preseason and begin the season with confidence.

In response to how strong he thought the team was, Charles Sayasith answered, "I think the team was considerably strong because the players were really dedicated and they were willing to strive in order to succeed." Sayasith was the top-seeded singles player. Keenan Eng, who played second seeded doubles team with Stephen Loh, agreed, "The team was very strong this year. Many players were determined to outdo one another, which made us more competitive."

Other top players included Mike Kim, second-seeded singles player, and taking the third position was Stanley Chang. The number-one seeded doubles team was comprised of Ken Loh and David Nguyen. Taking the last ranked spot was Kurtis Eng and Martin Kim.

Under the guidance of second-year coach Jay Thomson, the Spartans were off to a blazing start this season. Sayasith commented on their performance in saying, "The whole team practiced a great deal and we were ready to play."

Coached by Arnie Futagaki, the JV team finished preseason with overwhelming victories, which included wins over Montebello and Edgewood. Commented Phach Ngo, "This year's team was very strong even though we did not have a lot of returning players. Our doubles teams were especially good and with hard work at practice, we have a very good chance at taking league."

And what about Wimbledon? With their proven ability and Spartan persistance, these players just might make it there some day!

Take me out to the ball game

Hello, out there, all you avid sports fans. Have you got your salted peanuts and Culpepper's popcorn? How about those tempting Dodger dogs? Well, you'd better get some, because Ol' Sammy Spartan is going to take ya' through Varsity Baseball's 1987 season!

Despite a shaky preseason, the team maintained an optimistic attitude during league. Most players agreed that the preseason scores were not predictive of their season. (After all, one must not judge a book by its cover! Or in this case, a season by its rocky start.) Head Coach Paul "Buzz" Baviello used this time to "look for player combinations that would be effective for the rest of the season."

The preseason performance of the team helped the players to evaluate their own strengths and weaknesses. Captain Butch LeNoue felt that the team's attitude was a weakness. "The players didn't have the 'I want to win' attitude."

A solid defense and good pitching were strengths of the team. In the team's opening game against Burbank, Joe Cypert pitched an excellent game. He only allowed the Bulldogs to score twice. Commented LeNoue, "We had put ourselves in a position to win, but we didn't pull through. Joe (Cypert), however, pitched a very good game."

As the season progressed, the team kept its hopes up. "We have a smart team that was a competitor," remarked Glenn Sabey. "When we were playing our best, no one could beat us." Added senior Jeff Amimoto, "I felt that we had the talent and the ability to go a long way."

There was team unity between players. "We would pray before each game and the coach also gave tips on playing strategy," said Amimoto.

Yes, it was a challenging year for the Varsity Baseball team, but Ol' Sammy Spartan could see right from the start that the team would go far. After all, didn't the Dodgers start out this way!?

"So it's one, two, THREE strikes! You're out, at the old ball game!"

By Sandy Hirai and Anita Magallanes

Catcher Manny Gutierrez adjusts his mask as the Spartans get ready to play defense. Gutierrez has also played football for the Spartans.

As Gerald Leal urges his teammates on, Rick Davis, John Esparza and Glenn Sabey concentrate on tactics. The Spartans relied on quick defense and good pitching to beat opponents.

Boys' Varsity Baseball: (Front Row) K. Nimitsilpa (Manager), J. Esparza, J. Rodriguez, R. Dabuet, J. Frescas, M. Sandoval, J. Amimoto. (Row 2) M. Clark (Manager), R. Davis, J. LeNoue, J. Gutierrez, G. Sabey, M. Cypert, S. Osorio, R. Mata. (Back Row) Coach P. Baviello, R. Yanaga, J. Cypert, F. Espino, I. Herrera, R. Castaneda, B. LeNoue, M. Gutierrez, Coach D. Faries.

Hurling a fast ball to the opposition is Joe Cypert. Cypert had a 0.48 pitching average during the preseason.

JV Baseball: (Front Row) M. Rivera, R. Piecha, G. Patlan, A. Martinez, S. Park, T. Acosta, C. Lara. (Row 2) C. Garza, J. Ramirez, J. Herrera, M. Gutierrez, J. Garza, E. Barrera, A. Kelly, A. Martinez. (Back Row) Coach G. Muniz, J. Wong, L. Duran, C. Bouligny, R. Ortega, M. Granados, B. Tellez, Coach C. O'Gorman.

Pedro Guerrero, Reggie Jackson and Don Mattingly are all making millions of dollars slugging for their respective teams. But they were not always superstars and hot shots. They had to work their way up from the minors and practice endless hours to prove to big league managers that they are "big time" players.

The same was true for the JV Baseball team. Coach Casey O'Gorman tried this year to mold his players so that they could move up to the varsity team next year. O'Gorman said, "We were a very competitive team this year. Our pitching held up pretty well, limiting our opponents to very few runs. Overall, we were pretty tough to beat."

O'Gorman felt that there were some really good players on this year's team. Tony Acosta, Juan Herrera, Joey Garza, Mark Rivera, Alfred Martinez, and Brandon Tellez were all great contributors to the team, according to O'Gorman, but he felt that the entire team contributed to a great season. "I gave an opportunity to show what they could do. We were extremely aggressive in running and stealing, and we forced the other teams into making errors," said O'Gorman.

With the season over, many players were looking forward to a move up to varsity next year, as so many varsity players have done in the past. But for the players as well as the coach, the season was not filled with much loss. "I enjoyed working with the kids," said O'Gorman. He added, "It wasn't a big adjustment. The practice schedule was very convenient, unlike for most other coaches at other schools."

Under Coach Ben Negrete, this year's frosh team was on the road up to what the players feel is the big time, varsity. Playing such teams as Arroyo, El Monte and Keppel, they had the experience to move up next year.

Running and hitting, defensive schemes, and sound minds make good baseball players, and for this year's JV team, the scheme was learned. Maybe the future holds a baseball contract with a big major league team.

By Greg Nakata and David Liu

Watching his batter's concentration, Coach "Buzz" Baviello thinks about his team's play. Baviello also coached Varsity Football.

JV players Mike Sandoval and Mike Granados practice stealing techniques in preparation for league competition. Stealing was an important part in the JV team's strategy.

After signaling to the pitcher, Manny Gutierrez awaits the pitch. Gutierrez also played on the Varsity Football Team.

Girls' JV Softball: (Front Row) D. Wu, A. Miller, N. Perez, A. Hughes, J. Perez. (Back Row) N. Rosas, D. Martinez, T. Baray, D. Peralta, D. Gonzales, D. Abarca, N. Lopez.

Winding up the pitch, varsity pitcher Melissa Parra concentrates on a strike. The girls spent hours practicing after school every day during their season.

Warming up before the South Pasadena game, Adrian Miller and Duvi Gonzales psyche themselves up to win. JV snuffed South Pasadena 12-2.

Making the tag at third base is Julie Perez. Perez helped the Spartans hold on to beat Bell Gardens, 2-0.

As the bunt covers her, Rachel Aguerrebere rushes down to third base. This was Aguerrebere's first year on varsity.

With a touch of determination, dedication and devotion, the Girls' Varsity and JV softball teams had the qualities needed to lead to success. Second year varsity member Tracy Kovacs remarked, "This year's team is just as talented as last year's but better." Commented Chris Haggerty at the start of the season, "I anticipate a much more successful season."

Response to tryouts was fairly good. Approximately 60 girls participated hoping to win a position on either one of the two teams. But only a selected few had the opportunity to find out what being on a team was actually like.

Since the majority of the members were freshmen and sophomores, Haggerty was quick to point out the disadvantage of their inexperience. She added, "In a few years though, it'll be an advantage, because they'll be juniors and seniors."

The teams practiced about 10 hours a week, or according to Haggerty, "Two hours daily. Well, two-and-a-half if I'm mad." Said Coach Sherri Allred, "This year, our main goals were to improve our basic skills and our team unity approach."

By helping one another and working close together as a real team, the varsity and JV teams, despite hardships and lack of inexperience, set out to make Coach Haggerty's and Allred's dreams come true!

Hard work pays off

Boys' Varsity Track: (Front Row) H. Lee, H. Mai, D. Wong, F. Barrera, S. Ramirez, J. Ruiz, B. Le. (Row 2) C. Edinger, C. Gonzales, J. Lemus, N. Lugo, F. Paez, S. Minjarez, A. Jimenez, E. Wu. (Row 3) T. Chang, J. Dominguez, S. Skeete, A. Rivera, M. Rodriguez, M. Martinez.

Making the exchange between the first and the second legs of a boy's 440 relay are Jose Lemus and Harris Lee. Team members practiced passing the baton to one another often during practice.

Retaining his lead in the last leg of the boy's one mile relay, Nick Lugo carries Schurr to another victory. Lugo was named Most Valuable Player and was the undefeated Foothill League varsity champion in the one-half mile for three years in a row.

What is the biggest obstacle any sports team can have? This year's Varsity Track team would most likely answer inexperience. Yet the Varsity team would also answer that having an inexperienced team can be compensated by qualities like diligence and perserverance. At the track team went out to prove this, third year member Nick Lugo commented, "We lost some valuable veterans to graduation, but we still managed to have a winning team and season." Concurred teammate Sean Skeete, "Our varsity team had a great season. With all of our previous hard work during training, we deserved what we got."

The team was under the direction of Coaches Chris Lord, Mike Remy, Steve Terry and Bruce Vlink. The co-captains were Jose Lemus and Lugo.

A unique preparation went into play before each track meet. The team would stretch together. "Team unity is one of the most important conducts an athlete learns," reflected Sebastian Minjarez. After that, Coach Lord recited his latest "psyche poem" or pep talk. "After all," said Lord, "to be number one, we have to think together too."

Varsity track involved events such as pole vaulting and relays. Said pole vaulter Fernando Paez, "I looked forward to working with the frosh-soph team because they have a lot of potential."

For the 1987 track team, togetherness in running and thought was the key to victory.

By David Liu and Maui Moustache

Attempting to break the track record in the long jump, Jorge Ruiz leaps into the sand pit. This was Ruiz's first year on varsity track.

Easily clearing the bar in the high jump is Charlie Edinger. Edinger, who lives most of the year on a farm in South Dakota, has returned each spring and competed on track.

Return to excellence

With all her might, Debbie Wackeen leaps into the sand pit. Wackeen also took part in the JV Basketball Team.

Senior Charise Alvarez leaps over the high bar as she plummets to the mattress. This was Alvarez's fourth year on the track team.

Girls' Varsity Track: (Front Row) C. To, P. Angulo, L. Orozco, C. Alvarenga, J. Zubiate, C. Alvarez, S. Valenzuela. (Row 2) O. Eliazo, L. Angulo, B. To, C. To, S. Wong, J. Guereca, L. Roybal, C. Orozco, L. Carreon, U. White. (Back Row) P. Walker, D. Sasaki, M. Johnson, K. Yu, D. Wackeen, D. Wackeen, M. Carranza, M. Pedroza, A. Fernandez, A. Edinger.

With their last ounce of strength, Bonnie To and Debi Sasaki rac to the finish line. Teammates often competed against each other practice for the real thing.

Second year varsity member Cecibel Alvarenga leaps over a hurdle at one of the first track meets. Alvarenga also served as manager of the cross country team this year.

With most of the team returning from last year, the Girls' Varsity Track was looking forward to a winning season. As Coach Steve Terry explained, "We've filled all the spots that were made from last year's team, but we're still a very young team."

Senior Cecibel Alvarenga had confidence in the team from the start.

"The team's pretty strong and I think we could take league championship again if we all work together as a team." Added Coach Bruce Vlink, "With all the returning girls, I don't see any reason why we cannot keep our title this year ..."

This year's girls were more than just teammates; they were friends and fighters. Coach Steve Terry proudly pointed out, "The key to our success was that we had a lot of hard workers." Commented senior Jennifer Zubiate, "The Girls' Varsity team consisted of team unity, inspiration and strength." She continued, "The girls know what it took to have a second consecutive undefeated season ... and we all worked towards that goal this year."

Concluded Debi Sasaki with an optimistic thought, " 'A talent awaits us each new day. Run swiftly to meet it — it's ours for the taking!' "

By Lynda Kim

Running with the baton, Debi Sasaki keeps up the pace to stay ahead of her opponent. The relay race was one competition that involved teamwork.

Where the runners are Practicing her jump for one last time before competition is Sharon Gantala. Gantala was a first year member of the team.

Runners Jesse Torres and Alphie Holguin take a couple of warmup laps. Exercising and stretching out before meets helps prevent injuries.

Girls' JV Track: (Front Row) O. Ortiz, M. Godinez, H. Gonzalez, R. Ileto, J. Minamoto, L. Teraishi, C. Ileto, J. Rauda, C. Villa, J. Delgado, M. Webber, J. Garcia, M. Farrell. (Row 2) E. Munoz, G. Blaney, F. Tong, S. Gantala, Y. Martinez, A. Chang, K. Cho, V. Lopez, M. Alegria, G. Rauda, D. Chew, S. Perez. (Back Row) M. Lopez, A. Orozco, S. Perez, D. Juarez, E. Okasaki, P. Ma, I. Guerrero, A. Angulo, R. Chavez, P. Mollinedo, J. Wong, J. Santos, N. Gonzalez.

Boys' Frosh-Soph Track: (Front Row) E. Lua, J. Botello, A. Tang, E. Wai, B. Lam, J. Padilla, K. Yoon, P. Taing, A. Alvarado, R. Llamas, S. Estrada, D. Ramos, J. Lynch. (Row 2) F. Carranza, E. Yen, M. Velasco, C. Lee, M. Diaz, C. Skeete, M. Gamez, J. Torres, R. Flores, R. Ruiz, A. Gutierrez, J. Angulo, T. Hernandez, K. Broadnax. (Back Row) J. Naruko, C. Villavicencio, P. Quan, M. Chai, A. Mares, A. Holguin, F. Melendrez, J. Villa, R. Bustamante, A. Quintana.

Preparing for her final lap around the track, Janina Rauda comes into her second wind. This was Rauda's first year in track.

And we'll have fun, fun, fun 'cause my daddy took the T-Bird away ... T-Bird away ... so they're forced to run?" This new twist to the Beach Boys classic exemplifies the theme of the underclass track team this year. "We had a great team, and we had lots of fun. The key was the people," said Coach Chris Lord.

Lord commented that Jesse Torres, Cory Lee, and Alfie Holguin gave superior performances for the boys.

One of the most interesting drills the underclass tracksters performed during practice was called the 5/4/3/2/1/2/3/4. The tracksters started this drill by running 1¼ laps, 1 lap, ¾ lap, ½ lap, ¼ lap, ½ lap again, ¾ lap and finished with 1 lap.

According to Lord, he read a poem or "rapped" to the team just before a meet to psych them up. Besides the poetry reading, the team also stretched together to encourage team unity.

First year member Dianne Chew predicted at the beginning of the season, "I think we have a good chance at taking League."

And as the Beach Boys would say, we'll have fun, fun, fun, while we run, run, run, our way to triumph ...

By Greg Nakata and Vivien Tse

Tracksters Cory Lee and Mike Diaz start off on the right foot. Members of the track team were required to practice for at least two hours a day.

Janice Minamoto makes a final leap as she reaches the finish line. Minamoto was an active second year trackster.

Boys' Varsity Golf: (Front Row) M. Salas, M. Magallanes, S. Ishikawa, S. Sakahara. (Back Row) Coach R. Niccoli, R. Tagawa, M. Viramontes, T. Tamanaha, G. Miki.

What is the one sport where the athlete constantly faces confrontations such as man vs. enemy, man vs. nature and man vs. himself? It is these confrontations that most accurately described the kind of matches the Varsity Golf team played throughout its season. As second year member Russell Tagawa described,

"There is still team effort involved, but it's not just you against the golf course."

During preseason, the Spartan linksters played tough competitors and handled weather problems like rain, but there was one personal confrontation the Varsity team had to definitely face: inexperience. Even with a 5-2 preseason record and four returning members, Coach Richard Niccoli felt experience was lacking when the linksters were locked in pressure situations.

In league, the linksters battled their inexperience by constant practice and maintaining a positive perspective of the season. Before their first league game against their toughest opponent, Burbank, senior and first man Glen Miki said, "We're going to play our best and win!" Yet sophomore Shawn Sakahara felt the key to confronting their inexperience was through "plenty of practice and a positive attitude."

Miki predicted, "If we played to our capabilities, we should be league champions!" And added, "Shawn and I have a good chance of going into CIF." The team competed in both team and individual competitions.

Facing the same kind of confrontations was the JV Golf team. Commented Niccoli, "The golfers were very young and inexperienced." But they'll be better in the future as long as they stick it out." The JV team competed in the competitive Foothill League against opponents as Burbank, Alhambra and San Gabriel, but did not compete in tournament matches.

As writer William Faulkner once said, "I believe that man will not merely endure: he will prevail." In the same way, the varsity and JV teams faced their confrontations to the very end and eventually prevailed by overcoming all obstacles.

By Elaine Wong and Anita Magallanes

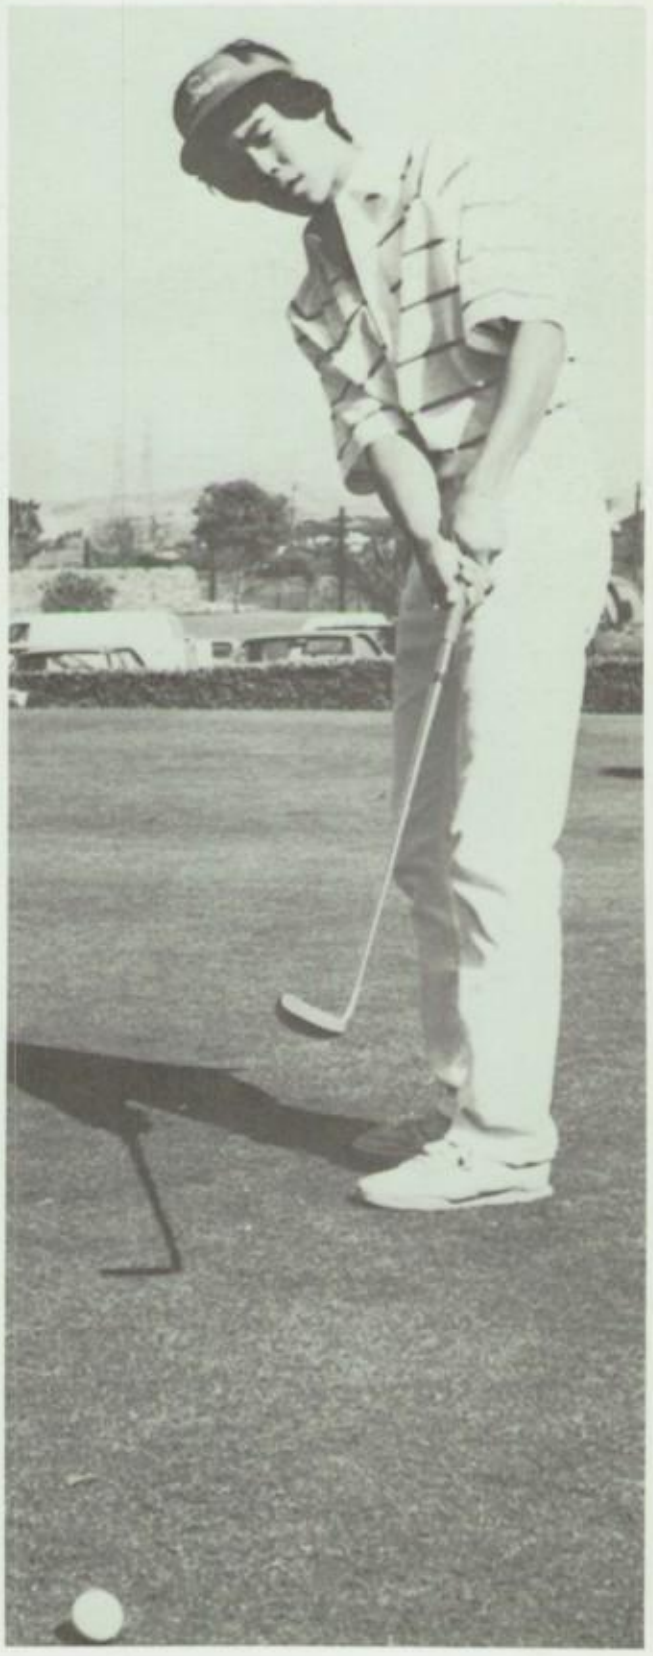
Preparing to tee off is linkster John Vasquez. This is the second year that Vasquez has been on the JV team.

Lining up his club for his next shot is Ernest Valdez. Valdez played on the JV team.

After he putts the ball, senior Glen Miki eyes his shot. Miki was one of the leading players on the varsity team.



Nancy Hagiwara, Kevin Williams, Steve Orosco, and Debbie Kishimoto accent Roadhouse Records, in the Montebello Town Center. Roadhouse also has a store on Whittier Blvd.

Montebello Plaza, located down the hill, is patronized frequently by students during lunch. Some of the businesses patronized were Straw Hat, Swenson's, and Del Taco.

ADS

Showing appreciation to the students who patronize their business, local business people have, in turn, supported the 1987 Spectrum by sponsoring the ads that are found in this section. Anthony Lacsamana, an employee of Montebello Florist, expressed gratitude toward Schurr customers, "Because we know how important flowers can be during certain times of the year, we appreciate students coming to our store for those occasions."

Without the support of these businesses, this year's yearbook would not have been possible. From retailers to doctors, they have contributed more than just money; they have contributed by helping the Spectrum staff treasure school memories and events that will be remembered a lifetime.

By Elaine Wong

Atlantic Square offers a variety of specialty stores and boutiques. One of the oldest centers in Monterey Park, it has served Schurr students since the school's inception.

Join us in helping to support the athletic program at Schurr High School. We have provided many of the "extras" that make the difference between a good and great program. Some of our recent purchases have been:

- A softball pitching machine
- A tennis ball machine for stroking practice
- Uniforms for basketball, softball, and volleyball
- Benches for baseball and softball diamonds
- A new concession stand
- Transporting pepsters to summer camp in Santa Barbara

In addition to many purchases, we have helped school teams and clubs raise money for their projects. Last year the Booster Club contributed over $15,000 to Schurr High School.

What can you do to help?

- Join the Booster Club. We meet the second Wednesday of each month in the school library.
- Participate in fund-raising efforts. The 50-50 raffle at football games, the Moped drawing at Homecoming, and the Pancake Breakfast in May are our major sources of income.
- Volunteer to help. Any Booster Club member, concession stand worker, or coach will be glad to take your name and notify you as to how you can be involved.

Can we count on you?

Join a great organization designed to help the finest athletes anywhere.

Dear Gina
Hola. I know i sure as hell gonna miss you. But I'm still going to go and visit you guys. Good luck with your baby (Nick) how pretty. Good luck with your life. Otherwell

How's Slappy Beck ✓

To Gina

A very crazy chick I met this year. Well we are already going to be juniors already so fast I can't believe it. Well stupid I hope we stay friend forever. Please do me a favor don't put me down. I hate that. Well anyways thank you for being there when I needed you. I also did you a favor & got rid of Dick face Albert Em servers this time. But you know what Im changeing my life. If you know what I mean. Well next year let become better friend okay, and don't be a dick Come over and visited me in the summer. Well good luck as a junior. Dont do anything I wouldn't do. If you know what I mean. Well senior year, I'm going to be different. Well I'm going to study hard. For sure. We got together. Please don't change that. I hope we always be there when I need you. And also if you want to get rid of any problem. Love ya Friend forever

Parting Thought ...

Remember those awesome stairs, the track,
the sprints, and sweat running through your hair?
And all the screaming and yelling you pretended not to hear?
We hope you learned something
And it did not go in and out your ears.
Remember the games, the competition was tall and rough,
But we always seemed to show our stuff.
So now the season is done and we both hoped you had some fun.

Remember Me?

It's been 10 years since we graduated.
How time flies when you're not saturated.
I left you all in such a big hurry,
But there's no need for you guys to worry.
God always had me in his plan,
And now I'm in his great Holy Land.
The world can fool you day by day,
Don't let "so-called fun" lead you astray.
My days here at Schurr were really cool,
So take advantage of what "you should" learn in school.
We were all such good buddies,
But we never encouraged each other to take time for studies.
Now I know what a real friend should do,
Help your buddy, and not with a bottle of brew.
After you graduate your friends disappear,
You may see them once every other year.
Listen to your parents, they love you so much,
So don't be afraid to hug and to touch.
My memories of Schurr will never depart,
Some good, some bad, they're all in my heart.
I hope you remember the name of "Punchy"
You are all in my prayers and one day God will set you free.
We used to meet at 7-11,
Next time I pray you'll all be right here in Heaven.

Later, Rudy A. Jordan
"Class of 1977"

Sandra — yes, we have lost our marbles. We're still friends since we met in 2nd grade and we never had a major argument! Thanks for being a great friend over these years and I hope you'll stay the warm, funny, sarcastic, stubborn person you are. Carolyn — to one of my sweetest chums since Eastmont. Can you believe? We're finally graduating! Thanks for always being there when I needed a friend to talk to and I hope you'll have a great time in college. Laura — Another old pal from Eastmont. Let's remember the good times we've had and let's hope there will be more. Mrs. George Michael — I know you like Wham because George is in it! Anyhow, I have really enjoyed the experiences we had together, but I must confess ... I'm really black! Candy — I won't ever forget you and Mousie! Remember the time Sandy made a birthday cake with Mousie on it. But before I finish I must say this, "Let's throw our gloves away," and we know we can say that. Jean — a really nice and smart girl that I met at SHS. I wish you lots of luck in whatever you do, but don't ever get corrupted by Mrs. Michael and Candy. They may be bad influences. Mr. Maui Moustache — a truly great friend. Thanks for all your wonderful masterpieces that you've written. By the way, have you counted the number of white hairs you have gained this year? (J/K) Alice — you've been a great editor and I know you'll do great in whatever you do in the future. Smiley — tell me, why do you smile so much? Shane — ain't it a shame Candy's graduating? Now you won't have anyone to pick on next year. Ai-lun — "Those dumb kids" quoth yours truly. Thanks for being a great friend and remember when you get famous, I'll buy a dress from you. Ruru — Ooh! A future businesswoman. Tell me when you've made a million bucks, then you can give me some money to spend. Anita — a very sweet friend who looks gentle and fragile, but really isn't! (Ramba) I wish you the best of luck in whatever you do and don't ever change! Elaine Wong

Shane — calm down, okay? Don't tease Candy about Mousy. You were a lot of fun in annual. Take care. Wiener, Dennis, Alice, and Stephie — it was fun having you all in annual. Take care of yourselves and try not to work too hard Greg N — thanks so very much for all the help you gave me in annual. I really, really appreciated it. You've been a great friend these past 2 years and I'm going to miss you. Take care. "A-ha maniac" — So how's it going? Are your walls totally plastered with pictures of your favorite trio yet? I'm sure they are. These past 2 years have been a lot of fun, and I'll miss you very much. Try to relax and don't worry about you what. Things will work themselves out eventually. Keep hoping, and perhaps one day you'll get to meet Pal. Take care and keep in touch. Carolyn — you've been such a good friend for the past 3 years, and I'm really going to miss you. Stay as nice as you are. Elaine — this year in annual you really shocked me. I didn't know you were that crazy. It was fun. Naomi — What can I say? It was a lot of fun having you for a few classes. Too bad we didn't have more. Your voices are really funny. Naomi & Candy — I want to thank both of you for being so nice to me back in our freshman year. It really meant a lot to me. Candy — RELAX! Stop complaining, okay? So how's Mousy doing? I can't tell you how much I have appreciated having you as a friend. We've had lots of good times together, huh? Candy & Jean — Thanks for going with me to the Wham! concert! Especially Jean. Thanks so much for getting the tickets! You know I enjoyed the concert immensely!!!! Thanks for putting up with me. Jean — Well, we've finally made it. For awhile things weren't looking so well, huh? Math in particular, huh? Aren't you glad we're through? Aren't you glad it's all over? I hope you enjoy going to UCLA. I'm going to miss you. Take care of yourself. Things will be fine. Love 'n Friendship, Marlene

Emily — you are a very special person in my life, you are not only my niece but my best friend, and I love you very much. I'll never forget the memories we made and shared this year and I'll treasure them for the rest of my life. I wish you the very best in all you do and wherever you go. May God bless you and keep you always! Forever smile and never forget that I'll always be there for you. I love you! Sandra — what can I say? We shared so much these past years that it's impossible for me to say just how much our friendship means to me. I hope you know that I love you and hope our friendship will continue throughout our lives. Remember to believe in yourself and you will find strength. I believe in you! Buena suerte and God bless you! Nora — or should I call you "Class of '87?" Stop worrying so much, that's my advice to you! Just relax and enjoy life! You've been a great friend and I hope we'll continue to be friends for a long time. Remember New Year's? Hope we'll have a lot more of those good times. I love you and wish you all the very best! Keep that chin up! Leonor — my very special pal. Wasn't Yosemite fun? Well, it sure was an experience! This year was totally crazy. Remember Platoon? We had great times together and I hope and pray we'll have a lot more. You mean a lot and I wish you the best of life. God bless you! Don't forget our cracker jack boys and SAN DIEGO. Elaine — Elaine! Elaine! Elaine! A million thanks to you for the tons of help and the patience of a saint. You're an important person to me and I treasure your friendship very much. To you I wish all the good this world has to offer. Don't forget about our ninja assassins and you know who! To all of my friends — you all made my years at Schurr very special. I love you all! To my family — to Mom and Dad, you are everything in the world to me. All of my life, you have been there for me and I love you both so very much. An Dad, thanks for the millions of trips you made driving me and my friends here and there. Nellie — if you wouldn't have driven me to zero, who knows how I would have managed. Thanks a million and I love you! May God give you strength, you work so hard. Yolie, Pinky, Joe, Carlos, Indio, David, Freddie, and Johnny — I love you all very much! And to everyone else in my family, I love you too and pray that the Lord will Bless you all! Christine and Ray — you know you're very special to me! Love Always, Anita Mags

Naomi — we've grown up together and have been through so much, the good and especially the bad, that we'll have a lot to reminisce about when we're old and retired. Look at you now, 'member when you were all serious? We've had a lot of laughs over the years and I'll never forget them. Luv ya. Hey, what are you doing tonight? Wiener — Can you believe that we're still friends? We've had a lot of differences, and we're still best buds. We had some great talks raggin' about everyone. Do you want wood or art deco? Hey, move over! Miss Sensitive — you sure were touchy this year. Did we or did we not hhave some rad times busting up over something or someone? It's been a great four years with you. J.N.M.T. "Louie, Louie" RELAX! I'll call you, o.k.? Jean — what can I say? You're perfect. I always knew you would achieve great things. I remember you before contacts and cussing. I won't let Marlene pick on you. Did we have a good time in Portland or what? Sandy — you had some great parties and with me as head chef and grill cleaner, they were even better. Eh! Thanx for the cake, it was great. Me and Mousy will be seeing you in Norway on Pal's lap. Elaine — it never ceases to amaze me when perverse things came out of your mouth. Those words and that laugh of yours. I'll never forget it. Mousy says hi. Carolyn — you are the most sincere person that I've ever known and you have a lovely voice, whenever I got a chance to hear it. I wish you much happiness and keep smilin'. Shane — Can't you ever be serious? You've given me a lot of laughs, usually all of them after school in the back room, from your singing and dancing. Thanx for all the help. Greg — I can't believe I know you. All that singing and dancing you do, just about as much as Shane. Keep on rappin'. Stephanie — Take this down to the Finance office. Go get me this and that. Thanx for doing all that stuff for me. I'll miss giving you advice on your love life. Dennis — we had a few good laughs together. Don't let things get to you, just keep on smiling. Alice — you lived through the year. Congratulations! You did a stupendous job. Good luck to all of you. Love you, Candy

Emily F — Hey freshman! You still have 3 years to go. Lucky you! Take care of yourself and Mike, Okay!? Thai N — "Sledgehammer" wishes you luck in the future! Dennis D (Dimples) — Much luck next year. Stay as sweet as you are. Leonor — a very funny friend who made me laugh all the time. You have a great personality. Take good care of yourself. Keep in touch! Keenan and Jeff A — 2 of the nicest friends I have ever known. Good luck always love ya! Perkins W — Hey Bud! Buzzed Bunny loves ya! Thanx for helping me out. You are a real friend. Take care. James K — Hey there! Good luck in your successful future. Marlene "Whammie" — Thanx for putting up with me and my musical trio. Don't worry, you'll meet George someday. Take care of yourself. Keep in touch. Good luck in everything you do. Pal loves ya! Jean M — one of the sweetest people I have ever known. I'm glad we got to be friends. Thanx for being there when I needed someone to talk to. I really appreciate your friendship. Take care and good luck in your future. Love ya! Candy — So, howz Mousie? Take good care of him. Thanx for being such a good friend You are very sweet and patient. I'm gonna miss you and your "good moods!" Who's gonna make me laugh now? Take care and good luck. Pal loves you too! Elaine W — What can I say to someone that I've known since the 2nd grade!? Thanx for being such a good friend for all of those years. Hope we can stay friends 4/ever. Good luck in the future, but try not to panic! Carolyn K — So, howz the jockey? I still have plans for you two. I think it could work. Oh, well! I sure am gonna miss your company! Who am I gonna talk to about my group now? I'm glad I met you. I've known you for 6 years and I hope we can stay together for 30 more! Take care and keep in touch. I love you. David K — a very special friend whom I love very much. I'm gonna miss you! Hope we can still keep in touch. I'll never forget you! Good luck always. Love ya! Anita "Mags" (Buckwheat) — well, what can I say to one of my very special friends that I haven't said already? How can I begin to summarize our entire friendship? It would take me forever. Thank you for always being there when I needed you. Te quiero mucho y me da tristesa que ya no te voy a ver todos los dias. I'll miss you very much, but I'll never forget you! Take care and keep in touch. Don't let Mags get out of hand! Okay? Buckwheat. To my family — I love you all very much. I would be nowhere without you guys and all your support. Thanx! (Gracias) Hey Gabe! You only have 3 more years to go before you join me at college. Hurry up! Love n' friendship 4/ever, Sandra (a-ha fan #1) Pal Waaktaar, Mags, Morten Harket I love you mom and Kitty! Raquel Irma Orozco

Jan. 31, 1971 — Feb. 28, 1987

Raquel, Whenever we needed a friend you always seemed to be there.

You helped us with our problems.

Our joys together we shared.

I can't imagine life without a friend like you; when we get together we are an indivisible two.

All the fun we shared with you can never be replaced.

Together we've had many good times and conquered the problems we had to face.

So we want you to know that we will always be here if ever you need a friend, to make your thoughts dear and when we must leave you as many good friends sometimes part.

We leave you with good memories and an important place in our hearts.

Missing You,
Mom, Brothers, Sisters, Relatives, and Friends ...

Armen my friend

In memory of Armen Mirzaians

We argued we played the treasures we made our friendship was gold like one which can't be sold we laughed and we fought but break apart we did not a friend you can talk with a friend you can joke with a friend indeed a friend you need why my friend? I wish I knew cause friends like him are very few
I wish he was here ...
I wish he was near ...
he never gave up
he strove for his goal from deep in his heart and deep in his soul
I know I will miss him
I know many will to think of the memories he brings to me still I'll never forget him and I'll always say ...
I wish that my friend was with me today he brought so much happiness to people around he never did things to put people down my friend is now some place I do not know where but what I do know is there's happiness there wherever my friend is I know he is glad cause being in heaven is no place to be sad so I'm glad for my friend though I know it's the end the end of his life but a start to a new ...

Friends, Roy

Dressed up as a nerd on Nerd/Tourist Day during Homecoming, is Kevin Williams. Williams moved here from Canada to attend his senior year at Schurr.

Basketball head coach Tommy Thompson explains the next play to his cagers to execute after the time-out against Burroughs. The Spartans eventually defeated the Moors for their first league win.

The year in review

At the start of the 1986-7 school year, there was indeed promise of a great year because each student reflected a unique quality: Spartan Excellence. Whether it meant diligence in the classroom or sportsmanship in sports, students were always ready to perform to the best of their abilities.

In October, Spartans showed tremendous enthusiasm and school spirit by celebrating Homecoming. In November, the French Club and Junior Class showed concern for others by raising money for an injured California High athlete. Later in the year, the Mighty Spartan Band and Drill Team continued to show Spartan Excellence in team effort by competing in Hawaii.

Following this, there were many more events such as the Prom, where couples dressed in their most formal attire. Most reflecting Spartan Excellence was in June when 570 seniors walked down the aisle to receive their diplomas.

From September to June, Spartans had the Spartan Excellence to achieve success in many different areas. Although the year has ended, there will be one thing that will not end: Spartans will continue to have the Leading Edge ...

Colophon

The Leading Edge, Volume XV of the Schurr High School Spectrum, was created, edited, and financed by the 1987 Spectrum staff. The book was printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks in Marceline, Missouri. Color sections were printed on 80 pound Bordeaux and black and white sections on 80 pound Calais. The binding was rounded and backed. Wrapped on a 160-point binder's board, the cover featured color candid photography on a green background and was laminated with a special Plasti Kote material.

Senior and faculty portraits were taken by Sanford Studios of Whittier. Underclass portraits were taken by National School Studios.

Body copy was printed in 10 point and captions in 8 point. Headlines were in 24 and 36 point. Typefaces included Avant Garde, Garamond, Spartan Light, and Spartan Medium Italic.

Special features of the Spectrum '87 included a spring supplement and an eight-page color tip-in.

Spectrum '87 Staff: CONGRATULATIONS! We did it!

Sincerely,
Your editor,
Alice
